NOTE.—Arranged in accordance with the first significant character or word of the name (in accordance with city and telephone directory practice). Includes patents, reissues, and designs.

Abrasive and applying same to continuous grinding systems, Apparatus for grading. H. K. Hitchcock. 1,629,502; May 24.
Accelerator cushion. G. W. Megnin. 1,630,199; May 24.
Accelerator, Foot. H. W. Lane. 1,629,919; May 24.
Acid, Treating sludge. F. M. Rogers, F. V. Grimm, and G. L. Wendt. 1,630,074; May 24.
Acridine derivatives and making same. H. Jensch. 1,629,873; May 24.
Adding machine. W. E. Dunning and J. Bachofer. 1,629,615; May 24.
Advertising device, Illuminated. E. L. Goodloe and G. E. Peniston. 1,629,697; May 24.
Agricultural implements. J. Hampson. 1,629,915; May 24.
Air classifier. A. H. Stebbins. 1,629,594; May 24.
Aircraft. J. W. Silver. 1,629,843; May 24.
Aircraft safety device. J. Ostand. 1,630,211; May 24.
Alarm: See—
Low-water alarm.
Aluminum alloys, Improving. W. Guertler and W. Sander. 1,629,690; May 24.
Amusement device. P. U. Daniel. 1,629,570; May 24.
Amusement device. A. A. Payne. 1,629,808; May 24.
Amusement device. P. C. Smith. 1,630,098; May 24.
Animal pens, Panel for. R. B. Louden. 1,629,719; May 24.
Animal trap. C. W. Borg. 1,629,649; May 24.
Anti-mouth-breathing device. R. B. Storms. 1,629,892; May 24.
Antrum burr. R. S. Binkley, L. E. Stutsman, and T. E. Grove. 1,630,239; May 24.
Apparatus for and method of applying tips to cores. B. K. Ford. 1,629,694; May 24.
Asbestos cloth, Apparatus for weaving. E. J. Trainor. 1,629,850; May 24.
Ash sifter. A. Papenfuss. 1,629,729; May 24.
Asphalt and producing the same, Cellular body of. J. H. Young. 1,630,103; May 24.
Automatic closure. N. A. and G. A. Stathes. 1,629,747; May 24.
Automatic gate. H. M. Hirsch and F. A. Harris. 1,629,700; May 24.
Automatic signal. W. E. Wulfhorst. 1,629,982; May 24.
Automatic switch. F. Aldendorff. 1,629,646; May 24.
Automobile body construction. H. Ford. 1,629,493; May 24.
Automobile driving mechanism. F. S. Hudson. 1,629,707; May 24.
Automobile frame and tubular crossbar therefor, Flexible. L. R. Smith. 1,630,036; May 24.
Automobile license plate and theft indicator. J. Nelson. 1,629,959; May 24.
Automobile license-plate holder. G. F. Edwards. 1,629,688; May 24.
Automobile license plates, Manufacturing. S. S. Adams. 1,629,944; May 24.
Automobile radiator casing. E. W. Seaholm. Des. 72,746; May 24.
Automobile signal casing. P. Vonfelt. Des. 72,743; May 24.
Automobile speedway device. C. F. Thuss. 1,630,229; May 24.
Automobile top and curtain construction. R. H. Stobbe. 1,629,935; May 24.
Automobiles, Automatic gear shift for. F. S. Cartwright. 1,629,654; May 24.
Automobiles, Baby chair for. M. J. Miller. 1,629,834; May 24.
Axle transmission mechanism, Rear-. N. L. Olson. 1,630,210; May 24.
Bag: See—
Tea bag.
Water bag.
Bag-filling machine. E. L. Bushman, K. L. Curtis, and J. Ward. 1,629,860; May 24.
Baking receptacle. H. G. Sibbald. 1,630,140; May 24.
Ball cock. J. A. Sherman and W. H. Sheppard. 1,629,645; May 24.
Ball-grinding machine. W. B. Gardiner. 1,629,864; May 24.
Ball mills and making same, Grate for. F. E. Marcy. 1,629,803; May 24.
Bar: See—
Grate bar.
Barometer. H. Long. Des. 72,715; May 24.
Bathroom fixture, Combination. J. H. Balmer. Des. 72,691; May 24.
Battery support. R. K. Jack. 1,629,665; May 24.
Bearing, Roller. D. W. Tietjen. 1,629,600; May 24.
Bed-spring fabric. W. H. Matthews. 1,630,196; May 24.
Bedstead end frame. C. A. Stuart. 72,738–40; May 24.
Belt buckle. M. Mabon. 72,716; May 24.
Belt fastener. L. J. Andersson. 1,629,983; May 24.
Beverage urn or similar article. B. Branston. 72,696–7; May 24.
Blast furnace. J. Kennedy. 1,629,508; May 24.
Blast-furnace structures, Elevator tower for. J. Kennedy. 1,630,088; May 24.
Block: See—
Blowtorch. H. L. Fish. 1,629,909; May 24.
Blowtorch and pot. J. D. Kelvie, jr. 1,629,628; May 24.
Boat, Flying. L. B. Sperry. 1,629,978; May 24.
Boiler: See—
Locomotive boiler.
Steam boiler.
Superheater boiler.
Boiler-cleaning device. F. Bowers. 1,629,675; May 24.
Boll-weevil exterminator. J. W. Kisselburg. 1,630,016; May 24.
Bolt mounting. G. H. Forsyth. 1,629,494; May 24.
Bolts, Means for anchoring. R. A. Mirzan. 1,629,880; May 24.
Bookkeeping form. H. W. Read. 1,630,073; May 24.
Book rack. P. W. Wipperman. 1,629,941; May 24.
Bottle cap. M. T. Hasek. 1,630,179; May 24.
Bottle-capping machine. O. N. Tevander. 1,629,599; May 24.
Bottle carrier for milk bottles, Sanitary. C. W. Hornaday. 1,629,871; May 24.
Bottle holder, Nursing-. P. Cardarella. 1,630,167; May 24.

ADJUDICATED PATENTS.

(C. C. A. N. Y.) The Simpson patent, No. 932,722, for ballast tanks for ships, claims 1, 2, and 3 Held invalid. (D. C.) Simpson v. Newport News Shipbuilding & Dry Dock Co., 18 F. (2d) 818; decree affirmed 18 F. (2d) 825.

(C. C. A. Ohio.) The Litchfield patent, No. 943,358, for pneumatic tire, claims 1, 2, and 4 Held invalid for want of invention. Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. v. Michelin Tire Co., 18 F. (2d) 216.

(C. C. A. Ohio.) The Hanna patent, No. 979,850, for distributing plate for locomotive stokers, claims 1 and 2 Held not infringed. Locomotive Stoker Co. v. Hanna Stoker Co., 18 F. (2) 257.

(C. C. A. Ohio.) The Lower patent, No. 1,363,333, for device for relieving pressure on fuel-advancing means of locomotive stokers, claims 1 and 2 Held valid and infringed and claims 8 and 9 not infringed. Locomotive Stoker Co. v. Hanna Stoker Co., 18 F. (2d) 257.

(C. C. A. Ohio.) The Lower patent No. 1,368,271, relating to locomotive stoker mechanism, claims 53 and 55 Held valid and infringed, Locomotive Stoker Co. v. Hanna Stoker Co., 18 F. (2d) 257.

(C. C. A. Ohio.) The Lower patent, No. 1,371,252, for screw conveyer in locomotive stokers, claim 7 Held valid and infringed and claim 3 not infringed. Locomotive Stoker Co. v. Hanna Stoker Co. 18 F. (2d) 257.

(C. C. A. Ohio.) The Lower patent, No. 1,379,306, for fuel conveyers for locomotives, claim 10 Held not infringed. Locomotive Stoker Co. v. Hanna Stoker Co., 18 F. (2d) 257.

(D. C. Minn.) The Hirschy patent, No 1,399,482, for clothes wringer, claim 1 Held valid and infringed. Hirschy Co. v. Wisconsin-Minnesota Gas & Electric Household Appliances Co., 18 F. (2d) 347.

(C. C. A. N. Y.) The Gosselin patent, No. 1,416,345, for bottle-filling machines, Held void for prior public use. (D. C.) Standard Automatic Mach. Co. v. Karl Kiefer Mach. Co., 18 F. (2d) 326; decree affirmed 18 F. (2d) 331.

(C. C. A. N. Y.) The Pennock patent, No. 1,418,203, for bottle-filling machines, Held void for prior public use. (D. C.) Standard Automatic Mach. Co. v. Karl Kiefer Mach. Co., 18 F. (2d) 326; decree affirmed 18 F. (2d) 331.

(D. C. Ill.) The Dupont patent, No. 1,465,076, for garment protector, Held invalid. Dupont v. Dennison Mfg. Co., 18 F. (2d) 317.

(D. C. Del.) The De Forest patents, Nos. 1,507,016 and 1,507,017, for radio signaling system, sustained against claim of priority of invention. Langmuir v. De Forest, 18 F. (2d) 345.

Photostat Copies.

In ordering photostat copies of United States and foreign patents, when only the number of the patent is given the whole patent, comprising specification and drawing, will be furnished, unless the order specifically states that the "specification only" or "drawing only" is required. Care should be taken in making out orders for foreign patents to give the year of the patent, as in old French and British patents the number will vary according to the year.

DECISIONS IN PATENT AND TRADE-MARK CASES.

Commissioner's Decision.

Ex parte Wetmore.

Decided March 2, 1927.

1. Rule 66—Pertinency of References—Knowledge and Skill of Counsel a Factor in Deciding Whether Obvious.

Under rule 66 the pertinency of references, if not obvious, must be clearly explained, but the Examiner may rely upon the knowledge and skill of counsel as one of the factors to be considered in deciding whether the pertinency is obvious.

2. Same—Same—Doubts as to Obviousness Resolved in Favor of Explanation of References.

Where the Examiner rejected all the claims, 22 in number, of each of four references, without pointing out the pertinency of the references, Held that doubts as to the obviousness of their pertinency should have been waived in favor of an explanation of the references.

3. Same—Explanation of Rejections.

Unless the reasons for rejecting are clearly obvious, the following explanations should be given: Where a claim is fully met in a reference, the Examiner should state this fact, rather than merely state the claim is rejected on the reference. Where a claim is denied as not presenting invention over a reference although defining some feature not found therein, the Examiner should note the fact that such feature is not found in the reference and explain briefly why the new feature does not amount to invention. Where two or more references are combined to anticipate a claim, the Examiner should state briefly and concisely just how the structures disclosed in the references are to be combined.

On petition.

Application for patent for process of forging articles of irregular shape and machines therefor.

Messrs. Erwin, Wheeler & Woolard for the applicant.

Kinnan, First Assistant Commissioner:

The applicant has petitioned that the "Commissioner vacate the unwarranted adverse ruling" of the Primary Examiner that the application is abandoned, and further direct him to comply with applicant's request—that the Examiner point out to the applicant just what specific features in the patented constructions are regarded as embodying the specific features set forth in the claims.

The record discloses that on October 13, 1925, the Examiner, in the first action upon the application, rejected all the claims, 22 in number, "on either" of four patents which were cited. Reference was made to a fifth patent as further illustrative of the art. On October 12, 1926, just within the year allowed by law for response, the applicant filed a request that, under rule 66, the Examiner point out the specific features in the references which were regarded as anticipating the specific features of the claims. No explanation as to what was disclosed in the patents cited or what was included in the claims and not found in the references or how the claims avoided the references was presented.

The Examiner on October 20, 1926, held the applicant's response not such as the condition of the case required, not a bona fide attempt to advance the case to a final action, a mere allegation that the Examiner had erred, and held the application, in consequence, abandoned. He further stated that—it is thought to be an unnecessary procedure to apply the references to twenty-two claims when as in this case the structures of the references are simple and easily understood and when the claims can easily be read upon the references.

Petitioner urges that the application is not abandoned and that the Examiner exceeded his jurisdictional powers in so holding. The petitioner stresses the failure of the Examiner to apply the references in the first instance to the claims and contends that such failure relieved the applicant from the necessity of pointing out, in his request for an application of the references, how the claims avoided the art cited. Reference is made by petitioner to rule 66, especially to that portion which states "the pertinence of the reference, if not obvious, must be clearly explained" as showing the Examiner failed to make his first action a proper one.

[1, 3] As noted in the rule, the pertinency of the reference must be explained if not obvious. In each application arises the question whether the pertinency of the art cited is, in fact, obvious without further explanation. Examiners rely, and justly so, upon the knowledge and skill of counsel as one of the factors to be considered in connection with the decision as to whether the pertinency of references to claims is obvious. It is necessary to do this in order that the enormous amount of work before the Office may be handled. It is believed, however, that doubts should be waived in favor of an explanation of the references. It is very seldom so large a group of claims can properly be rejected upon four patents in such a summary manner and without any explanation of the references. Where a claim is fully met in a reference, the Examiner should state this fact rather than merely state the claim is rejected on the reference. Where a claim is denied as not presenting invention over a reference, although defining some feature not found therein, the Examiner should note the fact that such feature is not found in the reference and explain briefly why the new feature does not amount to invention. Where two or more references are combined to anticipate a claim, the Examiner should state briefly and concisely just how the structures disclosed in the references are to be combined.

In the instant case it is believed the Examiner should have followed the foregoing plan, although the constructions disclosed in the application and the references are thought to be simple enough and readily enough understood for the applicant to have presented a proper response within the year. The structures are not so complex that the Examiner's failure to apply the references to the claims justified the applicant in failing to point out the novel features of his claims.

It has long been settled practice that a request for reconsideration is insufficient unless the alleged errors on the part of the Examiner are specifically pointed out. As was stated in the case of Durham v. Seymour, 71 O. G. 601, 6 App. D. C. 78—the burden is upon the applicant to establish, by proof that is clear and conclusive, the patentability of the invention as claimed.

So early as in the case of Ex parte Hahn, 96 O. G. 1429, the Commissioner held a mere request for reconsideration without distinctly and specifically pointing out the supposed errors in the Examiner's action not sufficient to entitle the applicant to a reconsideration, and that this procedure is reasonable and just and necessary to a proper disposition of the work of the Office. Substantially to the same effect is the holding in Ex parte Reiss, 137 O. G. 1712. In the case of Ex parte Line, 115 O. G. 1329, the Commissioner noted that—the Examiner in the first action treats the case in the light of the facts which are then before him. If no reasons are given why the original action should be modified or set aside, the reexamination necessarily becomes a mere formal proceeding, and no useful result can accrue therefrom.

In Ex parte Floyd, 152 O. G. 229, the Commissioner stated that in case—the reference shows nothing but the invention of the application and its pertinency is perfectly obvious, * * * it must be held that the Examiner's actions have been sufficient.

From the foregoing it is clear that the applicant did not make a proper response within the year to the first action of the Examiner, and the latter was justified in holding the application abandoned.

Since the filing of the petition, the applicant has filed, January 29, 1927, a communication setting forth in detail the reasons why he believes the claims define from the references. If such a communication had been filed within the year clearly enough the progress of the application would have been furthered and there would have been no holding of abandonment. Since, however, the proper response has now been made and since there was an apparent misunderstanding on the part of the applicant, the delay in prosecution is held to have been unavoidable and the application is revived. The Examiner will review his previous action upon the claims in view of the statement filed January 29, 1927.

The petition is denied.

IN RE CARR.

No 1,896. Decided February 7, 1927.

CLAIMS—RIGHT TO MAKE—ANTICIPATION.

Where a claim copied from P.'s patent included as one element a belt, and for this reason was rejected on the ground that it does not read on applicant's disclosure, and it was also rejected on the further ground that if readable on applicant's disclosure it is anticipated by the patent to C., Held that the term "belt" seems to be applicable to applicant's device quite as fairly as to P.'s, and that the claim is not anticipated.

[This claim is a copy of claim 6 of the patent to Peterson, No. 1,410,114.]

APPEAL from the Commissioner of Patents. Reversed.

Mr. W. C. Henderson and Mr. F. E. Dennett for Carr.

Mr. T. A. Hostetler for Commissioner of Patents.

Before MARTIN, Chief Justice, and ROBB and VAN ORSDEL, Associate Justices.

MARTIN, C. J.:

This is an appeal from concurrent decisions of the Patent Office rejecting claim 11 of appellant's application for Letters Patent for an improvement in concrete-road machines.

Appellant's device is a concrete-road-building machine, comprising a frame supporting various mechanisms, carried by four wheels propelled by a motor. The frame supports a tamper and at the rear carries a float or finisher also called a belt. This member is covered with cloth or canvas and is hinged to the frame so that it may be turned up when at rest. When in use it drags along the rear of the machine and at the same time is transversely moved across the concrete road by means of certain appliances secured to the frame which carries the finisher. The function of the float or finisher is to be moved crosswise over and in contact with the top of the cement mortar composing the road surface, while still plastic or unset, in order to put a smooth finish upon the cement by its wiping action. The float is connected at its ends with the frame in order to be subject to this straight crosswise pull as contrasted with any method of attachment which would permit of only a straight forward or backward movement when in action. The usefulness of the float as a wiper would be destroyed were it connected with the frame in any manner which would not permit of its transverse or crosswise movement. In the specifications the applicant refers to this member as "a belt or float or finisher which may be used to float or give a finish to the road surface," and also says,

It may be of any construction or material but I prefer a cloth material such as canvas and I prefer to move it back and forth across the road.

All of appellant's claims were allowed except claim 11 which reads as follows:

11. In a device of the class described, a portable frame, and means for propelling the same; and a belt supported at its ends by said frame so as to have engagement with the surface of a piece of plastic cement work over which said frame travels.

The references upon which this claim was rejected are Connelly [No. 1,238,497], August 28, 1917, and Peterson [No. 1,410,114], March 21, 1922. We think however that these references do not support the rejection. In Connelly's patent the drag is used for roughening slightly the surface of the tamped concrete roadway in order to render it better adapted for receiving paving bricks in seated position thereon. Connelly describes it as composed by preference of "a length of heavy leather belting," and states that—said drag is made in two or more sections having their adjacent ends disposed in overlapped relation to adapt the same for adjustment with other parts of the machine to suit the width of the roadway being acted upon.

It is manifest that Connelly's drag is not designed to function similarly to applicant's, and is so constructed as to be incapable of such action. It can not be reciprocated across a road but can only be used by dragging it in a single direction longitudinally with the road. The inventive conception of these parts in the several devices is not the same. The Peterson patent was granted March 21, 1922, upon an application filed June 19, 1920. It can not serve here as a legal anticipation of appellant's invention, as described and defined by the rejected claim, for the reason that both the filing date of Peterson's application and the date of the grant of his patent are subsequent to May 9, 1919, the date upon which appellant's application was filed. In this connection we may say that the term "belt" seems to be applicable to applicant's drag quite as fairly as to Peterson's. In neither device is there an endless belt, but in both alike the drag must be measurably taut in order to accomplish its purpose.

We think accordingly that claim 11 should be allowed, and the decision of the Commissioner of Patents is therefore reversed.

ADVERSE DECISIONS IN INTERFERENCE.

In interferences involving the indicated claims of the following patents final decisions have been rendered that the respective patentees were not the first inventors with respect to the claims listed:

Pat. 1,563,964, A. F. Carlson, Lasting machines, decided April 26, 1927, claims 21, 22, and 23.

Pat. 1,583,477, D. E. Lochman, Pile-wire knives, decided April 26, 1927, claim 1.

Final decision in interference has been rendered against the following trade-mark:

T. M. 148,406, Wheat flour, Fisher Flouring Mills Company, Seattle, Wash. Registered November 15, 1921. Decided May 12, 1927.

Disclaimer.

1,596,761.—Willis M. Peirce and Edmund A. Anderson, Palmerton, Pa. DIE-CASTING METAL. Patent dated August 17, 1926. Disclaimer filed May 20, 1927, by the assignee, The New Jersey Zinc Company.

Hereby disclaim from the scope of claims 1, 2 and 3 all zinc-base alloys except those containing aluminum and copper, or their equivalents, in such proportions that the alloys have such tensile strength, impact strength, ductility, fluidity, low shrinkage and freedom from hot-shortness as make them suitable for die-casting purposes; in which alloys magnesium in the percentages specified reduces intercrystalline oxidation and undesirable changes in physical properties upon aging.

Interference Notice.

U. S. PATENT OFFICE, Washington, May 19, 1927.

C. Schultz, his assigns or legal representatives, take notice:

An interference having been declared by this Office between the application of C. R. & W. J. Sutherland, 45 Hudson Ave., Albany, N. Y., for registration of a trade-mark and trade-mark registered April 4, 1916, No. 109,423, to C. Schultz, 32 Jay St., New York, N. Y., and a notice of such declaration sent by registered mail to said C. Schultz at the said address having been returned by the post office undeliverable, notice is hereby given that unless said C. Schultz, his assigns or legal representatives, shall enter an appearance therein within thirty days from the first publication of this order the interference will be proceeded with as in case of default. This notice will be published in the OFFICIAL GAZETTE for three consecutive weeks.

WM. A. KINNAN,
First Assistant Commissioner.

U. S. PATENT OFFICE, Washington, May 12, 1927.

Engineering Products Corporation, its assigns or legal representatives, take notice:

A cancellation proceeding having been instituted by this Office upon the application of O'Neil Duro Company, of Milwaukee, Wis., to effect the cancellation of the trade-mark registration of Engineering Products Corporation, Newport News, Va., No. 107,818, dated December 28, 1915, and the notice of such proceeding sent by registered mail to the said Engineering Products Corporation at the said address having been returned by the post office as undeliverable, notice is hereby given that unless said Engineering Products Corporation, its assigns or legal representatives, shall enter an appearance therein within 30 days from the first publication of this order the cancellation will be proceeded with as in case of default. This notice will be published in the OFFICIAL GAZETTE for three consecutive weeks.

PATENTS

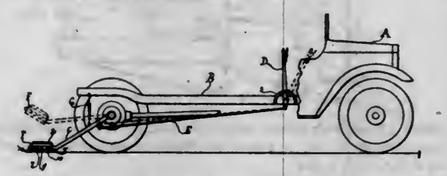
1,631,112. LOCOMOTIVE HEADLIGHT. CHRISTIAN AALBORG, Pittsburgh, Pa., assignor to Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Oct. 27, 1923, Serial No. 671,232. Renewed Apr. 27, 1927. 2 Claims. (Cl. 240—41.)

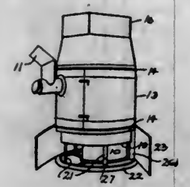
1. The combination with a reflector case, an apertured light-transmitting door and a lock for fastening said door to said case, of a hinge on said door, said hinge comprising retaining members rigidly attached to said door and perforated brackets rigidly attached to said case, eye-bolts slidably mounted in said brackets, springs mounted on said eye-bolts tending to hold said door and case together, means for confining said springs against said brackets and means in said eye-bolts for limiting the movement of said eye-bolts in said brackets when the door is opened.

1,631,113. BOND FOR ELASTIC GRINDING WHEELS AND METHOD OF APPLYING THE SAME. EDWARD ANDERSON, Dayton, Ohio, assignor to The A. A. Simonds-Dayton Company, Dayton, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Mar. 21, 1925. Serial No. 17,437. 6 Claims. (Cl. 51—280.)



1. The method of coating grains of abrasive material, which comprises dissolving shellac in a volatile solvent, putting the required quantities of the solution and granulated abrasive material into a mixer and mixing thoroughly, adding a desired quantity of linseed oil and continuing the mixing constantly until the solvent has evaporated.

1,631,114. POWER-PROPELLED RUNNER ATTACHMENT FOR MOTOR VEHICLES. GUSTAF B. ANDERSON, Minneapolis, Minn. Filed Nov. 25, 1924. Serial No. 752,097. 2 Claims. (Cl. 305—10.)

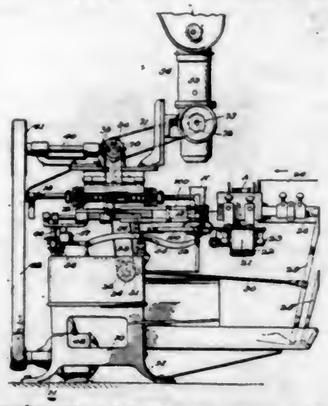


2. A traction chain of the character described consisting of links connected by pivots, certain of said links each comprising a pair of side bars connected by a transverse cross member, a lug arranged between the side bars and carried by one of the link pivots, and a spring arranged between the lug and said cross member.

1,631,115. GROUND BRAKE. CHARLES E. ATWOOD, Binghamton, N. Y. Filed Apr. 2, 1926. Serial No. 99,241. 3 Claims. (Cl. 188—5.)

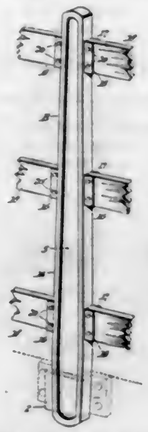
1. In a combination with a vehicle a bar having its inner end pivotally connected with the rear axle, resilient means for holding the outer end of the bar and shoes mounted therein normally off of the ground, a removable and reversible shoe mounted on the end of the bar for contact with the ground, means for adjustably applying the shoe to the ground surface by causing the same to contact with the ground with varied fixed degrees of pressure.

1,631,116. FURNACE. EDWARD BARELMAN, Guelph, Ontario, Canada. Filed May 20, 1925. Serial No. 31,721. 4 Claims. (Cl. 126—99.)



1. A furnace construction including a heating element, an outer casing secured about a portion of said element and forming therebetween a heating chamber, said casing having an opening in its lower section, and extending in a direction peripherally of the casing, and a closure plate of resilient flexible sheet material secured at one end rigidly and firmly along one end edge of the opening and biased through its resiliency to extend therefrom when free, divergingly away from the opening, and means to lock the free end portion of said closure plate releasably to the casing when said plate is sprung toward the opening to close the same.

1,631,117. WEIGHING MACHINE. GEORGE H. BENT, Battle Creek, Mich. Filed Feb. 26, 1924. Serial No. 695,298. 20 Claims. (Cl. 249—59.)



1. In an apparatus of the character described, receptacle filling means arranged in units spaced apart and each adapted to supply material to a group of receptacles, means for conveying groups of receptacles to said filling units at predetermined intervals, and means at one filling unit for weighing a group of filled receptacles independently of each other.

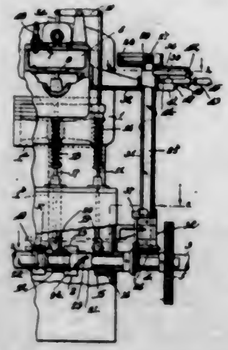
1,631,118. STAKE FOR TRUCKS, WAGONS, AND OTHER VEHICLES. WILLIAM BURKART, Denver, Colo. Filed June 29, 1925. Serial No. 40,404. 2 Claims. (Cl. 296—43.)

1. A hollow metal stake of the character described comprising two channel-like sheet metal members, which are secured one within the other with the open sides of the channels facing each other, thereby forming a stake having a double thickness of metal along opposite sides thereof, the overlapping side members of each side being slitted at intervals to release tongues which are bent out at right angles to said side members, thereby forming rail-receiving openings through the stake, said tongues being provided with bolt holes, the end portions of the members being bent over at right angles to close the ends of said stake.



1,631,119. PULVERIZED-FUEL FEEDER. HARRY RAYMOND COLLINS, Allentown, Pa., assignor to Fuller-Lehigh Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Mar. 2, 1922. Serial No. 540,641. 4 Claims. (Cl. 198—64.)

1. A feeder for pulverized fuel and the like comprising a main section having an inlet, a plurality of auxiliary cylindrical sections connected end to end to form a casing connected at one end to the main section, each auxiliary section being made up of plate members connected to each other along their adjacent lateral edges to complete the section and provided at their ends with means by which adjacent sections may be connected together, a feed screw extending through the casing and the main section, and means outside the casing for connecting the feed screw to a source of power.

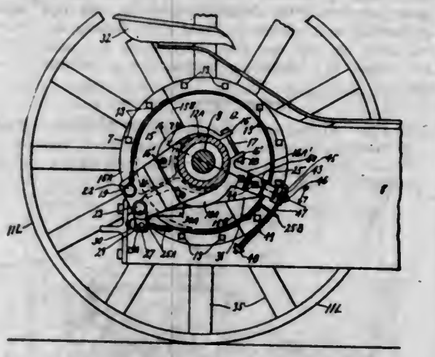
1,631,120. INTERNAL-COMBUSTION ENGINE. LEONARD H. DYER, New York, N. Y. Original application filed May 29, 1923, Serial No. 642,231, Patent No. 1,560,506. Divided and this application filed Aug. 27, 1925. Serial No. 52,719. 13 Claims. (Cl. 23—41.)

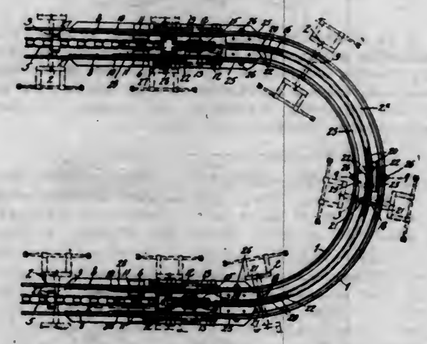


1. In a reversible internal combustion engine of the character described, the combination with an ignition control mechanism adjustable to time the ignition in the cylinder with reference to the position of the piston therein in respect to engine operation in one direction, of a shifting device controlling the valves to effect a reversal of the direction of engine operation automatically when the engine speed is slackened by a temporary cessation of the firing of the explosive mixture, and means controlled by the engine in rotating in the opposite direction for shifting the ignition mechanism to control the engine operation in said opposite direction in the same manner as in the original direction of operation.

1,631,121. INSECT DESTROYER. EDWARD ECKL, Los Angeles, Calif. Filed Aug. 9, 1926. Serial No. 128,308. 4 Claims. (Cl. 43—131.)

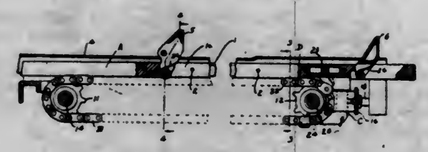
1. An insect destroyer comprising a metal casing filled with poison; a perforated cover forming a part of said casing, and a protecting-hood, fixed on said casing over said perforated cover in spaced relation thereto, said hood having openings to permit the entrance of insects between said hood and said cover.

1,631,122. TRACTOR BRAKE. THEOPHIL J. FETCHER, Norwalk, Wis. Filed Jan. 7, 1926. Serial No. 79,773. 2 Claims. (Cl. 188—77.)



1. In a tractor having a pair of drive wheels, a differential housing intermediate thereof, a hollow axle housing extending from the differential housing and tapering toward each wheel; a brake drum detachably securable to the inner part of each wheel hub, a semi-conical shell tapered to conform to the axle housing and detachably securable to the rearwardly and downwardly exposed part of each of said axle housings, a pair of parallel shafts arranged parallel to the center line of the axle housing and journaled in said shell, a contracting brake band removably fixed with one end to one of said shafts, a clevis on the outer end of the other shaft, a foot lever mounted on the latter shaft, a block pivotally retained between the arms of said clevis, said brake band threaded at its free end and adjustably retained in said block to contract the band, means for retaining said shafts the brake band and foot lever in selective positions relative to the position of the brake drum, each of said shells having a pair of rearwardly projecting webs in which said parallel shafts are journaled, said means for retaining the shafts in various positions consisting of collars slidable on said shafts and adapted to be fixed thereto and in contact with said webs when the brake band is alined with the drum, and a link connecting the shafts outwardly of the outer web.

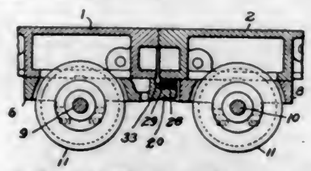
1,631,123. FIREPLACE. WALTER W. GUY, Oak Park, Ill., assignor to Colonial Fireplace Company, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed Aug. 7, 1925. Serial No. 48,823. 10 Claims. (Cl. 126—288.)



2. A fireplace having a pivoted damper, a pivoted lifter, a link connecting said lifter and damper, a pivoted operating member, a finger on said operating member, and a cam carried by said lifter in operative contact with said finger, said operating member having a handle portion extending downwardly and rearwardly and being accessible from in front of the fireplace.

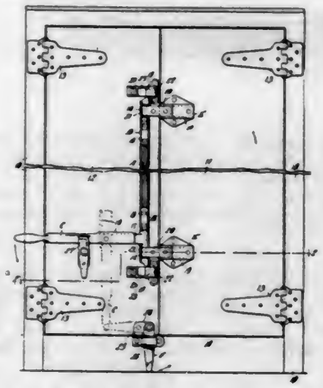
1,631,124. CONVEYER. WESLEY F. HALL, Matawan, N. J., assignor to The Hanson & Van Winkle Company, Newark, N. J., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed May 17, 1926. Serial No. 109,721. 7 Claims. (Cl. 198—20.)

1. In a conveyer of the class described, the combination comprising straight longitudinal conveyers, propelling means therefor, curved end conveyers, and propelling means therefor, the latter adapted to drive the end conveyers at a greater speed than the longitudinal conveyers.



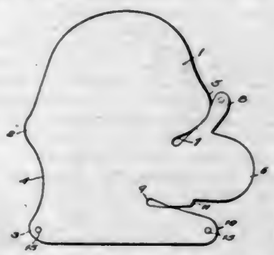
1,631,125. RECIPROCATING FEEDER. ALBERT W. HAPPEL, Toledo, Ohio, assignor, by mesne assignments, to The Uline Ice-Scoring Machine Company, Wilmington, Del., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Dec. 17, 1923. Serial No. 681,258. 12 Claims. (Cl. 198—24.)

1. The combination with a reciprocatory feeder, of an endless flexible member having oppositely travelling portions elongated in substantial parallelism to the direction of reciprocation of said feeder, drive elements carried by said flexible member upon opposite sides thereof, and a projection attached at one end to said feeder and extending across both of said oppositely traveling portions and having paired shoulders at opposite sides of each of said portions engageable by said drive elements to alternately actuate the feeder forward and back.



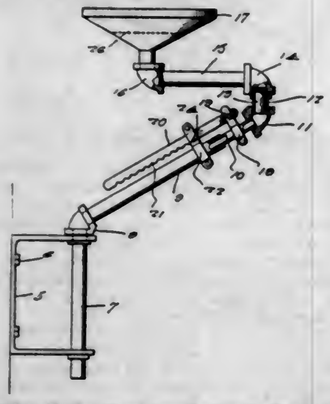
11. The combination with a reciprocatory feeder, of an endless chain for actuating said feeder, sprocket wheels for mounting said chain, one of which is movable to and from the other, a pair of fixed rods disposed upon opposite sides of the feeder, and a bearing member associated with the feeder having an intermediate portion constituting a bearing for said movable sprocket and having laterally spaced bearing portions slidably engaging said rods.

1,631,126. PLATE-GLASS SURFACING CAR. ALFRED L. HARRINGTON, Rosslyn Farms, Pa., assignor to Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Jan. 22, 1924. Serial No. 687,706. 6 Claims. (Cl. 51—240.)



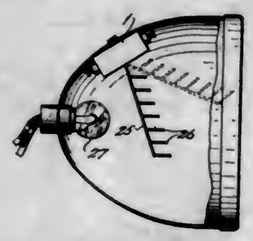
1. In combination with a pair of abutting cars having means for locking them together, of means for maintaining the top surfaces of the abutting ends flush, which comprises a plate or member on each car on each side thereof projecting forwardly and engaging a downwardly facing surface on the other car.

1,631,127. DOOR-OPERATING MECHANISM. STACY B. HASELTINE, Chicago, Ill., assignor, by mesne assignments, to W. H. Miner, Inc., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Feb. 6, 1924. Serial No. 691,019. 9 Claims. (Cl. 268—73.)



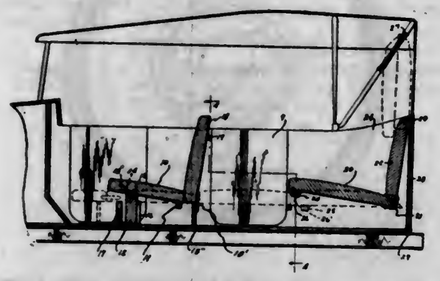
1. In a door operating mechanism, the combination with a member having a door opening and provided with a pair of pivoted doors; of a pair of keepers, one of which is secured to one of said doors within the confines thereof; and an operating shaft carried by the other door within the confines thereof and cooperating with said keepers to operate said doors.

1,631,128. HAND GUARD. CHARLES G. HINZE, Evanston, Ill. Filed Sept. 9, 1926. Serial No. 134,499. 4 Claims. (Cl. 2—20.)



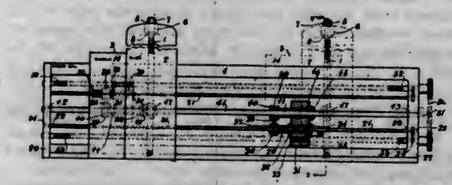
1. A hand guard comprising a body adapted to be placed upon the hand of a user, said body having extended portions at the wrist end at each side, and other extensions from said body at each side intermediate the ends, the last mentioned extension on one side of the body being a greater distance from the inner part of said body than its opposed extension, securing means connecting said extensions, said body having an integral extension on said one side constituting a thumb portion and strap, and projecting beyond the extensions at said side.

1,631,129. AUTOMOBILE OIL-DRAIN DEVICE. ELMER R. HISCOX, Chicago, Ill., and CHARLES I. HISCOX, La Crosse, Wis. Filed May 11, 1926. Serial No. 108,438. 3 Claims. (Cl. 221—69.)



1. A device of the class described including a funnel, a pipe leading from the funnel, a second pipe, a swivel joint between the first and second pipes, a third pipe telescoped over the second pipe, and a fourth pipe engaged with the third pipe, and means for rotatably mounting the fourth pipe.

1,631,130. SHIELD FOR AUTOMOBILE HEADLIGHTS. CARL PERRY HOEFLER, Syracuse, N. Y. Filed Apr. 28, 1924. Serial No. 709,506. 1 Claim. (Cl. 240—45.)

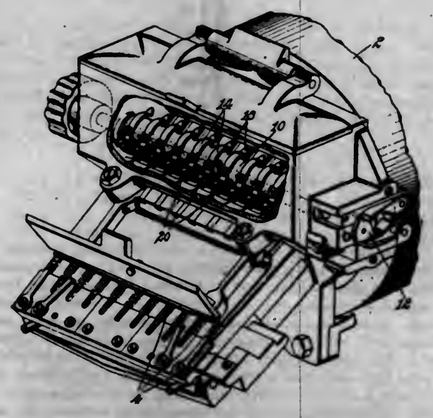


A glare eliminating device having in combination a casing, a solenoid in the upper part of said casing, a second solenoid in the lower part of said casing, cores in both of said solenoids, a shaft connecting said cores and passing thru the center thereof, pistons at both ends of said shaft, air chambers surrounding said pistons, small external openings in said chambers, adjusting pins regulating the size of said openings, an arm projecting laterally from said shaft, a pin at the end of said projection, fingers slidingly engaging said pin, a rod extending from said fingers, a pin rotatably attaching said rod to said casing, an end of said rod projecting from said casing, a transparent plate mounted upon said projecting end, vanes rising at an angle from said plate, a third solenoid mounted in said casing opposite to said projecting rod, a core for said third solenoid, a link attached to said core, a dog controlled by said link, a spring attached to the rear end of said dog, teeth projecting from said shaft and engageable by said dog, a system of wiring whereby said third solenoid may be thrown in parallel with either of said first or second solenoids, a dash switch controlling said wiring system, and means for attaching said casing to the housing of a headlight.

1,631,131. VEHICLE BODY. ALBERT HOELDTKE, Detroit, Mich. Filed Jan. 22, 1923. Serial No. 614,154. 2 Claims. (Cl. 155—7.)

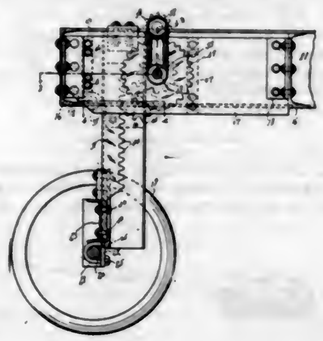
1. In combination with a vehicle body having sides and a back mounted thereon and provided with a floor, a comparatively thin vertically extending supporting member mounted on said floor extending transversely thereof; a seat back; a hinge secured at one end to the rear surface of said seat back adjacent the lower edge thereof, the opposite end being secured to the rear surface of said supporting member adjacent the upper edge thereof, said seat back being normally upwardly projecting and slightly inclined to the plane of said supporting member and adapted for swinging rearwardly into horizontal position; a supporting bracket mounted on the sides of said body adjacent said support and positioned forwardly thereof; a seat forming member adapted normally for engaging adjacent its rear edge said supporting bracket said seat forming member being forwardly and upwardly inclined; a supporting member hingedly connected to said seat forming member adjacent the forward edge thereof and adapted for supporting said seat forming member in inclined position, said seat forming member being adapted for movement into engagement at its rearward end with said first-mentioned supporting member, said hingedly connecting supporting member being adapted for movement into horizontal alignment with said seat forming member; means mounted on said floor for supporting the forward end of said seat forming member upon movement of said hingedly mounted supporting member into horizontal position; and means for supporting said hingedly mounted supporting member in horizontal position.

1,631,132. METAL-PLANING MACHINE. CHARLES G. JOHANNESMEYER, Glendale, Ohio, assignor to The Liberty Machine Tool Company, Hamilton, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed July 20, 1925. Serial No. 44,771. 3 Claims. (Cl. 90—49.)



1. In combination with a metal planing machine, a cross rail suitably mounted, a saddle slidably mounted on said cross rail, a slide slidably mounted on said saddle, a longitudinal shaft mounted on said cross rail, a manually operative lever fixed to said shaft, a stationary screw fixed to said slide, a nut gear threaded to said screw and rotatably mounted in said saddle and secured against vertical movement therein, a threaded member fixed to said longitudinal shaft, a nut threaded to said threaded member, a driving shaft rotatably mounted in said cross rail, means for rotating said driving shaft, a gear keyed to said driving shaft and adapted to operatively connect with said nut gear whereby operation of said manually operative lever is adapted to mesh said driving shaft gear with said nut gear for elevating and lowering said slide relative to said saddle.

1,631,133. MOUTH CLEANING AND MASSAGING DEVICE. ERWIN J. JONES, St. Paul, Minn. Filed Aug. 9, 1926. Serial No. 128,025. 1 Claim. (Cl. 15—244.)



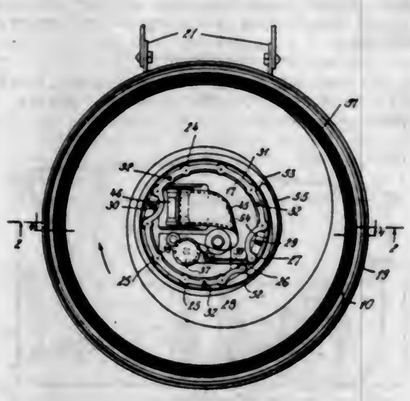
In a cleaning device of the class described, a handle, a porous sponge pad secured at one end of the handle and adapted to be used in a human mouth said pad end of the handle having a longitudinal rib extended at both ends so as to form two opposite projections, said spongy head having a longitudinal cavity receiving said rib and the adjacent part of the handle, and said cavity having pockets in its ends for snugly receiving the said projections of the ribs.

1,631,134. TACK-SUPPLYING MECHANISM. BERNHARDT JORGENSEN, Beverly, Mass., assignor to United Shoe Machinery Corporation, Paterson, N. J., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Dec. 29, 1922. Serial No. 609,666. 11 Claims. (Cl. 1—6.)

3. In tack-supplying mechanism, the combination with a raceway for tacks, of means for dislodging misplaced tacks from the raceway, said means comprising a rotatable carrier and a tack-clearing finger of resilient material on said carrier so formed as to enter the raceway and to engage and dislodge misplaced tacks and arranged to extend in the general direction of the length of the raceway when in tack-dislodging position, said finger being yieldable toward the axis of the carrier in response to abnormal resistance of the tacks to its movement along the raceway.

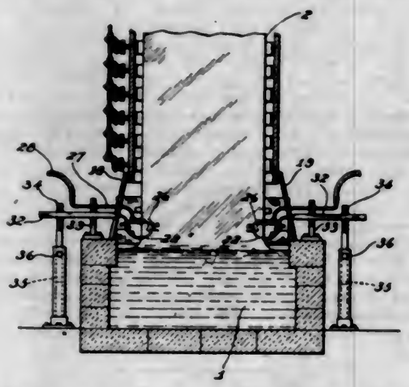
1,631,135. LANDING AND RAISING GEAR FOR SEMI-TRAILERS. IRVING H. JUDD, Detroit, Mich., assignor to Whitehead and Kales, Inc., River Rouge, Mich., a Corporation of Michigan. Filed Aug. 24, 1925. Serial No. 52,245. 13 Claims. (Cl. 280—33.1.)

1. In a semi-trailer construction, a pair of ground engaging wheels, means adjustably supporting said wheels, and adjusting means therefor, including a rack, a planetary gearing and a train of gears connecting said rack and planetary gearing.



1,631,136. VANITY CASE. NATHAN KASDAN, Bronx, N. Y. Filed Sept. 25, 1925. Serial No. 58,571. 4 Claims. (Cl. 132—83.)

1. A vanity box comprising, two telescopic sections, a front section and a rear section, the rear section consisting of a disk portion and a cylindrical portion, the front section consisting of a ring portion and a cylindrical portion, a mirror for closing the opening in the ring portion, and means holding the mirror in position against the ring portion, each cylindrical portion being provided with holes adapted to register when the two sections are turned relatively to each other, and cooperating means on the cylindrical portions for detachably holding the sections of the box together.



1,631,137. FILM-FEEDING APPARATUS. FORREST JAMES KINCADE, New York, N. Y., assignor, by mesne assignments, to Charles I. Link, Denver, Colo. Filed June 11, 1924. Serial No. 719,240. 11 Claims. (Cl. 88—18.7.)

1. In a film-feeding apparatus for feeding a film strip from the center of a coil, a plurality of circularly spaced friction-reducing rollers constituting a bearing about which the film coil rotates, and a guard member for bridging the spaces between a plurality of the rollers for preventing the entrance of the film therebetween, said guard member having a film loop-removing pocket formed therein by which a loop formed in the film strip is removed as it passes around the exterior of said member.

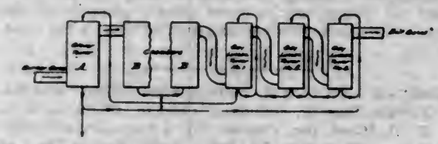
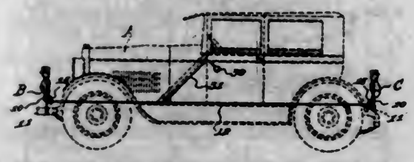
1,631,138. GLASS-DRAWING APPARATUS. WALTER G. KOUPAL and JOSEPH S. GREGORIUS, Mount Vernon, Ohio, assignors to Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Oct. 14, 1926. Serial No. 141,563. 4 Claims. (Cl. 49—17.)



1. The combination with apparatus arranged to draw a glass sheet from an open pool of molten glass, of means for preventing inward movement of the edge of the sheet in said pool, comprising a shielding bowl above the glass, but closely adjacent thereto, and having a slot extending inward from its edge and fitting around the edge of the sheet, cooling means for the bowl, and reflecting members projecting outward from the bowl on each side of the slot.

1,631,139. PROCESS FOR THE MANUFACTURE OF SULPHURIC ACID. ELDON L. LARISON, Anaconda, Mont. Filed Mar. 3, 1926. Serial No. 92,004. 6 Claims. (Cl. 23—167.)



1. In the operation of a sulphuric acid plant comprising a denitrating tower and an oxids of nitrogen recovery tower the steps which consist in delivering denitrated acid from the denitrating tower to the inlet of the oxids of nitrogen recovery tower, returning a portion of the acid flowing from the oxids of nitrogen recovery tower to the inlet thereof, and delivering the remainder of the acid flowing from said oxids of nitrogen recovery tower to said denitrating tower.

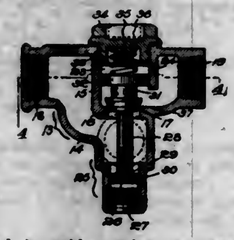
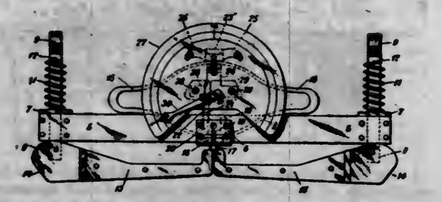
1,631,140. TRAFFIC SIGNAL FOR VEHICLES. JOHN E. LOCK, Lowell, Mass. Filed Sept. 14, 1926. Serial No. 135,376. 1 Claim. (Cl. 116—51.)

A traffic signal for vehicles comprising front and rear similar signaling units, a rotatably journaled rod extending longitudinally of the vehicle and operatively connected with both of said signaling units, a shaft extending along the steering column of the vehicle, an arm carried by the shaft positioned normally between the knees of the operator and adapted to be oscillated in either direction by swaying action of the knees, connecting means adapted to transmit the oscillation from the shaft to the rod, and means to adjust the steering column shaft longitudinally for the accommodation of drivers of different physiques.



1,631,141. SURFACE CONDENSER. RUDOLF LORENZ, Essen, Germany, assignor to Fried. Krupp Aktiengesellschaft, Essen-on-the-Ruhr, Germany. Filed July 17, 1925. Serial No. 44,403, and in Germany Aug. 14, 1924. 5 Claims. (Cl. 257—37.)

1. A surface condenser, comprising a nest of spaced condensing tubes, means for supplying a cooling liquid and bringing it into contact with the tubes, and filling bodies of large surface filling the spaces between said tubes.



1,631,142. WATER-SUPPLY SYSTEM AND VALVE THEREFOR. JOHN HOWARD MASTERS, Dayton, Ohio, assignor to The Valle-Kimes Company, Dayton, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed June 12, 1920. Serial No. 388,604. 9 Claims. (Cl. 251—146.)

1. In a water check device for a water supply system, a valve casing having a web therein, a portion of which web is transverse to the axis of the valve and is provided with a valve opening, and a portion of which web, constituting an upward continuation of said transverse portion, extends lengthwise the stem of said valve and constitutes a prolonged, substantially cylindrical, receiving and guiding portion at one side of the valve, a valve seated in said opening and having upon its stem above said valve opening a piston-like portion received and guided by said lengthwise extending portion of said web, and means to permit water of the system to pocket between the said piston-like portion and the valve casing.

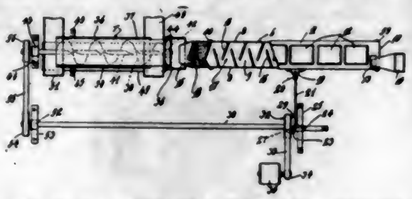
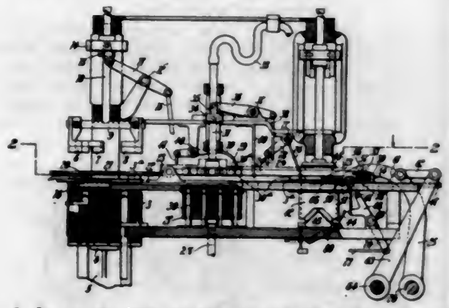
1,631,143. DEFLECTION DYNAMOMETER. EDGAR M. MATTHEWS, Jamaica, N. Y., and JAMES A. CARR, East Orange, N. J., assignors to American Telephone and Telegraph Company, a Corporation of New York. Filed Nov. 6, 1926. Serial No. 146,777. 8 Claims. (Cl. 265—1.)



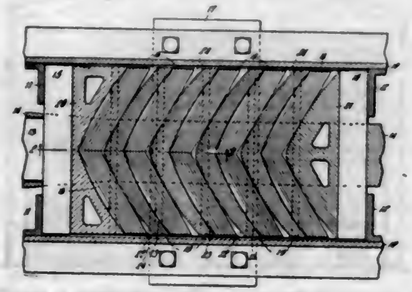
1. A deflection dynamometer comprising a beam, a spring longitudinally associated with said beam, hook members at each end of the beam for engaging a strand, means associated with the hook members to cause said strand to be deflected out of line, and means controlled by said spring for indicating the amount of such deflection.

1,631,144. METHOD AND MEANS FOR BAKING BRICK. JAMES MCLAUGHLIN, Dolton, Ill., assignor to Richard Fitzgerald, Chicago, Ill. Filed Jan. 11, 1926. Serial No. 80,627. 8 Claims. (Cl. 25—132.)



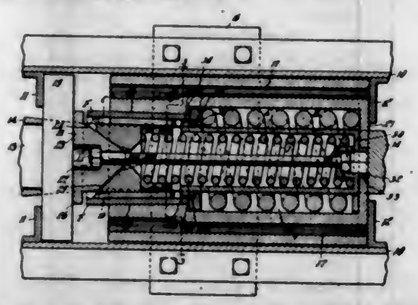
4. A scoving for baking brick comprising a plurality of loosely associated sheets of heat-retaining material placed over a stack of bricks to be baked and resting thereon.

1,631,145. METHOD OF MAKING A RICE PRODUCT. JESSE F. NEWMAN, Los Angeles, Calif. Filed Oct. 28, 1925. Serial No. 65,330. 5 Claims. (Cl. 99—11.)



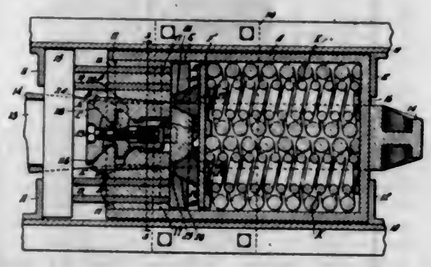
1. The method of making a rice product consisting in heating unhulled popping rice having no more than its natural water content to a temperature sufficient to cause the steam generated within the hulls of the rice to burst open the hulls.

1,631,146. ENVELOPE MACHINE. ABRAHAM NOVICK, Brooklyn, N. Y., assignor to F. L. Smithe Machine Company, Incorporated, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Sept. 15, 1921. Serial No. 500,796. 16 Claims. (Cl. 93—61.)



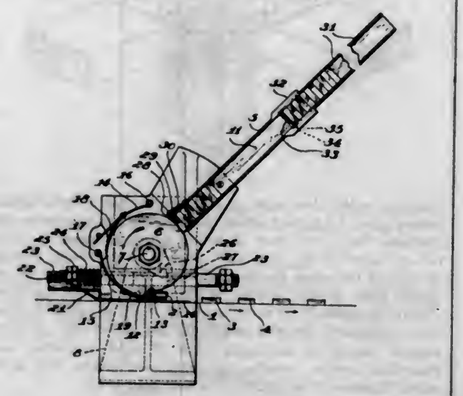
1. In an envelope machine having three stations, the combination of instrumentalities arranged and operating in one line for advancing the envelope blank from the first station to the third station comprising reciprocating means moving in one direction for advancing the blank from the first to the second station, and other reciprocating means, independent of said first means, moving in the opposite direction for receiving the blank from the first reciprocating means and then reversing its direction of travel for continuing the advancement of the blank to the third station.

1,631,147. SHOCK-ABSORBING MECHANISM. JOHN F. O'CONNOR, Chicago, Ill., assignor, by mesne assignments, to W. H. Miner, Inc., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed May 5, 1924. Serial No. 711,027. 10 Claims. (Cl. 213—30.)



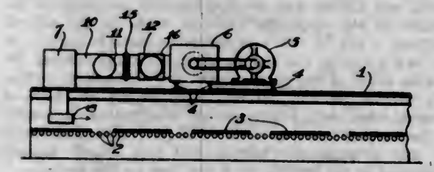
1. In a shock absorbing mechanism, the combination with pressure-transmitting means; of a plurality of groups of flexible plate springs of V-shape coacting therewith; and a plurality of substantially V-shaped spacing members intermediate the adjacent groups of springs, said springs and spacers being constructed so that the springs will be flexed along a plurality of lines spaced transversely of the longitudinal axis of the mechanism.

1,631,148. FRICTION SHOCK-ABSORBING MECHANISM. JOHN F. O'CONNOR, Chicago, Ill., assignor to W. H. Miner, Inc., Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed May 7, 1925. Serial No. 28,534. 16 Claims. (Cl. 213—33.)



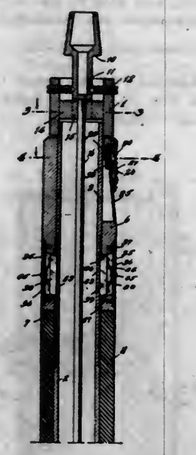
1. In a friction shock absorbing mechanism, the combination with column-load-sustaining member; of a plurality of friction elements disposed at one end of said member, all of said elements being movable as a unit during a predetermined portion of the compression stroke; means co-operating with the other end of said member for arresting movement of certain of said elements after a predetermined compression of the mechanism and permitting the remaining friction elements to be moved relatively thereto; a follower, said follower and members being movable relatively toward and from each other; combined restoring and cushioning spring means; and lateral pressure creating means co-operating with said friction elements for pressing the same into intimate frictional contact upon relative approach of said follower and member.

1,631,149. FRICTION SHOCK-ABSORBING MECHANISM. JOHN F. O'CONNOR, Chicago, Ill., assignor to W. H. Miner, Inc., Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Aug. 26, 1926. Serial No. 131,588. 4 Claims. (Cl. 213—33.)



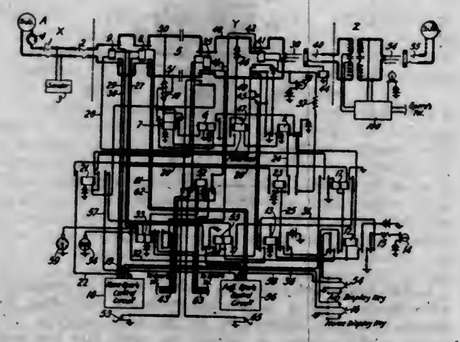
1. In a friction shock absorbing mechanism, the combination with a follower acting member and a follower relatively movable toward and away from each other; of a plurality of relatively stationary friction plates anchored to said member against longitudinal movement, but responsive to laterally applied pressure; of a main spring resistance; wedge acting means adapted to apply lateral pressure to said friction plates; pressure transmitting elements interposed between the friction plates and extending beyond said wedge acting means and interposed between the follower and main spring resistance; and pressure equalizing means interposed between the spring resistance and wedge acting means and co-operating with the pressure transmitting elements.

1,631,150. BLANK-FEEDING DEVICE. WILLIAM OWEN, Pittsburgh, Pa., assignor to Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed July 9, 1925. Serial No. 42,513. 4 Claims. (Cl. 198—30.)



1. In combination with a carrier for glass blanks, which are to be heated, a wheel mounted above the carrier for rotation in the direction of travel of the carrier, said wheel having at its edge a feeding shoulder with the peripheral surface of the wheel to the rear of the shoulder formed on a curve which gradually approaches the center of rotation of the wheel, a chute leading to the peripheral surface of the wheel and adapted to feed the glass blanks carried thereby to position for engagement by said shoulder, means for giving the wheel a movement of rotation such as to deliver the blanks from the chute to the carrier at the desired intervals, guide means in opposition to the periphery of the wheel for maintaining the blanks from the chute in contact with the wheel until they reach the lower side thereof, a plate mounted upon the carrier in position to receive the blanks from the wheel, and means for reciprocating said plate at timed intervals.

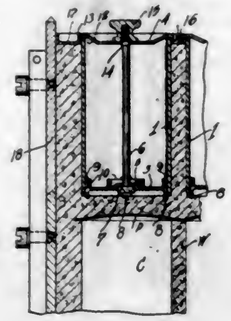
1,631,151. CONTROL APPARATUS FOR LEERS. JOSEPH CARL PARKINSON, Tarentum, Pa., assignor to Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Oct. 14, 1926. Serial No. 141,545. 4 Claims. (Cl. 49—46.)



1. In combination with a tunnel leer, conduit means lying in the outlet end of the leer and directed longitudinally thereof, and blower means connected therewith and arranged so as to cause a flow of air through the conduit in either direction.

1,631,152. PLUG FOR OIL WELLS. BENJAMIN E. PARRISH, Honey Grove, Tex., assignor of one-half to D. W. Maurer, Dallas, Tex. Filed Aug. 11, 1925. Serial No. 49,536. 2 Claims. (Cl. 166—13.)

1. A well plug or similar appliance comprising a tubular body, an expansible packing thereon, a member at one end of the tubular body engaging the packing, a member slidable on the tubular body and engaging the other end of the packing to expand the latter by convergent movement of said members, means for applying a positive upward pull to expand the packing, clamping means on the member last mentioned to engage a well bore or casing and lock said member against upward movement, clamping means intermediate said member and the tubular body to prevent downward movement of the body in relation to said member and thus retain the packing in expanded position, a valve for closing the passage through the tubular body, a spring tending to close the valve, and means normally retaining the valve in open position.



1,631,153. TRUNK CIRCUITS. GEORGE H. PETERSON, East Orange, N. J., assignor to American Telephone and Telegraph Company, a Corporation of New York. Filed Feb. 25, 1926. Serial No. 90,644. 9 Claims. (Cl. 179—27.)

1. In a telephone system, a plurality of operators' positions, a trunk circuit incoming to one of said positions and terminating in a plug, a trunk signal, means at each operator's position operable by the operator thereat in response to said signal, a telephone set at each operator's position, and means automatically responsive to the insertion of said plug into an outgoing line jack for disconnecting the talking conductors of said trunk circuit and for connecting said plug to the telephone set of that operator's position which has responded to said signal.

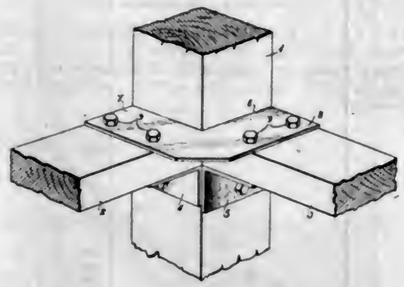
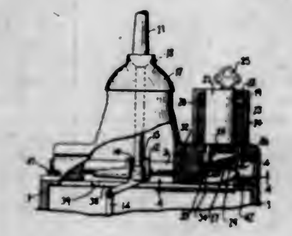
1,631,154. MOLDING CORE. JOHN C. POETZ, Leonia, Idaho. Filed Dec. 21, 1925. Serial No. 76,584. 4 Claims. (Cl. 25—131.)



1. The combination with a core body having an open top and bottom, of removable top and bottom plates, a tie bolt and nut connecting said plates, and means for retaining in position the clamped top and bottom plates.

1,631,155. ART OF HEELING SHOES. JOSEPH H. POPE, Hamilton, Mass., assignor to United Shoe Machinery Corporation, Paterson, N. J., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed June 16, 1920. Serial No. 389,397. 6 Claims. (Cl. 12—147.)

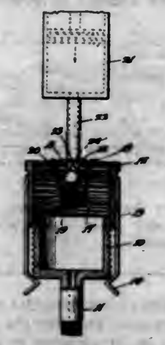


1. The method of attaching heels to shoes by means of nails having each a radial longitudinally extending fin spaced from the extremities of the nails opposite the points, which consists in driving the nails into the heel and shoe under the guidance of the fins to position said nails angularly about their axes and until said fins are in proximity to the tread end of the heel, and forcing a toplift upon the projecting extremities of the nails.

1,631,156. DERRICK. CLARK E. RANNEY, Tulsa, Okla. Filed Aug. 9, 1926. Serial No. 128,238. 1 Claim. (Cl. 20—0.5.)

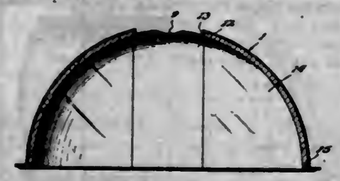
The combination with a derrick having a rectangular corner post, of a pair of independent angle members, the vertical flange of each member being secured to said corner post along one side thereof with said flanges occupying the same horizontal plane when attached to the corner post, girths resting on and supported by the horizontal extensions of said members, and a brace formed of a continuous piece of relatively flat metal and of angle shaped formation overlying both of said members, and fastening devices passing through said girths, the horizontal flanges of said members and said brace.

1,631,157. TRANSMISSION LOCK. WALTER M. REASON, Pontiac, Mich., assignor to Elizabeth Ballamos, Pontiac, Mich. Filed Dec. 14, 1922. Serial No. 606,948. 2 Claims. (Cl. 70—126.)



1. A transmission lock including a pair of operating members for the transmission, the said members being each provided with a notch adapted to be brought to opposed relation when in the neutral position, a lock comprising a longitudinally movable non-rotatable portion, a rotatable portion therein operable by a key, a locking block pivotally secured within the transmission casing and having lugs thereon adapted to engage in the notches of the operating members when in the neutral position, a pin on the longitudinally movable portion of the lock engaging the locking block, a spring holding the locking block in engagement with the said pin, a locking bolt carried by the non-rotatable portion of the lock adapted when extended to prevent longitudinal movement of the lock, the arrangement being such that rotation of the key retracts the locking bolt and allows upward movement of the locking block and lock by the spring.

1,631,158. GREASE CUP. JAMES WILLIAM RHOADES, Harris, Mo. Filed Apr. 30, 1924. Serial No. 710,080. 1 Claim. (Cl. 184—38.)



In a grease cup, a cap having a top wall provided with a filling opening, crossed U-shaped cage members having the ends thereof inserted through the wall and formed with lugs connecting said members with the cap to form a cage depending from said top wall, a spring confined within the cage, and a valve normally held by the spring to close said opening.

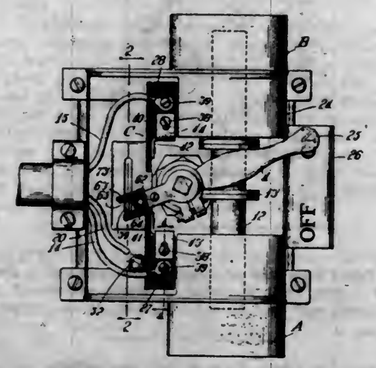
1,631,159. HEADLIGHT REFLECTOR. ERNEST J. RICHARDS, Mineral Point, Wis. Filed Aug. 19, 1926. Serial No. 130,288. 2 Claims. (Cl. 240—41.)

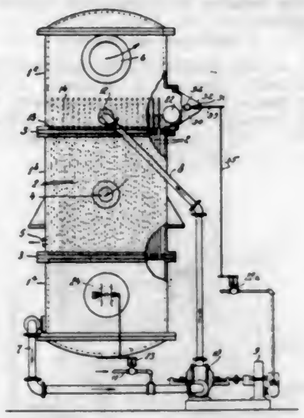


1. A reflector comprising a reflector shell having a portion of its reflecting surface offset forwardly to provide a reflecting area of substantially uniform width and extending vertically of said surface and whereby to provide shoulders at the opposite sides of said area, and light transmitting and modifying elements of substantially the form of quadrants of a hollow sphere disposed against the said surface of the shell at the opposite side of the light reflecting surface portion thereof and engaging against the said shoulders.

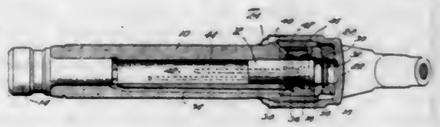
1,631,160. HOPPER CONSTRUCTION. FREDERICK N. ROSS, Detroit, Mich., assignor to The Patent Button Company, Waterbury, Conn., a Corporation of Connecticut. Filed Aug. 26, 1925. Serial No. 52,561. 6 Claims. (Cl. 112—118.)

1. In a hopper construction, the combination of a hopper support, and a hopper having a flanged outer rim arranged to abut against the hopper support, said hopper provided with substantially radial agitating ribs each having an enlarged portion at the outer end adjacent the flanged outer rim of the hopper and extending flush with the face of the hopper to prevent the contents of said hopper from wedging in between the hopper rim and hopper support.

1,631,161. LIMIT SWITCH FOR VALVE-OPERATING MECHANISM. EDWARD A. RUSSELL, Chicago, and PAUL B. PARKS, Oak Park, Ill., assignors to Vapor Car Heating Company, Inc., Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of New York. Filed Sept. 5, 1925. Serial No. 54,799. 8 Claims. (Cl. 137—139.)



1. The combination with a valve comprising a rotary member, an operating lever connected with the rotary member, and a pair of solenoids for alternately swinging the lever in one direction or the other, of a limit switch comprising an insulating base, three separate electric terminal plates mounted on said base, a pair of similar fixed contacts carried by two of the plates each of these plates also being electrically connected with one terminal of one of the solenoids, an oscillatable member pivoted on the third plate and carrying contact members to alternately engage with the fixed contacts as the member is oscillated, a second operating lever pivoted on the base and connected with the first mentioned operating lever, and a spring mounted between portions of the second operating lever and oscillatable member whereby the spring will be stressed as the lever is moved to a position of alignment therewith, and will thereafter operate to snap the member from one fixed contact to the other.



1,631,162. VERTICAL FILM-TYPE EVAPORATOR. LESLIE EARL SEBALD, Ridgewood, N. J., assignor to The Griscom-Russell Company, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Apr. 25, 1924. Serial No. 709,028. 6 Claims. (Cl. 257—224.)

1. An evaporator of the class described comprising a plurality of heat transferring tubes, means for bringing a heating medium into heat exchanging relation with the exterior of the tubes, a liquid chamber adjacent the upper ends of said tubes, wherein a quantity of liquid is maintained submerging the said tube ends, vapor tubes concentric with said heating tubes and extending into the open ends thereof to thereby constitute an inlet passage for the water through the annular space between the outer wall of the vapor tube and the inner wall of the heating tube, means for automatically maintaining a substantially constant liquid level in said chamber to thereby insure a correspondingly constant rate of delivery of liquid to said heating tubes, said means including a float in said liquid chamber, a valve operated by said float, a collection chamber below said liquid chamber, connections between said liquid chamber and said collection chamber, a variable speed pump in the connecting line between said collecting chamber and said liquid chamber, and connections between said float controlled valve and said pump, and means whereby the said constant liquid level may be controlled to occur at a desired height in the shell including a weight adjustably associated with said float to vary the submergence thereof.

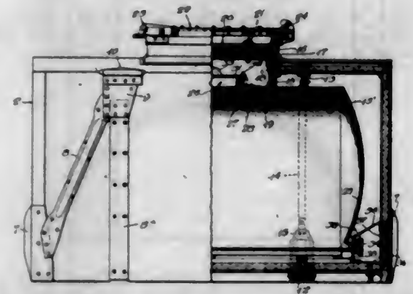
1,631,163. FLUID-PRESSURE-ACTUATED TOOL. ERNEST H. SHAFF, Grand Haven, Mich., assignor to William H. Keller, Inc., Grand Haven, Mich., a Corporation of Michigan. Filed Oct. 27, 1920, Serial No. 419,793. Renewed Oct. 21, 1926. 3 Claims. (Cl. 121—12.)

1. A pressure-fluid-actuated tool comprising, in combination, a cylinder having a piston reciprocable therein, a valve casing located at the rear end of the cylinder in alinement with the piston chamber, a valve member slidable in said casing and adapted to receive the rear end of the piston, said valve having large and small pressure areas formed on its outer periphery, and means for automatically shifting the valve member comprising a passage formed in the valve casing exteriorly of the valve member and communicating at one end with the small pressure area of the valve member and at its other end with the interior of the cylinder forwardly of the valve member, and a second passage formed in the rear end of the cylinder and communicating at its rear end with a source of pressure fluid supply and opening at its forward end into the piston chamber adjacent the forward end of the first mentioned passage, said passages at their adjacent ends being arranged to be controlled by the piston.



1,631,164. SECTIONAL RAILROAD CAR. ALFRED H. SMITH, Chappaqua, N. Y.; Maude Emery Smith and Emery Holland Smith, executors of Alfred Holland Smith, deceased, assignors to The Less Carload Lots Company, Wilmington, Del., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Sept. 13, 1922. Serial No. 587,982. 11 Claims. (Cl. 105—366.)

1. The combination with a support, a plurality of containers positioned side by side thereon, a door in one of the vertical walls of each container, a plurality of independent members carried solely by the support, one for each container, and adapted to project above the floor of the support for locking the door of each container independently of the other doors when the containers stand on the support.

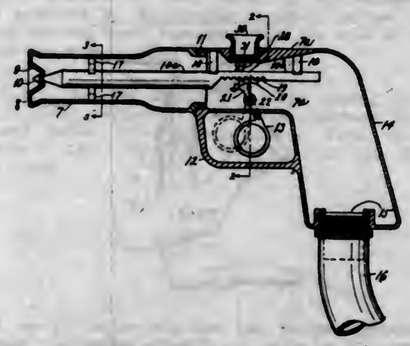
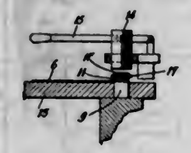
1,631,165. SECTIONAL REFRIGERATOR CAR. ALFRED H. SMITH, Chappaqua, and EDWARD G. MINER, Rochester, N. Y.; said Miner assignor to Pfaudler Company, Rochester, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Oct. 3, 1922, Serial No. 592,144, and in Canada Aug. 17, 1922. 4 Claims. (Cl. 220—9.)



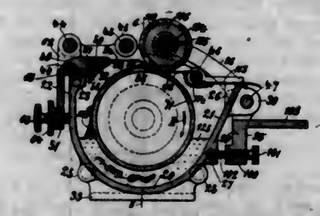
1. A shipping container having spaced top, bottom, end and side walls, suitable insulation between said spaced walls, a man hole in one of said walls and a cover for the same, a receptacle fixedly secured within said container, an inlet for said receptacle registering with said man hole, an outlet for said receptacle, a port in a wall of the container registering with said outlet, and a cover for the inlet port of the receptacle.

1,631,166. SELF-CLOSING STOPCOCK. EARL V. SPRAGUE, Davenport, Iowa, assignor of one-third to Everett C. Wilson and one-third to Harry J. Hilson, Davenport, Iowa. Filed Mar. 14, 1923. Serial No. 625,132. 3 Claims. (Cl. 251—149.)



3. A device of the class described, comprising a body member having a tapered bore and a valve-member of corresponding shape rotatable therein, said body and valve members having interacting elements capable of automatically unseating the valve member upon an initial rotary movement thereof, by causing a limited movement thereof lengthwise of its seat; and a tension device, adapted to return said valve to its original rotative position after being rotated, and also capable of causing a reseating of said valve-member, after the same has been unseated.

1,631,167. NOZZLE. RUSSELL THERAU, St. Paul, Minn. Filed Dec. 14, 1925. Serial No. 75,278. 1 Claim. (Cl. 299—131.)



A nozzle resembling a pistol in form and having a hollow body, barrel and hilt and a connection for a supply hose on the hilt, and the muzzle of the barrel having a reduced outlet opening, a valve arranged at said opening and having a rod slidable but not rotatable in the barrel and body, and provided at the under side of its rear portion with a rack, a toothed sector engaging the rack, a shaft fixed on the sector and journaled in the body of the device, a trigger fixed on one end of said shaft and disposed into a trigger-guard in the lower part of the body.

1,631,168. RHEOSTAT. ALFRED E. WALLER, Bronxville, N. Y., assignor to Ward Leonard Electric Company, a Corporation of New York. Filed May 7, 1924. Serial No. 711,564. 9 Claims. (Cl. 201—58.)

3. A rheostat comprising resistive conductors, contact buttons, and an insulating coating for embedding the inner portions of said buttons, said contact buttons having a main portion having outer contact surfaces, a neck portion near one end thereof and an inner end portion compressed against said main portion and conductor.

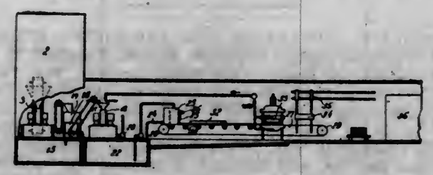
1,631,169. ROTARY INTAGLIO-PRINTING MACHINE. ADOLPH WEISS, Brooklyn, N. Y. Filed Aug. 13, 1924. Serial No. 731,858. 17 Claims. (Cl. 101—157.)

1. In a printing machine the combination of a housing for a printing fluid, a rotatable printing cylinder journaled in the housing and having configurations thereon formed by depressions extending below the outer surface thereof, a doctor blade for the machine with one end thereof bearing on the surface of the cylinder, an impression roller coacting with a web movably located between it and the periphery of the cylinder and means to maintain the housing air tight.

1,631,170. PROCESS FOR THE MANUFACTURE OF CHROMIUM COMPOUNDS. PAUL WEISE, Wiesdorf, near Cologne-on-the-Rhine, Germany, assignor to I. G. Farbenindustrie Aktiengesellschaft, Frankfort-on-the-Main, Germany. Filed Mar. 6, 1926, Serial No. 92,937, and in Germany Aug. 24, 1925. 4 Claims. (Cl. 23—56.)

1. In processes for the manufacture of chromium compounds involving the use of mechanical furnaces, the steps which consist essentially in forming a mixture of an alkali with chrome ore of such a grain size that a residue of from 15% to 30% remains on a sieve of 70 mesh per c. m., heating the mixture to a reacting temperature above 1100° C., leaching the furnaced mixture, treating the undissolved residue of the leaching step with acid, and using the residue of the acid treatment with fresh chrome ore as the starting material in a subsequent operation.

1,631,171. UTILIZING WOOD WASTE. HOWARD F. WEISS, Madison, Wis., assignor, by mesne assignments, to Wood Conversion Company, Cloquet, Minn., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed May 19, 1921, Serial No. 470,967. Renewed Apr. 19, 1927. 19 Claims. (Cl. 92—20.)

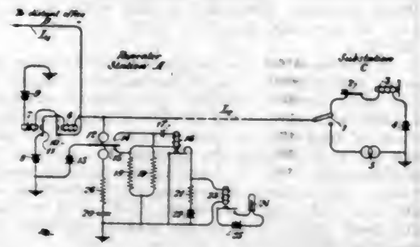


1. The method of making wall board which consists in mechanically disintegrating small wood fibers to form a gelatinous mass, incorporating therewith a fibrous filler and then pressing and drying the mass.

18. A wall board consisting essentially of a binder and a filler, the binder being a dried gelatinized mass of mechanically disintegrated lignocellulose prepared from saw mill offal and the filler consisting essentially of fiber aggregates.

1,631,172. UTILIZING WOOD WASTE. HOWARD FREDERICK WEISS, Madison, Wis., assignor, by mesne assignments, to Wood Conversion Company, Cloquet, Minn., a Corporation of Delaware. Original application filed May 19, 1921, Serial No. 470,967. Divided and this application filed Feb. 5, 1925. Serial No. 7,081. 6 Claims. (Cl. 92—1.)

1. The method of preparing a wall board binder which consists in mechanically disintegrating lignocellulose in hot water until at least 25% of the mass by dry weight has been reduced to a structureless gelatinous mass, substantially as described.



1,631,173. WALL BOARD AND PROCESS OF MAKING THE SAME. HOWARD F. WEISS, Madison, Wis., assignor, by mesne assignments, to Wood Conversion Company, Cloquet, Minn., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Aug. 22, 1921. Serial No. 494,150. 30 Claims. (Cl. 92—20.)

1. The method of preparing a wall board binder, which consists in chipping saw mill offal, crushing and rolling the chips until reduced to small particles and, then water-logging said particles, and mechanically disintegrating the water-logged particles while wet until at least 25% of the mass by dry wood weight has been reduced to a structureless, gelatinous mass, substantially as described.

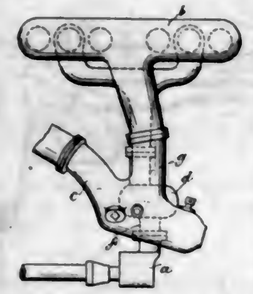
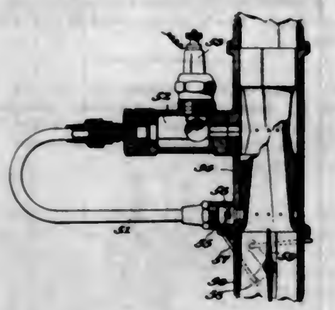
1,631,174. TELEGRAPH SIGNALING SYSTEM. SIDNEY D. WILBURN, Englewood, N. J., assignor to American Telephone and Telegraph Company, a Corporation of New York. Filed Dec. 7, 1923. Serial No. 679,193. 8 Claims. (Cl. 178—2.)

1. In a telegraph signaling system, the combination with a line, of a sub-station and a repeater station, said sub-station having connected therewith a source of alternating current, and means for connecting the said source to the said line, and the said repeater station having a polarized relay responsive to the said alternating current and arranged to control a signaling device.



1,631,175. STILETTO. CHARLES E. WINKLER, New York, N. Y. Filed Feb. 15, 1923. Serial No. 619,307. 1 Claim. (Cl. 164—119.)

A new article of manufacture, comprising a central pointed member having a knob at one end and a threaded portion adjacent to said knob, an outer sleeve member threaded internally and engaging at one of its ends the threaded portion of said central member, an inner sleeve member having a threaded portion at one end and an enlargement for a finger rest at the other end, the inner sleeve member engaging said outer sleeve member and adapted to be adjusted relative to said outer sleeve and relative to said central member.



1,631,176. APPARATUS FOR VAPORIZING HYDROCARBON FUEL. GOTTFRIED WIBBEN, Plainfield, N. J., assignor to International Motor Company, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed June 29, 1923. Serial No. 648,470. 2 Claims. (Cl. 123—122.)

1. In an apparatus for vaporizing hydrocarbon fuel, in combination with devices for forming a gaseous mixture and the inlet manifold, a chamber for collecting unevaporated liquid fuel ends, a riser between said first named devices and the chamber discharging thereinto, an independent riser extending from said chamber to the inlet manifold, an evaporating chamber subjected to exhaust heat and disposed at a point remote from said collecting chamber and the first named riser and means to direct the unevaporated liquid fuel in the collecting chamber into said evaporating chamber and return the volatilized gas from the evaporating chamber into the gaseous mixture in the collecting chamber.

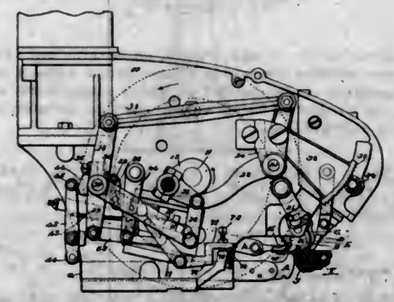
1,631,177. HYDROCARBON MOTOR. LIONEL M. WOOLSON, Detroit, Mich., assignor to Packard Motor Car Company, Detroit, Mich., a Corporation of Michigan. Filed May 26, 1920. Serial No. 384,351. 11 Claims. (Cl. 123—122.)

1. In combination with a hydrocarbon motor, means for forming an explosive mixture, a conduit leading from said means to the motor, a throttle, a combustion heater, a mixture passageway leading through said combustion heater, and means in said conduit independent of the throttle for producing the passage of mixture through said passageway and heater.



1,631,178. COMBINATION SOCKET-SEATING AND FUSE-TESTING BLOCK. WILLIAM WURDACK, St. Louis, Mo. Filed Dec. 31, 1923. Serial No. 683,653. 3 Claims. (Cl. 175—183.)

1. In a combined socket-seating and fuse-testing device, an insulation block formed with a pair of spaced pockets, sockets seated in, and having their walls embraced by, the pockets, and terminal-members engaging the sockets and the block for including the sockets in an electrical circuit, the block having normally open ways both opening at an end upon a surface of the block and leading at their opposite ends into the respective pockets for freely removably accommodating the projection of circuit-testing terminals through the block and into direct engagement with the walls of the respective sockets.

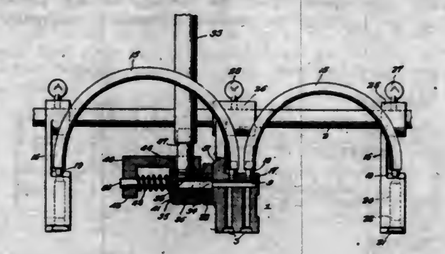
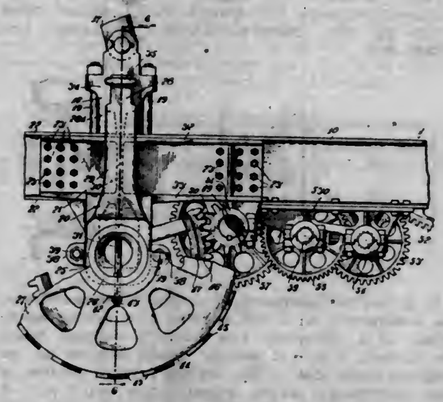
1,631,179. SEWING MACHINE. FRANK ZALESKI, Boston, Mass., assignor to Reece Shoe Machinery Company, Boston, Mass., a Corporation of Maine. Filed Aug. 7, 1922. Serial No. 580,276. 6 Claims. (Cl. 112—39.)

1. In a welt-and-turn shoe-stitching machine, an operating shaft, a barbed needle reciprocated from said shaft, a crank 12 on said shaft, a pitman 21 on said crank, a guide arm 22 guiding said pitman and oscillated by it, a needle guide actuating lever 25 oscillated by said guide arm 22, in coordination with the needle, a looper D, and connections from the pitman 21 for actuating the looper in coordination with the needle.



1,631,180. BEET PULLER. WILLIAM YERMAK, Danbury, Conn. Filed Apr. 27, 1926. Serial No. 104,933. 1 Claim. (Cl. 55—65.)

A beet puller comprising a cross-beam, having a handle connecting means on one side thereof, beet engaging prongs on the other side, said prongs being formed with opposing loops adjacent the beam, and the free ends being spaced and slightly divergent, curved flanges on the prongs bent out of the plane of the same and extending from the loops to their ends, foot engaging teeth on the cross-beam adjacent the handle attaching means, all substantially as described.



1,631,181. AUTOMATIC FEEDER. LESTER KYLE ALDRICH, Sidney, Ohio. Filed Feb. 23, 1926. Serial No. 89,875. 15 Claims. (Cl. 271—20.)

1. In an automatic feeder of the class described, a double suction nozzle of approximately segmental shape having an arcuate series of suction ports, each port being provided with laterally spaced suction passages extending to the periphery of the suction nozzle, and an auxiliary section nozzle of approximately segmental form located at one side of and spaced laterally from the double suction nozzle and having a single port connected with one of the suction ports of the double suction nozzle.

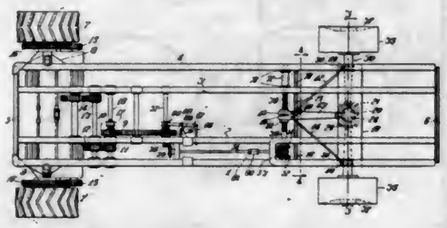
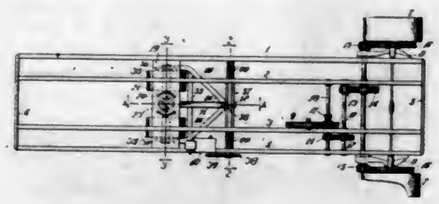
1,631,182. TRACTION EQUIPMENT FOR MOBILE MACHINERY. RALPH IRWIN ALEXANDER, Kankakee, and ALFRED H. EXTON, Chicago Heights, Ill., assignors to Inland Engineering Company, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed Nov. 24, 1924. Serial No. 752,017. 20 Claims. (Cl. 180—1.)



1. In traction equipment for heavy mobile machinery, a carriage including a supporting frame formed of spaced metal beams, a pair of traction wheels for supporting and transporting one end of the frame, and a jack-arm support for each wheel formed of a single casting including a base portion extending horizontally at each side of the jack-arm and interfitting with and attached to the adjacent side frame beam, a downwardly and outwardly extending arm and an integral journal for the wheel projecting horizontally from the lower portion of the arm.

1,631,183. STEERING MECHANISM FOR MOBILE MACHINERY. RALPH IRWIN ALEXANDER, Kankakee, and ALFRED H. EXTON, Chicago Heights, Ill., assignors to Inland Engineering Company, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Original application filed Nov. 24, 1924, Serial No. 752,017. Divided and this application filed July 27, 1925. Serial No. 46,458. 5 Claims. (Cl. 180—81.)



1. In traction equipment for heavy mobile machinery, the combination with a carriage including a supporting frame, a pair of driving wheels at one end thereof and a pair of steering wheels at the other end thereof, a power plant supported on the carriage, and driving mechanism for the first mentioned wheels operated from the power plant, of steering mechanism for the steering wheels, and means power-driven from the carriage driving mechanism for operating the steering mechanism comprising a power-clutch, and reversing gearing including a reversing clutch, and manually operable clutch-controlling mechanism operable from within the carriage including a pair of nested rock-shafts, a controlling lever at one end of each shaft, the two levers extending into the carriage at adjacent positions, and lever connections from the opposite ends of each shaft to the respective clutches.

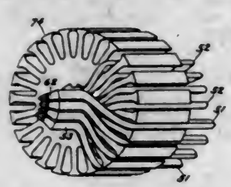
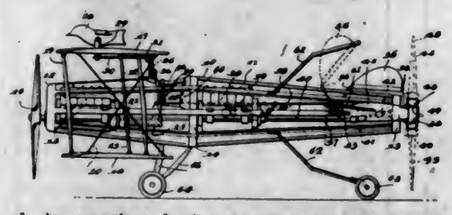
1,631,184. MOBILE MACHINERY. RALPH IRWIN ALEXANDER, Kankakee, Ill., assignor to Inland Engineering Company, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed June 18, 1925. Serial No. 38,000. 11 Claims. (Cl. 180—81.)



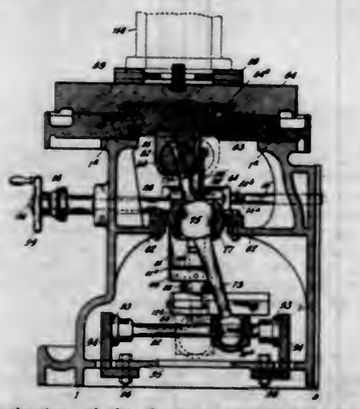
1. In traction equipment for heavy mobile machinery, the combination with the carriage, and driving mechanism, of a non-rotary axle centrally swiveled below the carriage, a pair of steering wheels mounted on the arms at either side of the central swiveled portion, a yoke comprising a central formed portion and a pair of side arms which straddle the wheels and are connected with the ends of the axle, a horizontal screw shaft, means for rotating the shaft in either direction, and a nut on the shaft having a pair of radially extending studs, the forked portion of the yoke embracing the nut and each arm of the fork having a slot engaged by one of the studs.

1,631,185. DISTRIBUTOR MOUNTING. BENJAMIN H. ANIBAL, Pontiac, Mich., assignor to General Motors Corporation, Detroit, Mich., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Aug. 30, 1926. Serial No. 132,520. 8 Claims. (Cl. 123—195.)



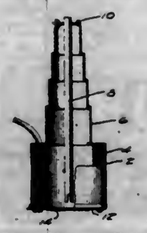
1. An internal combustion engine, including in combination a cylinder block having a vertical bore intermedate the margins of the block, a drive shaft extending thru the bore, and an accessory device located above the top of the cylinder block and operated by said shaft.

1,631,186. METHOD OF BUILDING DYNAMO-ELECTRIC MACHINE ARMATURES AND WINDINGS FOR SAME. VINCENT G. APPLE, Dayton, Ohio. Filed Sept. 22, 1924. Serial No. 738,998. 11 Claims. (Cl. 171—206.)



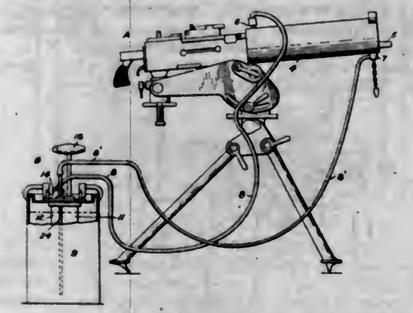
3. As an article of manufacture, an integral unit of an armature winding comprising a commutator segment and two armature conductors, all of wedge shaped cross section, the conductors being spaced apart to compose one turn of the winding.

1,631,187. AEROPLANE. AURELIO BAMBINI, Seward, Pa. Filed Oct. 6, 1925. Serial No. 60,860. 6 Claims. (Cl. 244—25.)



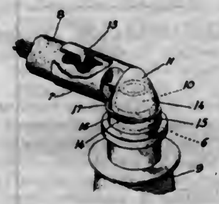
1. An aeroplane having a motor operated propeller comprising an auxiliary motor, a propeller hub connected to said auxiliary motor, propeller blades hingedly connected to said hub so that the blades of said propeller may be folded inwardly when not in use, means for holding said blades in an inoperative position, means for releasing said holding means, a rudder carried on the rear end of said aeroplane, and means for moving said rudder when said propeller blades are released so as not to interfere with said rudder.

1,631,188. GRINDING MACHINE. WILLIAM J. BAUMBERGER, Davenport, Iowa, assignor, by mesne assignments, to Micro Machine Company, Bettendorf, Iowa, a Corporation of Iowa. Filed June 8, 1922. Serial No. 566,741. 4 Claims. (Cl. 51—216.)



1. Mechanism of the character described, including a work table; and means for imparting orbital motion to said table, said means including a driving member, a motion-transmitting member, operative connection with said driving member and motion-transmitting member arranged to impart circulatory motion to said motion-transmitting member, and equalizer, motion-transmitting elements between said motion-transmitting member and said table.

1,631,189. ELECTRIC HAIR CURLER. ALEXANDER J. BUCHI, New York, N. Y. Filed Dec. 23, 1926. Serial No. 156,585. 6 Claims. (Cl. 132—36.)

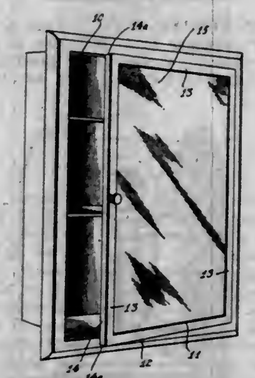


1. An electric heater for curling hair comprising a pencil around which the hair is wound, a heater to heat the hair, and an enclosure adapted to be longitudinally adjusted to different sizes to suit the size of the curl to be formed.

1,631,190. METHOD OF AND APPARATUS FOR COOLING GUN BARRELS. WILLIAM R. BULL, Springfield, Mass. Filed Feb. 20, 1925. Serial No. 10,563. 2 Claims. (Cl. 89—1.) (Granted under the act of Mar. 3, 1883, 22 Stat. L., 625.)

1. Apparatus for cooling gun barrels embodying a container having an opening in the top thereof, a removable cover therefor, and a pumping and condensing unit attached to the cover.

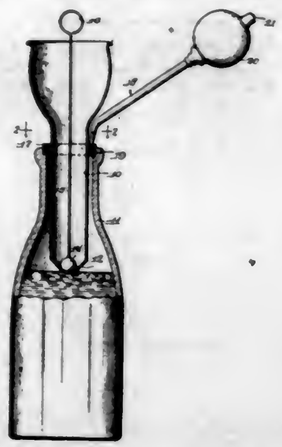
1,631,191. TERMINAL CONNECTER FOR SPARK PLUGS. ALBERT CHAMPION, Flint, Mich., assignor to A C Spark Plug Company, Flint, Mich., a Corporation of Michigan. Filed Oct. 28, 1921. Serial No. 511,131. 3 Claims. (Cl. 173—269.)



1. A terminal connecter formed from sheet metal and comprising a tubular body portion adapted to be secured to a supply cable, and a socket portion integral with said body portion and arranged substantially at right angles thereto, and having an opening leading thereinto, and the plane of which opening is in a plane substantially parallel with the axis of said tubular body portion; a resilient U-shaped holding member arranged substantially parallel with the opening aforesaid, and the side portions of which extend across said opening at the sides thereof; and fixed stops carried by said socket portion and with which said side portions engage when the parts are assembled.

1,631,192. WRITING PAD. BERNALD M. DUNLAP, Rockford, Ill., assignor to Howard L. Fischer, St. Paul, Minn. Filed Jan. 15, 1923. Serial No. 612,862. 3 Claims. (Cl. 35—10.)

3. A writing pad including a series of sheets bound together on one end, an erasing cord bound together with said sheets, said cord being adapted to be operated to separate the sheets to erase any impression made by the adhering of said sheets together and adapted to support a marking instrument on the free end thereof.



1,631,193. MIRROR MOUNTING. WARNER EUSTIS, Newton, Mass. Filed Dec. 21, 1925. Serial No. 76,747. 4 Claims. (Cl. 45—18.)

1. In a framed mirror or the like, the combination with a metal frame comprising face and edge flanges arranged substantially at right angles to each other, of a glass plate of less width and length than the frame, removable clips attached to the upper and lower edge flanges to hold the glass plate against the face flange of the frame, additional clips permanently secured to the frame at its vertical edges and having portions extending over the back of the glass plate a distance slightly less than the normal distance between the edges of the glass plate and the adjacent edge flanges of the frame, stay blocks disposed between the edges of the glass plate and the said edge flanges, and a removable backing plate having peripheral flanges in frictional engagement with said clips.

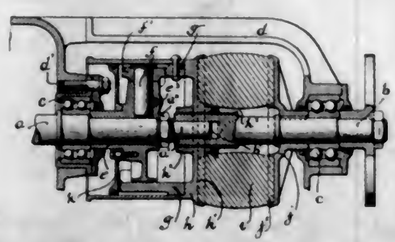
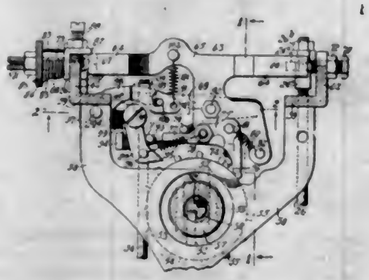
1,631,194. CREAM SEPARATOR. EMERY H. FAHRNEY, Chicago, Ill. Filed Jan. 28, 1926. Serial No. 84,291. 4 Claims. (Cl. 215—3.)



1. A cream separator embodying a receptacle having both ends open, said receptacle being adapted to be lowered within the neck of a bottle, said receptacle provided with its lower wall contracted to form a valve seat, a valve within the receptacle for cooperation with the valve seat, and a rod connected with the valve for seating and unseating the valve to close the lower end of said receptacle to control the inflow and outflow of cream into and from the receptacle.

1,631,195. TELEPHONE STAND. FRED A. FORD, New York, N. Y., assignor to J. W. Gillis Co., Rochester, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed June 2, 1926. Serial No. 113,257. 4 Claims. (Cl. 45—105.)

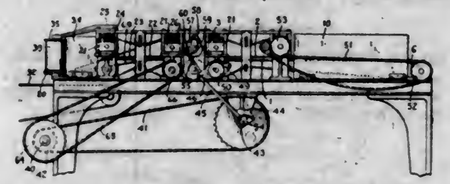


4. A telephone stand comprising a stationary sub-base, antifriction rollers mounted in the top of said sub-base and slightly projecting above it, a fixed post mounted centrally of said sub-base, a turntable mounted to rotate on top of said sub-base and supported by said antifriction rollers, a decorative screen mounted on a portion of the periphery of said turntable and projecting upwardly therefrom, a stationary supporting base above said turntable and mounted on said fixed post, said decorative screen projecting above said supporting base and encircling a portion of the periphery thereof, and means provided on said turntable at a point diametrically opposite to said decorative screen to prevent said turntable from tilting.

1,631,196. FLEXIBLE COUPLING. CHARLES FROESCH, New York, N. Y., assignor to International Motor Company, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Nov. 5, 1925. Serial No. 66,925. 3 Claims. (Cl. 64—96.)

1. In a torque cushioning device, in combination with a driving and a driven shaft, a cam surface carried with one of the shafts, means to permit reciprocation of said cam surface with respect to said shaft, a roller carried with the other shaft and engageable with said cam surface, and means comprising yielding non-metallic material to yieldingly maintain said cam surface in engagement with the roller.

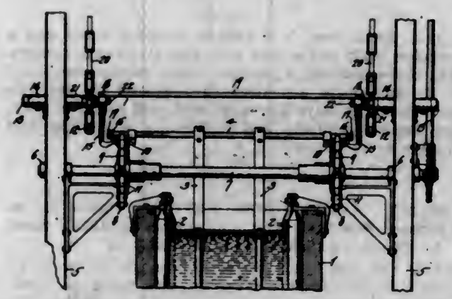
1,631,197. TYPEWRITING MACHINE. GEORGE G. GOINO, Middletown, Conn., assignor to Remington Noiseless Typewriter Corporation, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Dec. 2, 1925. Serial No. 72,795. 24 Claims. (Cl. 197—82.)



1. In an escapement mechanism for typewriting machines, the combination of a rack, a vibratory dog carrier, a dog rigid therewith, and anchor escapement devices comprising two escapement dogs, one of which has an unvarying relationship with said rigid dog during vibratory movements of said rocker.

1,631,198. LEAF SEPARATOR. JOSEPH GOUGH, Newark, N. J., assignor to Gough Stemming Machine Corporation, a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Jan. 30, 1923. Serial No. 615,826. 15 Claims. (Cl. 131—60.)

1. In a machine for separating bunched tobacco leaves and the like, the combination of a separator mechanism for grasping a leaf, and mechanism for presenting a leaf-bunch to said separator mechanism, said two mechanisms being differently timed so that a leaf grasped by the separator mechanism is separated from the remaining leaves of the bunch and the continued operation of said mechanisms breaks up the bunch.



14. The method of breaking up bundles of dry tobacco leaves of the kind described, which consists of crudely tearing the bundles apart so that the resulting masses consist of loosely attached leaves, and from which masses leaves project irregularly standing out in part separated from other leaves, holding the masses successively while successively presenting the projecting leaves of each mass in a position to be grasped, grasping the projecting leaves successively, and causing the mass and the thing grasping the projecting leaves to be withdrawn relatively with each other to pull each grasped part from the remainder of the mass before another projecting part of the mass is grasped.

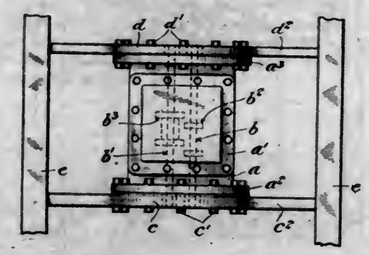
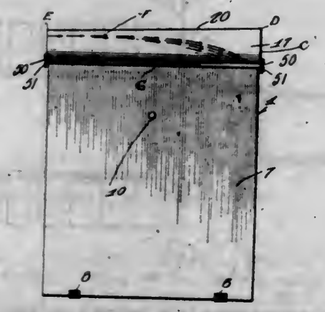
1,631,199. ELECTROPLATING MACHINE. WESLEY F. HALL, Matawan, N. J., assignor to The Hanson & Van Winkle Company, Newark, N. J., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed May 17, 1926. Serial No. 109,720. 2 Claims. (Cl. 198—20.)



1. In combination with an electro-plating tank, a horizontal conveyor comprising horizontal conveyor chains located on each side of the tank, a bar resting transversely on said horizontal conveyor chains for supporting an article to be treated in said tank, a vertical conveyor situated above said horizontal conveyor comprising vertical conveyor chains, hooks on said vertical conveyor chains adapted to engage the ends of said transverse bar simultaneously and raise the same, and a transverse beam rigidly attached at its ends to said hooks, whereby the transverse alinement of the hooks is assured.

1,631,200. DRY CELL. WILLIAM F. HENDRY, Ossining, N. Y., assignor, by mesne assignments, to National Carbon Company, Inc., New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Nov. 8, 1923. Serial No. 673,539. 10 Claims. (Cl. 136—138.)

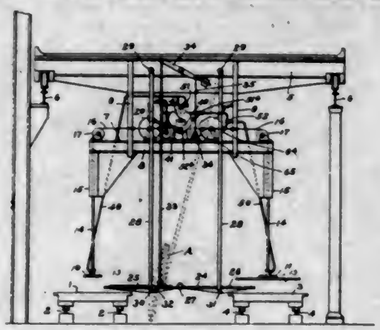


1. A dry cell comprising tablets compacted of a depolarizer mixed with both finely ground and flaked conducting material.

1,631,201. CASING FOR TRANSMISSIONS AND THE LIKE. EDWARD R. HEWITT, Midvale, N. J., and AUGUST H. LEIPERT, College Point, N. Y., assignors to International Motor Company, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed July 15, 1926. Serial No. 122,611. 3 Claims. (Cl. 74—56.)

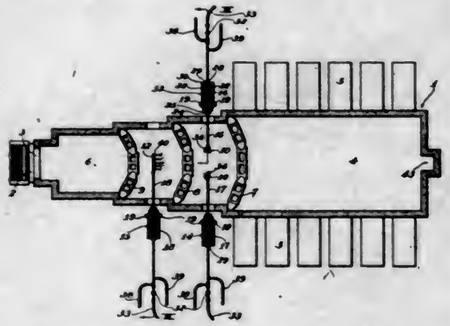
2. A cast aluminum gear case formed with open ends and having peripheral flanges around the openings in the ends, steel end plates bolted to said peripheral flanges and adapted to support bearings for shafts within the case and having integral arms extending laterally therefrom to support the case.

1,631,202. CABINET. WINSLOW EDGAR HINSON, Fort Smith, Ark. Filed Jan. 5, 1924. Serial No. 684,638. 1 Claim. (Cl. 224—29.)



A cabinet comprising a bottom, sides, and a back, a front hinged at its lower edge to the bottom, a top hinged at its rear edge to the upper edge of the back, the upper edge of the front and the forward edge of the top being interengaged, the forward edge of the top being parallel to the bottom of the cabinet, the rear hinged edge of the top slanting lengthwise of the cabinet from one of the sides of the cabinet to the other, the top also slanting downwardly and forwardly from the upper edge of the back to the upper edge of the front, and means for mounting the cabinet on the running board of an automobile with the slanting rear edge and the top so located as to deflect rain from flying off the top into the automobile whereon the cabinet is mounted.

1,631,203. PLATE-GLASS TRANSFER AND LAYING APPARATUS. HALBERT K. HITCHCOCK, Pittsburgh, Pa., assignor to Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Mar. 27, 1924. Serial No. 702,260. 10 Claims. (Cl. 51—277.)



1. In combination in apparatus for transferring glass sheets from one car or carrier mounted on a track to another car or carrier on a parallel track and turning them over, which comprises a vacuum lifting frame mounted for vertical movement over each track, and a turnover frame mounted for lateral movement between the two frames, and adapted in its two extremes of movement to lie beneath said frames.

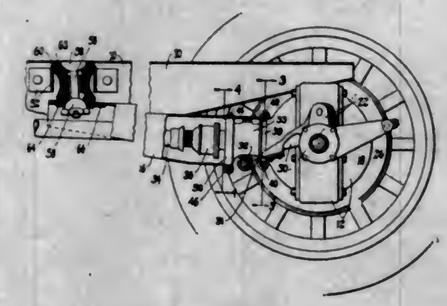
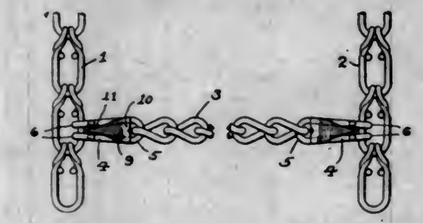
1,631,204. PROCESS AND APPARATUS FOR MELTING GLASS. HALBERT K. HITCHCOCK, Pittsburgh, Pa., assignor to Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Oct. 16, 1926. Serial No. 141,947. 9 Claims. (Cl. 49—53.)



1. In a glass melting tank, having a top wall or arch, a melting end, a delivery end remote therefrom, a cooling section intermediate said ends, means for applying heat to said melting end to reduce the batch supplied thereto, and means for spraying a cooling fluid into the space between the glass bath and the arch in said cooling section.

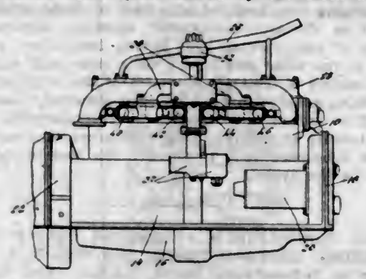
1,631,205. FAVOR. MARIE LOUISE HORNER and MARIE MATHILDE HORNER, New Orleans, La. Filed Aug. 17, 1925. Serial No. 50,788. Renewed Apr. 29, 1927. 1 Claim. (Cl. 41—10.)



An article of merchandise comprising an ovoid member decorated to suggest a countenance, a rigid base to which said ovoid member is attached adapted to hold said member with the countenance in normal position, an ornamental material attached to the base representing a neck decoration relative to the countenance, and a cover for the top of the ovoid member representing a head covering corresponding in decorative effect to the countenance and the neck decoration.

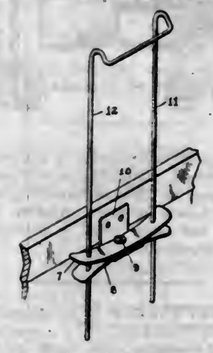
1,631,206. VEHICLE. ORMOND E. HUNT, Detroit, Mich., assignor to General Motors Corporation, Detroit, Mich., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Mar. 22, 1923. Serial No. 626,897. 12 Claims. (Cl. 180—85.)

1. A torque arm, in a vehicle having a frame and a propeller shaft and a rear axle with its casing, comprising, in combination, a tubular torque member connected to the axle casing and arranged to protect the propeller shaft having relative movement with said propeller shaft, and means yieldingly and universally connecting said member to the frame.



1,631,207. ANTISKIDDING DEVICE. SIDNEY D. JACOBSON, New York, N. Y. Filed Apr. 25, 1925. Serial No. 25,938. 2 Claims. (Cl. 24—233.)

1. The combination with a cross chain and means for detachably connecting the cross chain with side chains comprising a length of wire bent into U-shaped form so as to engage one of the links of the side chain, the free ends of said length of wire being formed into substantially parallel hooked portions, a keeper mounted upon the legs of said member and having a portion extending between said hooked portions, and said keeper having its outer end free of either of said hooked end portions and normally in the plane thereof.



1,631,208. INTERNAL-COMBUSTION ENGINE. BENJAMIN JEROME, Pontiac, Mich., assignor to General Motors Corporation, Detroit, Mich., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Feb. 9, 1924, Serial No. 691,660. Renewed Nov. 14, 1925. 14 Claims. (Cl. 123—195.)

1. An internal combustion engine comprising a block formed to provide a plurality of cylinders, ports in the block communicating with the cylinders, a branched manifold communicating with the ports and arranged to provide an open space defined by the block and the branches of the manifold, a power driven shaft extending through said space, and an accessory device driven from said shaft.

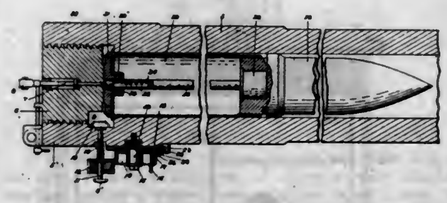
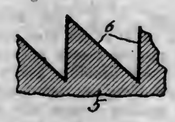
1,631,209. ADJUSTABLE HANGER OR SUPPORT. CHARLES E. JEWELL, Seneca Falls, N. Y. Filed Mar. 13, 1926. Serial No. 94,623. 3 Claims. (Cl. 248—7.)



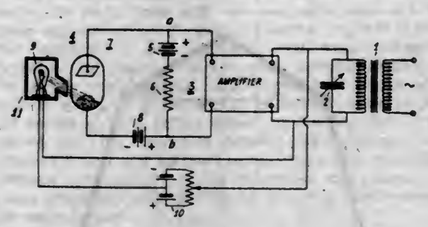
1. A spring supporting device comprising two plates formed of spring metal normally standing apart at both ends and joined together between the ends, each plate having a hole therein at each end, a pair of rods held fixed with relation to each other passing through the holes of both plates at each end thereof, the plates being adapted to slide on the rods when pressed together and being adapted to grip the rods when sprung apart.

1,631,210. HEADWEAR. AGNAR JOHNSON, Rockford, Ill. Filed May 21, 1926. Serial No. 110,646. 1 Claim. (Cl. 2—12.)



A species of headwear, including two elements, one element comprising an eyeshield and a head strap and the other element comprising a headband, the first element including tabs integral with the ends of the eyeshield and having slits in said tabs adapted for the reception of the headband, together with the corresponding slits formed in the end of the headstrap for the reception of the ends of the headband.

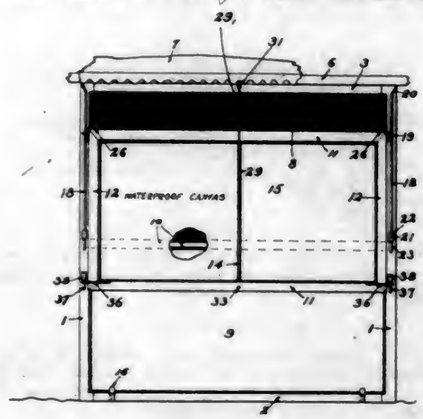
1,631,211. MECHANISM FOR SETTING FUSES WITHIN GUNS. JAMES C. KARNES, Buffalo, N. Y. Filed Apr. 3, 1925. Serial No. 20,537. (Granted under the act of Mar. 3, 1883, 22 Stat. L., 625.) 17 Claims. (Cl. 89—1.)



17. In a gun having a breech closure, means for setting a fuse within the gun, embodying a member passing through the breech ring of the gun.

1,631,212. FILE. WILLIS R. KING, Newark, N. J., assignor to The Hanson & Van Winkle Company, Newark, N. J., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed June 17, 1926. Serial No. 116,609. 1 Claim. (Cl. 29—78.)

A file comprising a body of soft unhardened metal formed on both sides with teeth and an electroplated coating of chromium deposited on the teeth.



1,631,213. ELECTRICAL SYSTEM. MARIUS LATOUR, Paris, France, assignor to Latour Corporation, Jersey City N. J., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Dec. 27, 1924, Serial No. 758,336, and in France Jan. 5, 1924. 3 Claims. (Cl. 179—171.)

1. In an electrical system, an amplifier having an input circuit and an output circuit, said amplifier being arranged so that potential variations in said input circuit produce corresponding current changes in said output circuit, a device having a cathode and an anode, said cathode serving to emit photoelectrons under the influence of light waves, an output circuit connected between said anode and said cathode and arranged to cause potential variations in said input circuit, a source of light adjacent said cathode, means for maintaining said source at incipient incandescence, and a circuit for said source connected across the output circuit of said amplifier whereby current variations in said last mentioned output circuit cause said source to be lighted to various degrees of brilliancy.

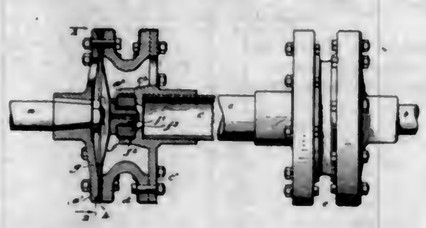
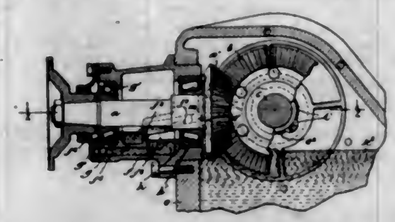
1,631,214. COMBINATION AWNING AND SIDE-WALL PANEL FOR SUMMER OR OUTING HOUSES OR COTTAGES. CHARLES B. LEFFERT, Chicago, Ill., assignor to United States Tent & Awning Company, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed Mar. 16, 1923. Serial No. 625,533. 6 Claims. (Cl. 156—15.)



1. The combination of a wall having an opening therein, a flat rigid panel of an area approximating that of said opening, a guiding means on the outside of said wall at the side of said opening, means on the top end of said panel and including a pivoted member operatively engaged with said guiding means and permitting either a vertical sliding movement of said panel or a swinging movement thereof about said coacting means, downwardly facing hooks on said wall at the side of said opening and lateral extensions on said panel adapted to engage under said hooks when said panel is in a predetermined vertical position for preventing said swinging movement.

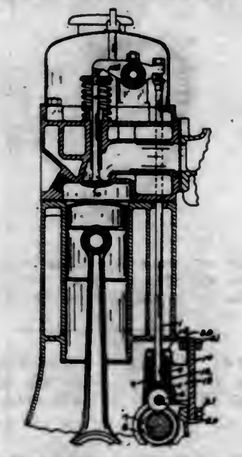
1,631,215. TENT. CHARLES B. LEFFERT, Chicago, Ill., assignor to United States Tent & Awning Company, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed June 4, 1924. Serial No. 717,731. 7 Claims. (Cl. 135—4.)



7. In combination, a tent, a plurality of tent supporting rods pivoted together near the peak of the tent, a rod carried by the junction of the said rods and having a relatively short upwardly extending portion and a longer downwardly extending portion, the said short portion engaging the peak of the tent, a collar slidably mounted on the said downwardly extending portion, a plurality of tent spacing bars having their inner ends pivoted to the collar and having their outer ends engaging the corners of the tent, movement of the collar downwardly being adapted to force the bars outwardly against the tent to spread and support the tent umbrella-like, and a plurality of relatively long rods adapted to engage the first mentioned rods to support the tent in raised position on the ground.

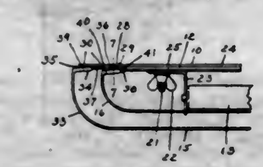
1,631,216. NONMETALLIC CENTERING DEVICE FOR SHAFTING. AUGUST H. LEIPERT, New York, N. Y., assignor to International Motor Company, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Nov. 19, 1923. Serial No. 675,450. 7 Claims. (Cl. 64—96.)

1. As an article of manufacture a centering device for the purpose described comprising inner and outer rings of hard rubber and an intermediate ring of softer rubber vulcanized thereto whereby relative movement between the inner and outer rings is accompanied by deformation of the intermediate ring.



1,631,217. OILING SYSTEM FOR BEARINGS. PHILIP E. MATTHEWS, Plainfield, N. J., assignor to International Motor Company, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed June 27, 1925. Serial No. 39,908. 8 Claims. (Cl. 184—13.)

1. In combination with an enclosed casing and members mounted therein to revolve in a lubricant and tapered roller bearings in which said revolving members are journaled, means to constantly circulate the lubricant to such bearings including collecting means for the lubricant conveyed by the revolving members and channels by which the lubricant is led from said collecting means into proximity with the bearings, and means for maintaining the lubricant so conveyed at the level of the bearings.



1,631,218. MOUNTING FOR VALVE TAPPETS. ARTHUR F. MILBRATH, Milwaukee, Wis. Filed Jan. 19, 1925. Serial No. 3,289. 7 Claims. (Cl. 123—90.)

1. The combination with an internal combustion engine having valve tappets and a cam shaft provided with tappet actuating means, of a slotted casing enclosing the cam shaft, cams and lower ends of the tappet rods; a plate adapted to close the slot in the cam shaft casing and provided with inwardly projecting brackets, tubular guides carried by the interior portions of said brackets, and tappet-actuating plungers mounted in said guides and adapted to be actuated by associated cams on the engine cam shaft.

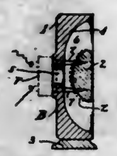
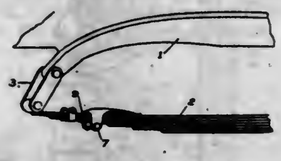
1,631,219. CURTAIN SUPPORTER. ALEX MONICH, Forestville, Conn. Filed May 6, 1926. Serial No. 107,090. 3 Claims. (Cl. 156—22.)



3. In a curtain rod support, a plate member and a strip of resilient sheet metal secured to said plate member and extending parallel thereto for a portion of its length, one end of said strip forming a tongue extending at a slight angle to the main portion and forming with the plate member an acute angle whereby the socketed end of a curtain pole may be slipped over said tongue and wedged between the plate and tongue, and the other end of said strip forming a tongue bent at an acute angle to the main portion of said strip whereby the socketed end of a second curtain pole may be slipped over said last named tongue and wedged between the tongue and the main portion of said strip.

1,631,220. APPARATUS FOR SCARIFYING PLASTIC-CLAY COLUMNS. JOSEPH B. NICHOLSON, Steubenville, Ohio. Filed Aug. 10, 1926. Serial No. 128,417. 4 Claims. (Cl. 25—1.)

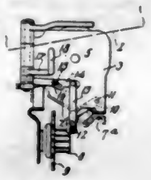


1. In a scarifying apparatus, a scarifying device, a shaft for rotating said scarifying device, means for securing said scarifying device to said shaft for rotation therewith, said means permitting longitudinal movement of said scarifying device on said shaft, and means whereby said scarifying device is maintained at a fixed distance from the adjacent surface of a traveling clay column upon which it acts.

1,631,221. SOUND AMPLIFIER. HAROLD D. PENNEY, Pelham, N. Y., assignor to Diamond Expansion Bolt Company, a Corporation of New York. Filed Oct. 16, 1923. Serial No. 668,840. 10 Claims. (Cl. 181—27.)

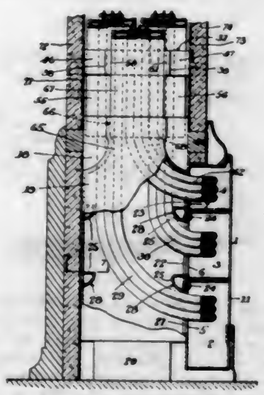
1. In combination, a wide major reflector element having its front face concaved to form a wide shallow chamber having a diameter several times greater than its depth and having a short central aperture therein; said reflector element being adapted to receive a telephone mounted adjacent to the back of said reflector element with its diaphragm close to and emitting sound through said aperture directly into said chamber to form a zone of intense sound waves within said chamber close to said aperture; and a minor deflector element having a convexed rear face coaxially disposed in said zone a short distance in front of said aperture and to extend on all sides thereof and cooperating with the concaved face to diverge the intense waves and form a sound reflecting and amplifying chamber having a gradual outward and forward flare of gradually increasing angle of flare to the periphery.

1,631,222. SHOCK ABSORBER. ARTHUR J. ROOT, Springfield, Ohio. Filed July 19, 1926. Serial No. 123,433. 7 Claims. (Cl. 267—53.)



1. In a shock absorber for motor vehicles, a device of bell-crank lever form with one arm bifurcated and the other arm curved and formed as a spring, the free ends of the members of the bifurcated arm being connected together, the juncture of the arms forming a fulcrum, the device being applied to a plurality of leaves of a vehicle spring in a manner to cause the same to grip the spring at three points defined by the free end of the curved arm, the connection between the members of the bifurcated arm and juncture of the arms, the connection between the members of the bifurcated arm being in a plane which intersects the curved arm at a point between the ends thereof.

1,631,223. TYPEWRITING MACHINE. WERNER F. ROTHERMUND, Brooklyn, N. Y., assignor to Underwood Typewriter Company, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Feb. 8, 1921. Serial No. 443,347. 8 Claims. (Cl. 197—193.)



1. In a typewriting machine, the combination of a base, a typewriter-frame mounted thereon, a traveling carriage, escapement devices for the carriage, a cover to fit over said base, said carriage being over-length for the capacity of said cover, and collapsible means mounted on the carriage for disengaging the carriage from the escapement-devices and comprising a horizontally yieldable operating device therefor projecting from the carriage longitudinally thereof, thereby causing the length of the carriage to be greater than the distance between the sides of the cover, said operating device having an outer face inclined in a downward and outward direction in the same longitudinal direction as the length of the carriage, and actuable inwardly in the direction of the length of the carriage by the downward thrust of the adjacent side of the cover against said inclined face during the initial movement of placing the cover down over the carriage to enclose it, said carriage being confined at its other end by said cover against yielding during the collapse of said operating device.

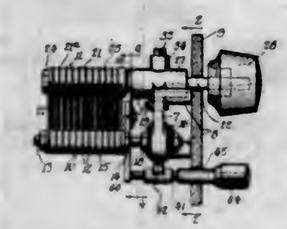
1,631,224. ELECTRICAL-CONDUIT-CROSSOVER SYSTEM. JOHN SCHILZ, Los Angeles, Calif., assignor of one-third to Gerald Marsac, Los Angeles, Calif. Filed Aug. 19, 1925. Serial No. 51,136. 5 Claims. (Cl. 247—3.)

3. In combination with a door and conduit-base, a pair of outlet boxes in the wall adjacent said conduit-base at opposite sides of the door, and in communication with said conduit-base, a pair of conduit crossovers connected to said outlet boxes and extending over the door adjacent the upright and top members thereof, and chafing strips in said outlet boxes between the lower ends of said conduit crossovers.



1,631,225. PAPER BOX. FRANK J. SCHLEICHER, St. Louis, Mo. Filed May 7, 1926. Serial No. 107,406. 1 Claim. (Cl. 229—5.5.)

A heart-shaped cardboard box comprising a base sheet with a heart-shaped contour, and a side for said box comprising a rectangular strip notched along one edge with the portions between said notches bent inwardly for attachment to said base sheet, the body of said strip being bent to extend around the edge of said base sheet, the distances between said notches increasing along the sides of the box adjacent to its point and decreasing along the sharper curves opposite the point.

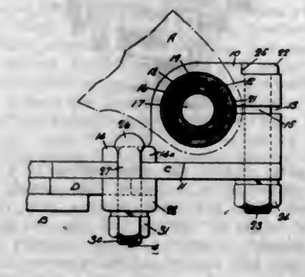
1,631,226. VARIABLE CONDENSER. EDWARD J. SCHRODER, Lowell, Ind. Filed Apr. 20, 1925. Serial No. 24,347. 3 Claims. (Cl. 175—41.5.)

1. A condenser having a supporting frame, a stator element comprising a plurality of spaced plates secured to said frame but insulated therefrom, a rotor element also comprising a plurality of plates carried by said frame, and a vernier attachment comprising a plate mounted on said frame for movement toward and from the stator element, and an adjusting screw mounted in said frame and adapted to engage with said plate, said vernier plate having a leaf spring connection with the frame.



1,631,227. STAFF BASE. EDWARD E. SEE, Omaha, Nebr. Filed Dec. 6, 1926. Serial No. 152,890. 2 Claims. (Cl. 248—38.)

2. A staff base, comprising a dome-like sheet metal shell having its lower edges curled inwardly, a reinforcing ring inclosed by said incurled edges, a bottom-plate having its edge portions clamped by said ring and incurled edges and being thereby retained above the plane of said ring, a tubular tension member extending through axial openings in said shell and bottom-plate, said tubular member having expanded portions engaging said parts externally and supporting the central portion of the bottom-plate, the bottom-plate having an opening therein affording access to the space within the shell, and a removable plug for said opening.

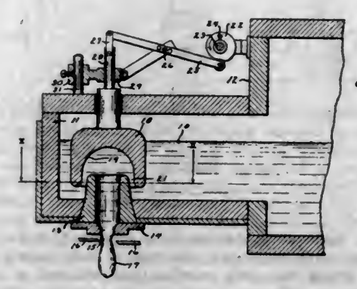
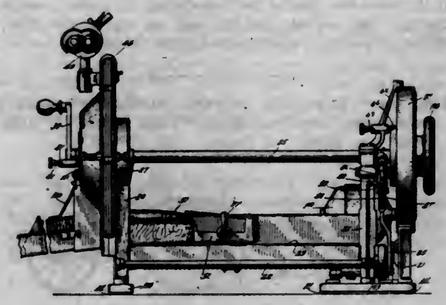
1,631,228. RESILIENT CONNECTER. CHARLES R. SHORT, Dayton, Ohio, assignor to General Motors Research Corporation, Dayton, Ohio, a Corporation of Delaware. Filed July 2, 1925. Serial No. 41,113. 9 Claims. (Cl. 267—54.)



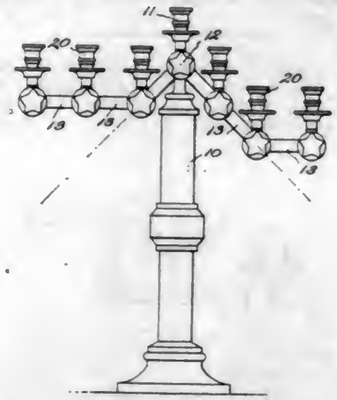
1. Means for connecting two members resiliently, comprising an adjustable clamp, a body of elastic deformable substance surrounded by said clamp, said body having a hole therein, an element engaged in said hole, and members respectively secured non-rotatively to said clamp and said element.

1,631,229. ONE-WAY PULL LATCH. FREDERICK WILLIAM STAHL, Philadelphia, Pa. Filed Feb. 13, 1922. Serial No. 536,093. 3 Claims. (Cl. 292—164.)



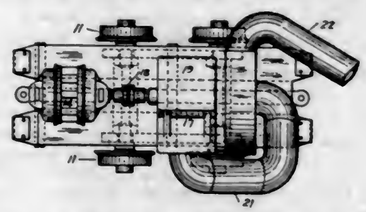
1. In a one way pull latch, the combination with the pull cord of a rock shaft having a rocking arm to which said pull cord is attached, said rock shaft being rockable in one direction by the pulling of said pull cord, a spring in position to rock back the rock shaft in the reverse direction into its original position, a springing locking bolt, provided with an abutment for retracting said bolt, secured upon the same, a fin positioned upon the rock shaft to engage with the abutment of the bolt when the pull cord is drawn, thereby drawing inward the locking bolt when the rock-shaft is rocked by the pulling of the pull cord, said fin being also so positioned on the rock shaft and projecting therefrom to such a distance only as will cause it to slip off from and release said abutment when the rock shaft is rocked to its furthest position in one direction, a stop positioned to arrest the rocking of the rock shaft in such direction substantially so soon as the fin releases said abutment, and means for allowing the fin to pass the abutment without moving the locking bolt when the rock shaft is rocked by the spring in the reverse direction to the direction in which it is rocked by the pull cord.

1,631,230. GLASS FEEDER. LEONARD D. SOUBIER, Toledo, Ohio, assignor to The Owens Bottle Company, Toledo, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Mar. 26, 1924. Serial No. 701,887. 11 Claims. (Cl. 49—55.)



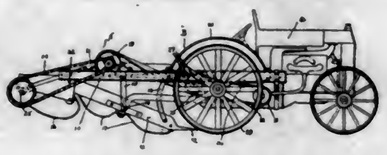
7. The combination of a container for molten glass, a cylindrical member extending upward from the floor of the container, and providing an open passageway for the discharge of glass, a regulator positioned in the glass above said member, said regulator having an annular extension or wall projecting downward and surrounding said member and spaced therefrom to provide a restricted annular passageway by which the glass enters said member, and automatic means for periodically moving said regulator up and down.

1,631,231. BREAD SLICER. HENDRIK STUKART, La Porte, Ind., assignor to U. S. Slicing Machine Company, La Porte, Ind., a Corporation of Indiana. Filed Dec. 31, 1923. Serial No. 683,547. 29 Claims. (Cl. 146—103.)



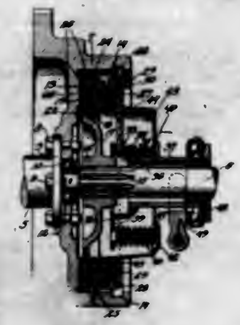
1. A bread slicing machine comprising a drive shaft, a knife mounted upon an axis eccentric of said drive shaft and bodily moved by said drive shaft for severing slices from a loaf of bread, means for rotating said knife about said axis while said axis is held stationary and a power motor for rotating said drive shaft.

1,631,232. CANDELABRUM. STEPHEN SZIGETHY, New York, N. Y. Filed June 7, 1926. Serial No. 114,127. 2 Claims. (Cl. 67—25.)



1. A candelabrum having arms composed of flat links, provided with polygonal openings in combination with means fitting into said openings and adapted to secure the links in different angular positions with respect to each other.

1,631,233. UNIT FOR CRUSHING AND DISTRIBUTING POWDERED STONE IN COAL MINES. SAMUEL TESCHER, Denver, Colo. Filed Nov. 20, 1924. Serial No. 751,132. 1 Claim. (Cl. 83—11.)



In a stone crushing and distributing unit, a pulverizer having a feed hopper at its upper end, a grated opening at its lower end, means for introducing air under pressure through the grated opening and an outlet for finely divided material communicating with the hopper.

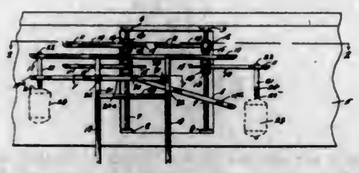
1,631,234. TRACTOR POTATO DIGGER. GOODWIN THORTVEDT, Glyndon, Minn. Filed Sept. 23, 1925. Serial No. 58,063. 3 Claims. (Cl. 97—47.)

1. A tractor potato digger unit having, a frame which is adapted to be detachably connected to a rigid frame fixed on a tractor, a digging shoe, an elevating conveyer associated with said shoe, a channel frame adapted to support said elevating conveyer and shoe, a drive pulley, means for connecting said drive pulley with said conveyer and a belt for connecting said drive pulley with the power pulley on a tractor to which said unit is attached.

1,631,235. CLUTCH. JOHN T. TRUMBLE, Detroit, Mich. Filed Oct. 17, 1921. Serial No. 508,291. 4 Claims. (Cl. 192—68.)

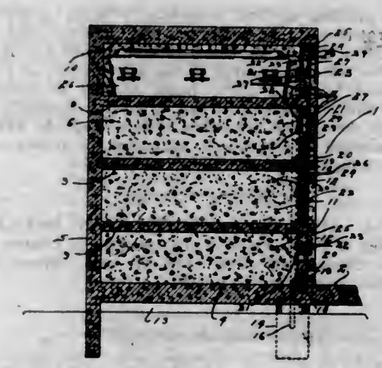
1. In a plate clutch, the combination of a driving member, a driven plate, a thrust ring carried by said member, said plate positioned between said ring and member, and means for forcing said ring and plate forward said member comprising levers fulcrumed at their outer ends upon said member, adjusting means positioned between said levers and said ring, and spring means carried by said ring and operative upon the inner ends of said lever.

1,631,236. DETACHABLE SHAFT. RALPH M. WEBNER, Brooklyn, N. Y. Filed Aug. 14, 1924. Serial No. 731,904. 12 Claims. (Cl. 180—1.)



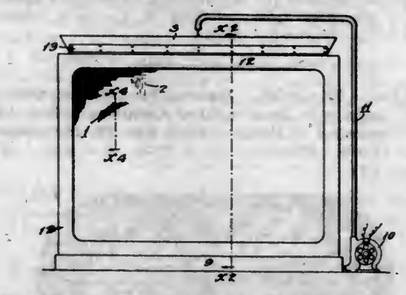
2. In an automotive construction, a chassis frame, rotating members carried by said chassis frame, sockets on said rotating members, a detachable shaft interlocking with said sockets, and means to permit said detachable shaft to be removed without separating the sockets or removing either of them.

1,631,237. DRIVE CHAIN. GEORGE W. WILMOT, Hazleton, Pa., assignor to Wilmot Engineering Company, Hazleton, Pa., a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Dec. 11, 1923. Serial No. 679,878. 6 Claims. (Cl. 74—32.)



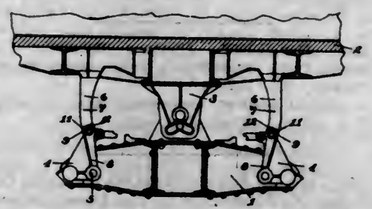
1. In a drive chain, the combination of a plurality of links arranged in overlapped end to end relation with respect to each other, the side bars of alternate links being provided with slots the edges of the outer end portions of which adjacent the opposite ends of said bars are inclined inwardly, and trunnions having connection with the other alternate links of the said chain, which trunnions are tapered inwardly to their inner ends and are in engagement with the inwardly tapered edge portions of said slots.

1,631,238. RAILWAY-MAIL-DELIVERY APPARATUS. HENRY A. WRIGHT, Halls, Tenn. Filed Feb. 19, 1926. Serial No. 89,394. 2 Claims. (Cl. 258—23.)



1. In a railway mail handling apparatus of the character set forth, a supporting frame, structure designed to be placed adjacent a railway line and comprising a pair of spaced upright members and transversely extending vertically spaced cross members connecting therebetween, a mail bag handling arm comprising a straight inner portion arranged parallel with and upon one side of one of said cross members, the inner end of said inner portion being pivotally secured to the adjacent cross member, an intermediate portion extending from the free end of said inner portion at an obtuse angle with respect to the same and an outer portion extending from the free end of said intermediate portion in offset parallel relation with the inner portion, a mail bag engaging element projecting from the free end of the outer portion of said arm, and removable means carried by an upright member designed to engage beneath the inner portion of the arm to normally maintain the same in horizontal position, said retaining means being shiftable to allow the arm to be raised or lowered as desired.

1,631,239. MAUSOLEUM. JOSEPH W. ZENGERLE, Mount Pleasant, Mich., assignor to The Flowers Mausoleum Company, Toledo, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Aug. 25, 1923. Serial No. 659,314. 2 Claims. (Cl. 72—7.)



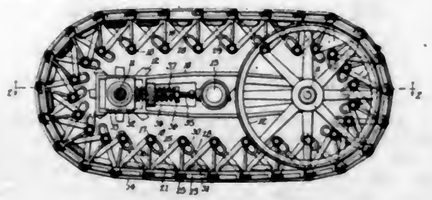
1. A mausoleum embodying a pair of parallel vertical series of adjacent crypts, there being a vertical partition separating one series from the other, a sand sump below said crypt partition wall, a drain duct in said partition wall extending directly downwardly from the wall into the sand of said sump, and branches into said separate crypts from said single duct, said duct being in sections between said branches as extending to the different vertical crypts, and fittings at said branches as assembly units whereby said duct is effective as a common seepage discharge line from a plurality of superposed crypts as well as a plurality of relatively horizontally disposed crypts, said sections being readily adaptable to a desired number of crypts both as superposed or as in horizontal pairs.

1,631,240. MOTION-PICTURE SCREEN. EDWARD H. AMET, Redondo Beach, Calif. Filed Dec. 23, 1924. Serial No. 757,603. 2 Claims. (Cl. 88—24.)

2. A picture screen comprising a net of suitable wire mesh, the openings in said net being covered by a continuous flow of liquid to form a film of predetermined color and translucency, the film acting as a reflecting surface when the light is projected onto the viewed side, and transmitting light when viewed from the other side; the wires of the net material remaining visible, substantially forming rectangular borders more or less broken at the angles, with a light absorbing surface between the borders so that reflecting surfaces of the net are of lower value than the film are provided and serving to produce stereoscopic effect in a picture projected upon the screen.

1,631,241. SUPPORTING MECHANISM FOR DUMP CARS. WILLIAM L. BURNER, Koppel, Pa., and OSCAR E. KANTENWEIN, Oak Park, Ill., assignors to Koppel Industrial Car and Equipment Company, Pittsburgh, Pa., a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Oct. 29, 1925. Serial No. 65,564. 5 Claims. (Cl. 105—270.)

3. In a dump car, an underframe, a body tiltably mounted on said underframe, a member pivotally mounted on said under-frame adapted to support said body in its normal righted position, said member embodying means whereby the engaging bearing surfaces between said body and support are maintained substantially parallel.



1,631,242. BOLT-ACTION FIREARM. FRANK F. BURTON, Mount Carmel, Conn., assignor to Winchester Repeating Arms Co., New Haven, Conn., a Corporation. Filed Nov. 28, 1925. Serial No. 71,896. 1 Claim. (Cl. 42—16.)

In a bolt-action firearm, the combination with a receiver, having a longitudinal guide-surface, of a reciprocating breech-bolt provided with a locking-lug at its front end, a cam-lug at its rear end, and a guide-member positioned between the said lugs; the said lugs and the said guide-member being adapted to co-operate with the said guide-surface of the said receiver, whereby the breech-bolt is prevented from cramping in the said receiver when being reciprocated therein.

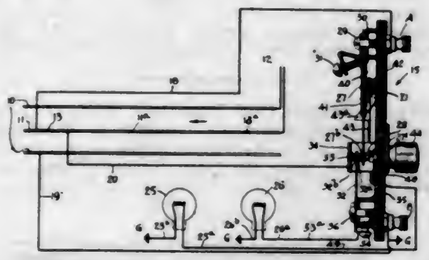
1,631,243. TRACTOR. ADDISON N. CALKINS, Quincy, Ill., assignor to Electric Wheel Company, Quincy, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed Mar. 25, 1925. Serial No. 18,089. Renewed Apr. 1, 1926. 7 Claims. (Cl. 305—10.)

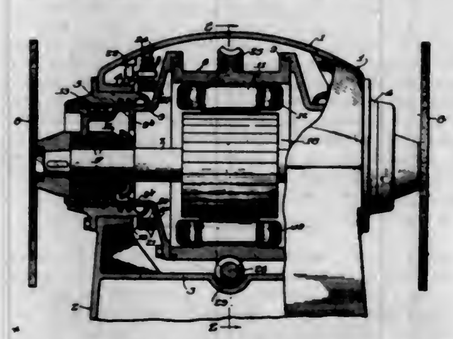


3. A tractor of the character described comprising an endless chain having a series of link sections each including a tread portion, means pivotally connecting adjacent tread portions together, an inwardly extending frame structure rigid with each tread portion and having a pivot bearing mounted therein substantially in the vertical plane containing one edge of the tread portion, a member connecting said pivot bearing and the corresponding edge of the adjacent tread portion adapted to permit relative pivotal movement between the sections in one direction and to prevent relative pivotal movement in the opposite direction, said frame structure including a rigid arm arranged approximately perpendicular to said member, and a second arm between the inner end of the first arm and the tread portion.

1,631,244. MEDICINE. CHARLES EDGERTON CARTER, Pasadena, Calif. Filed Feb. 9, 1926. Serial No. 87,091. 4 Claims. (Cl. 167—7.)

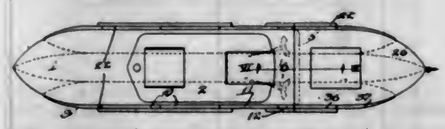
1. A medical product comprising sugar of milk suspended in medical oil and agar agar.

1,631,245. TOY ELECTRIC RAILWAY. LOUIS CARUSO, Irvington, N. J., assignor to The Lionel Corporation, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed May 8, 1925. Serial No. 28,763. 30 Claims. (Cl. 104—149.)



1. A toy railroad including tracks, a "third" rail having an insulated section free from moving parts, an electric train adapted to operate on and to receive power from said tracks and rail, and means mechanically independent of said tracks and rail for automatically restarting the train after having stopped on said insulated section.

1,631,246. BAR CUFF LINK. EDWARD FOSTER CLARK, North Attleboro, Mass. Filed Mar. 11, 1926. Serial No. 93,881. 4 Claims. (Cl. 24—100.)



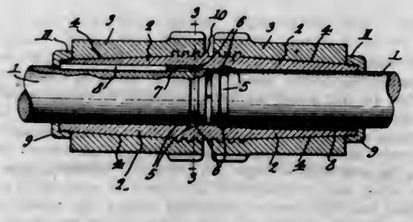
1. In a bar cuff-link, a bar having a riveting tang at one end; a slotted anchor plate secured to the bar by the riveting tang; a face plate; a crimped-in rim element around the face plate and the anchor plate, securing them in operative relation.

1,631,247. GYRATORY GRINDING MACHINE. CONRAD M. CONRADSON, Green Bay, Wis. Filed June 23, 1925. Serial No. 39,414. 6 Claims. (Cl. 51—120.)

1. A grinding machine comprising a frame, a spindle support journalled in said frame for rotation about a fixed axis, a spindle journalled in said support and rotative about an axis eccentric to the axis thereof, an electric motor having a stator frame forming an integral part of said spindle support and disposed eccentrically to the axis thereof and concentric with said spindle and a rotor mounted on said spindle, and means for driving said spindle support independently of said spindle.

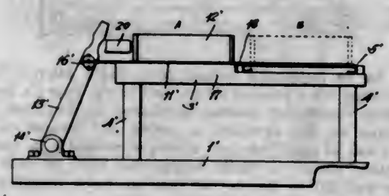
1,631,248. AUTO MARINE VEHICLE AND TRAILER. ALBERT E. COOK, Evanston, Ill., assignor to Charles B. Cook, Chicago, Ill. Filed Aug. 17, 1925. Serial No. 50,734. 18 Claims. (Cl. 115—1.)

1. A land and water craft comprising a main body portion, driving means therein, a trailer, interfitting pontoon sections on said main body portion and on said trailer, and wheels carried by certain of said pontoon sections for supporting the main body section and the trailer when used as a land vehicle.



16. The combination with a land and water vehicle, of a trailer adapted to be drawn after the vehicle when the same is used on the land, and means for rigidly securing the trailer to the vehicle to increase the length thereof when the vehicle is used as a water craft.

1,631,249. INVESTMENT COMPOSITION. CLIFFORD L. CORFMAN, Spokane, Wash. Filed Dec. 30, 1925. Serial No. 78,384. 2 Claims. (Cl. 22—188.)

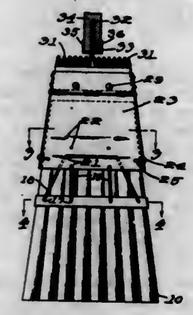


1. An investment composition for dental use comprising magnesite as a base and plaster of Paris.

1,631,250. BOLTLESS SLEEVE COUPLING. FREDERICK W. DANIEL, Sr., Jacksonville, Fla. Filed June 22, 1925. Serial No. 38,813. 3 Claims. (Cl. 287—111.)

1. The combination with members to be joined, of laterally separable retainers disposed about said members and receiving the ends thereof, sleeves threaded on the retainers, the sleeves and the retainers having cooperating longitudinally inclined surfaces which coact to move the retainers inwardly with respect to said members when the sleeves are threaded toward each other, said members and the retainers having longitudinal seats, keys in the seats, and securing devices mounted on the retainers and engaging both the keys and the sleeves.

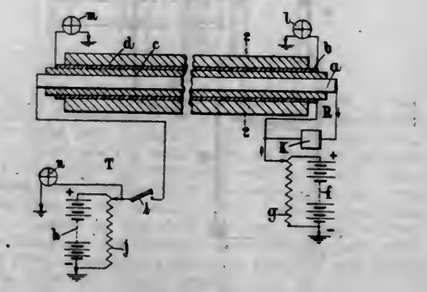
1,631,251. BRICK-MAKING MACHINE. ROY P. M. DAVIS, Mount Union, Pa. Filed Sept. 2, 1926. Serial No. 133,186. 2 Claims. (Cl. 25—41.)



2. A brick making machine comprising an anvil plate having a mold supporting surface and a pallet supporting surface at different levels, with mold and pallet thereon, a liner plate between the mold and the mold supporting surface and extending over and above said pallet, means for moving the mold after the filling operation across said liner plate to a position thereon above said pallet, and means for withdrawing the liner plate from between the mold and the pallet.

1,631,252. PRODUCT OBTAINED FROM MOLASSES AND PROCESS OF PREPARING SAME. WALTER H. DICKERSON, East Orange, N. J., assignor to Industrial Waste Products Corporation, Dover, Del., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Dec. 29, 1922. Serial No. 609,765. 10 Claims. (Cl. 71—6.)

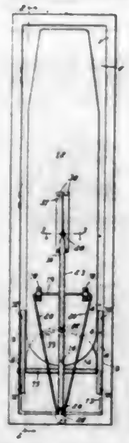
1. Fertilizer obtained from refuse molasses and in the form of a powder consisting of dry, charred particles.



4. Process of treating refuse molasses, which consists in spraying same into a gaseous medium of a temperature sufficient to char the particles thereof.

1,631,253. REVERSIBLE BROOM. WILFRED DUPRÉ, Worcester, Mass. Filed Jan. 28, 1925. Serial No. 5,330. 2 Claims. (Cl. 15—172.)

1. In a broom, the combination of a casing for holding the broom head, said casing having converging sides and ends and having a cover constituting one side hinged to the rest of the casing, and a pair of wires pivotally mounted in the opposite edges of the casing and each adapted to be turned on itself as an axis and each having two parallel ends adapted to engage the outer surface of the cover and the opposite surface of the casing to hold the cover closed.



1,631,254. MEANS OF AND APPARATUS FOR TRANSMITTING MESSAGES THROUGH SUBMARINE AND OTHER LIKE CABLES. WILLIAM ESTAUGH, Wanstead, England. Filed Apr. 8, 1925, Serial No. 21,676, and in Great Britain Apr. 16, 1924. 3 Claims. (Cl. 178—63.)

1. Method of transmitting electric impulses through a cable consisting in surrounding an inner insulated signal conductor with an outer insulated conductor both of which are connected to the same pole of an earthed charging source at the receiving end and connecting the transmitting end of the inner conductor to the pole of the same sign of an earthed signalling source of higher potential through a key so that the excess charge will be discharged through a receiver located between the end of the inner conductor and the charging source at the receiving end when the signalling source is disconnected, substantially as set forth.

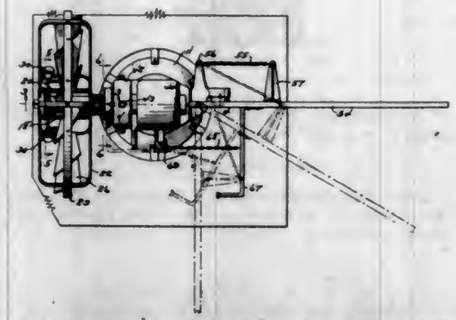
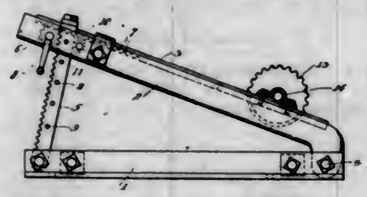
1,631,255. IRONING BOARD. LEVIN FAUST, Rockford, Ill., assignor to Rockford Steel Furniture Company, Rockford, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed Mar. 12, 1925. Serial No. 14,854. 5 Claims. (Cl. 68—10.)



1. In a foldable ironing table of the type described, the combination with a cabinet; of slideways in said cabinet, a frame mounted in said slideways at its sides, an ironing board flexibly connected to said frame, a brace pivoted at its upper end to the underside of the ironing board and swiveled to the bottom of the cabinet, and an additional brace slidably connected to the under side of the ironing board outwardly of the aforesaid brace and also swiveled to the bottom of the cabinet.

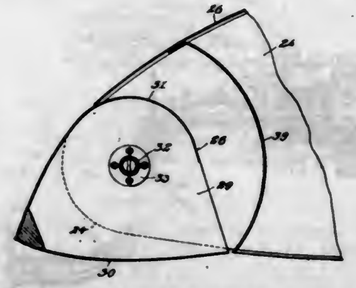
1,631,256. RADIAL DRILLING MACHINE. GEORGE FEATHER, Halifax, England. Filed Feb. 17, 1926, Serial No. 88,878, and in Great Britain Feb. 24, 1925. 2 Claims. (Cl. 77—28.)



1. A radial drilling machine comprising a pillar having a lower portion of one diameter and an upper portion of smaller diameter, and an arm socket having lower and upper portions slidable freely upwardly and downwardly on and corresponding in diameters to said lower and upper portions of the pillar, respectively, each of said portions of the pillar being of a vertical height greater than the maximum distance of vertical movement of the arm socket, and said portions of the arm socket being spaced apart farther than said maximum distance of movement.

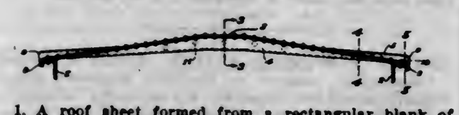
1,631,257. GENERATING POWER PLANT. JULIA FISHER, Bolckow, Mo. Filed Nov. 6, 1925. Serial No. 67,349. 4 Claims. (Cl. 170—68.)

1. In a windmill, a horizontally rotatable head, a wheel mounted upon the head, pivotally mounted blades included in the wheel, an independently rotatable annular member carried by the wheel, means connecting said member and blade to move the latter pivotally when the annular member is rotated, centrifugal governors carried by and located upon diametrically opposite sides of the wheel and controlled by the speed of rotation of said wheel, yieldable means extending across the wheel and connecting the governors to resist outward movement of said governors and means connecting the governors and annular member to rotate the latter when the governors are operated.



1,631,258. DOUBLE-ADJUSTABLE-DRIVE-CHAIN IDLER. HENRY GRADY GAY, Mankins, Tex. Filed Oct. 18, 1926. Serial No. 142,477. 6 Claims. (Cl. 64—5.)

1. In an adjustable rotary drive chain idler, a base, a carriage track pivoted at one end to the base; a geared carriage capable of endwise movement on the track, and carrying an idle sprocket; a geared lift pivoted to the other end of said base and arranged normally in upright position; means to dually engage the gears of said carriage and lift to elevate the carriage track simultaneous with sliding movement of said carriage.



1,631,259. VARIABLE LIFT—VARIABLE-RESISTANCE AEROFOIL. WILLIAM L. GILMORE, Port Washington, N. Y., assignor, by mesne assignments, to Curtiss Aeroplane and Motor Company, Inc., Garden City, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Dec. 27, 1920. Serial No. 433,091. 8 Claims. (Cl. 244—12.)

8. In an aerofoil, a fixed nose portion having an opening extending longitudinally of its length in the vicinity of the leading edge of the aerofoil, an adjustable nose portion movable relatively to said fixed nose portion and means operable to move said adjustable nose portion, said adjustable nose portion in one position of adjustment being adapted to extend through said opening to present a relatively low and somewhat extended leading edge and in a different position of adjustment being adapted to extend through said opening and to present a relatively high and somewhat retracted leading edge.

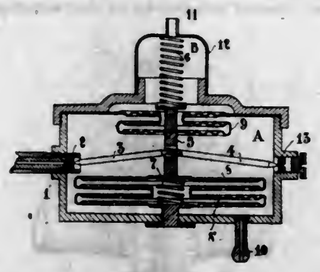
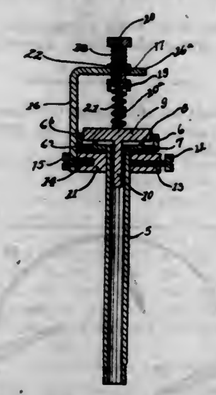
1,631,260. METAL ROOF FOR FREIGHT CARS. GARTH G. GILPIN, Riverside, Ill., assignor to P. H. Murphy Company, New Kensington, Pa., a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Feb. 3, 1922. Serial No. 533,840. 9 Claims. (Cl. 108—5.4.)



1. A roof sheet formed from a rectangular blank of metal having parallel ribs therein adjacent the opposite edges extending from opposite sides of the sheet, the ribs adjacent one edge extending from the ends of the sheet and merging into the plane of the sheet intermediate the ends and ridge or center line, and having a flange extending exteriorly of the ribs lying in the plane of the sheet.

1,631,261. GARTER. CHARLES GLOWACKI, Philadelphia, Pa. Filed Dec. 18, 1925. Serial No. 76,168. 4 Claims. (Cl. 241—6.)

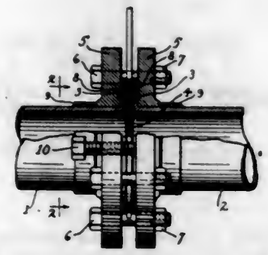


1. A support of the class described comprising a body portion, fastening means on one extremity of said body portion adapted to be attached to the other end thereof, said body portion having a plurality of superimposed parallel slots and extending longitudinally thereof, a depending extension secured to said body portion directly below said slots, said depending portion being adapted to be laced through any desired one of said slots for adjusting the effective length thereof, and a fastening member secured to the lower end of said depending portions adapted for attachment to hose.

1,631,262. VARIABLE-PRESSURE-OPERATED EXPANSION DEVICE. CHARLES EDOUARD PIERRE GOUDOU, St. Mande, France. Filed Jan. 23, 1926, Serial No. 83,294, and in France Feb. 5, 1925. 2 Claims. (Cl. 137—153.)

2. A variable pressure operated expansion device comprising a fluid tight chamber closed on one side by a diaphragm on the top of which a fluid under variable pressure exerts action, a rod integral with said diaphragm, an aneroid cap and springs exerting their action on the said rod, links controlled by the said rod, a valve operated by one of said links to control the admission of the fluid to be expanded into the chamber, and an outlet from the chamber for the fluid expanded therein.

1,631,263. PRESSURE-OPERABLE VALVE. SAMUEL GREENHOUSE, Akron, Ohio. Filed Apr. 9, 1924. Serial No. 705,258. 5 Claims. (Cl. 137—53.)



4. In a device of the class described, a tube, a concentrically arranged disk on the upper end thereof, said disk provided with a concentrically arranged up-standing annular valve seat, a weighted valve mounted on said seat, a stem projecting from each axial end of said valve, the downwardly projecting stem positioned in the bore of said tube, a coil spring on the upwardly projecting stem, a collar on said tube, an arm secured to said collar, the upper end of said arm over-hanging said valve and a screw operatively mounted in said arm and engaging the upper end of said spring.

1,631,264. ORIFICE-METER CONNECTION. HARRY M. HALDEMAN, Los Angeles, Calif. Filed Apr. 24, 1926. Serial No. 104,265. 3 Claims. (Cl. 137—75.)

1. In an orifice-meter connection, the combination of two opposed pipe sections having integral collars at their adjacent ends, a pipe flange corresponding to each collar and mounted loosely on its corresponding pipe section, an orifice-meter plate between the collars and having an opening through it, connecting means for drawing the flanges together to clamp the meter plate between the collars, a shoulder ring corresponding to each pipe connection and disposed adjacent to its corresponding flange, and means associated with the flanges for forcing the same apart when the said connecting means for the flanges have been removed, said rings operating to take the thrust of the flanges in the separating movement to effect the separation of the collars and permit the removal of the meter plate.

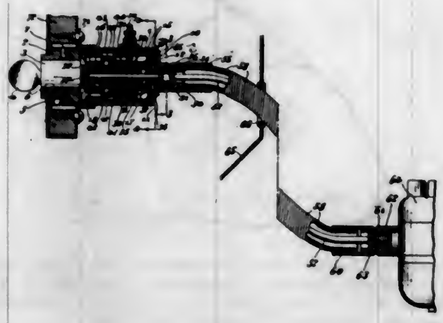
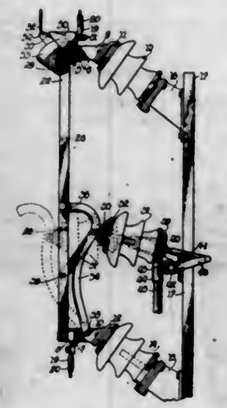
1,631,265. ADHESIVE. JOHN J. HARRIS, Chicago, Ill. Filed Aug. 29, 1924. Serial No. 734,879. 3 Claims. (Cl. 87—17.)



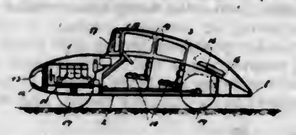
1. An adhesive, comprising a dispersion of bentonite, silicate of soda, water, and rubber dissolved in a rubber solvent.

1,631,266. WASHING MACHINE. WILLIAM C. HASHA, Long Beach, Calif. Filed Sept. 17, 1925. Serial No. 56,883. 3 Claims. (Cl. 68—18.)



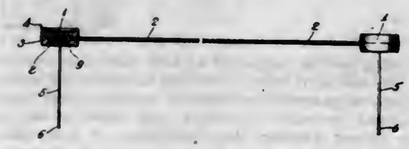
1. In a washing machine, a clothes receiving cylinder comprising V-shaped shelves therein, said shelves having corrugations thereon and each shelf having its outer and pointed end disposed normal to the adjacent shelf, means for slowly revolving the cylinder to permit the clothes to drop from one shelf onto the adjacent shelf and from the latter onto the bottom of the cylinder and means for injecting a washing fluid through the center of the cylinder and against the clothes in said cylinder.

1,631,267. AUTOMOBILE LOCKING MEANS. WILSON HEMINGWAY, Jr., Melrose, Pa., assignor to The Electrolock Manufacturing Company, Vicksburg, Miss., a Corporation of Mississippi. Filed July 7, 1926. Serial No. 120,965. 8 Claims. (Cl. 70—127.)



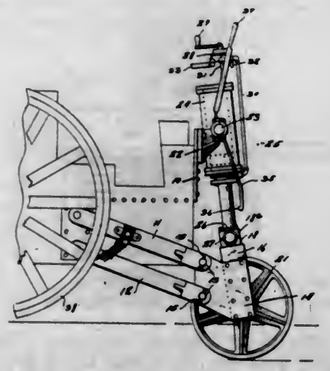
8. In a device of the character described, the combination of a switch mechanism, a conductor for connecting said switch mechanism to an ignition system, said conductor having detachable connection with said switch mechanism, and means acting to lock the said conductor against detachment from said switch mechanism when the latter is operated into off position.

1,631,268. ELECTRICAL SWITCH. ERNEST H. JACOBS, Chicago, Ill., assignor to Electrical Engineers Equipment Company, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed May 14, 1920. Serial No. 381,234. 19 Claims. (Cl. 200—48.)



19. In a disconnecting switch, a pair of insulated terminals, an intermediate insulated movable member between the terminals, a switch knife upon one of the terminals, contact devices adapted to engage with the knife, a hood covering the contact devices and having a downwardly facing opening, electrical connections between the contact devices and the second terminal and means operating through the insulated movable member for throwing the hood and contact devices to disconnect and connect while maintaining the opening in downwardly facing position.

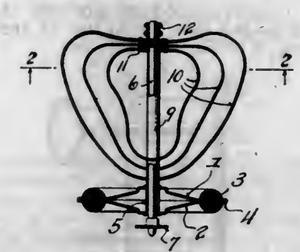
1,631,269. MOTOR CAR. PAUL JARAY, Friedrichshafen, Germany. Filed Aug. 19, 1922, Serial No. 582,975, and in Germany Jan. 31, 1922. 12 Claims. (Cl. 296—28.)



12. A motor car comprising a body the vertical longitudinal section of which substantially resembles the vertical longitudinal section of the upper half of a stream line body, the plane of symmetry of which being the surface of the ground.

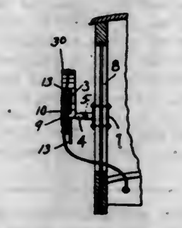
1,631,270. GOLF TEE. ELEANOR H. JONES, Boston, Mass. Filed July 31, 1926. Serial No. 126,162. 8 Claims. (Cl. 273—33.)

1. A golf tee comprising a brace of ball-supporting members each having a ball-supporting head and a shank for insertion into the ground, said shanks having their upper portions connected by a leash, and said ball-supporting heads being molded upon, and completely surrounding the attachment between said shanks and said leash.



1,631,271. ROLLER TRACTOR. RAYMOND W. KEELER, Galion, Ohio, assignor to The Galion Iron Works & Mfg. Co., Galion, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Apr. 15, 1926. Serial No. 102,252. 8 Claims. (Cl. 94—50.)

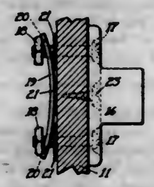
1. In a roller tractor, a roller and a frame supporting the same, links pivotally connecting the frame to the sides of the tractor, and valve controlled means for raising or depressing the roller, including a cylinder mounted upon the tractor, a piston operatively connected to the roller supporting frame, and means for applying fluid pressure to one side or the other of the piston.



1,631,272. TOY TOP. STANISLAW KIELAR, Milwaukee, Wis. Filed Apr. 9, 1926. Serial No. 100,879. 2 Claims. (Cl. 46—32.)

1. A top comprising a body portion and a weighted peripheral edge having a vertical spindle, a spacing sleeve carried by said spindle, a plurality of members of different designs and apertured to loosely receive the sleeve at their lower portions and supported by the upper end of the sleeve, and apertured at their upper portions to loosely receive the spindle, and a retaining collar carried by the upper end of the spindle.

2. A top comprising a body portion formed of two stamped sheet metal members, each of said members having a peripheral groove, a heavy ring carried within said grooves, said metal members having outwardly projecting flanges beaded together, a hub rigidly carried by said members, and a spindle rigidly carried by said hub.



1,631,273. VEHICLE TRAFFIC SIGNAL. EIGINO KIMURA, San Pedro, Calif. Filed May 20, 1926. Serial No. 110,376. 2 Claims. (Cl. 116—40.)

1. The combination with the lazy tongs and a signal thereon of a sector having a notched arc; a pivot post to which the sector is fixed; a bracket on which the pivot post is hinged on a vertical axis; a lever pivoted to the center of the sector and to the post; a handle on the lever; a spring actuated latch provided with a detent adapted to engage the notches in the arc of the sector; a handle for the latch, a spring to hold the latch normally in arc engaging position and said lazy tongs adapted for adjustment to dispose said segment at right angles to said post,

1,631,274. PNEUMATIC-PUMP CONSTRUCTION. HUBERT J. LA JOIE, New York, N. Y., assignor to Auto Pneumatic Action Company, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Nov. 19, 1925. Serial No. 70,155. 3 Claims. (Cl. 230—2.)

1. In a pneumatic bellows, a bellows leaf, a bracket through which said bellows leaf is operated, said bracket and leaf having a plurality of aligned openings, bolts extending through said openings, nuts on said bolts, a perforated spring plate mounted on said bolts and interposed between said nuts and said bellows leaf, and cushion devices interposed between said plate and said leaf at the ends and center of said plate, said plate being under tension and exerting a strong outward pressure against said nuts.

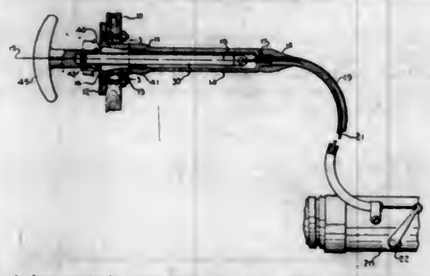
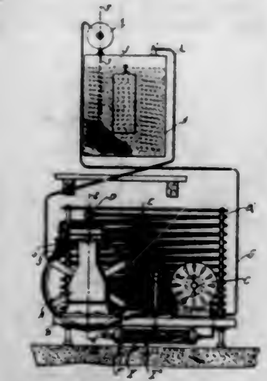
1,631,275. COLLAPSIBLE-TUBE HOLDER. ARTHUR G. LEAKE, Bridgeport, Conn. Filed Mar. 17, 1926. Serial No. 95,228. 5 Claims. (Cl. 221—60.)

1. In a collapsible tube holder of the character described, a bracket, means carried by the bracket to grip the discharge end of a tube to support the same, said bracket being provided with a longitudinal slot in its front wall, a rotatable key extending outwardly from the bracket for winding and compressing a tube and extending through the slot at its inner end, and a slidable support secured to the key at the rear of the plate and cooperating with the plate for slidably maintaining the key in said slot.



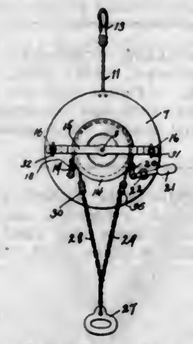
1,631,276. CASING WAGON. JOHN D. LEMEX, Tulsa, Okla. Filed Feb. 16, 1922. Serial No. 536,881. 4 Claims. (Cl. 280—49.)



1. A casing wagon comprising in an integral cast metal structure a platform having a relatively wide forward portion and a relatively narrow rear portion having an opening therein, said structure having a vertical transversely extending plate formed with a reinforced lower edge, axles projecting from the ends of the reinforced portion, a pair of spaced apart webs extending from the transversely extending plate and under the narrow rear portion, an inclined adjustable post in the opening, and cooperating means on the post and in the opening for securing the inclined post in the opening.

1,631,277. DASHBOARD CONTROL. GEORGE F. LONG, New York, N. Y., assignor, by mesne assignments, to Steiner Electric Corporation, Long Island City, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Oct. 5, 1923. Serial No. 666,664. 1 Claim. (Cl. 74—39.)

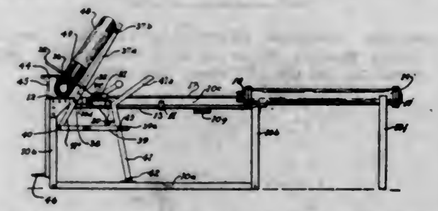
A manual control for mechanism, comprising a casing having a hollow bore terminating in an enlarged recess, the outer portion of said recess being tapered inwardly and the inner portion thereof being provided with an internal screw thread, a single split collet positioned within said recess, said collet having an outer tapered portion and inner externally threaded portion adapted to cooperate with the corresponding portions of the recess in said casing, said collet being also provided with a central bore having an irregular contour; a longitudinally slidable member positioned within said collet, said member being adapted at one end for attachment to a mechanism operating means and being adapted at the other end for attachment to an actuating handle, said slidable member being entirely supported by said collet and being of a contour similar to that of the bore in said collet, whereby relative longitudinal movement is permitted and relative rotational movement prevented, said collet in one position thereof allowing free movement of said slidable member and being adapted when rotated in response to rotational movement of said slidable member to engage with the tapered walls of said recess and cooperate therewith to firmly lock said member against longitudinal movement.



1,631,278. REFRIGERATING SYSTEM. UBALD R. LORANGER and HUBERT R. LORANGER, Detroit, Mich. Filed Apr. 6, 1925. Serial No. 21,125. 9 Claims. (Cl. 62—115.)

1. A refrigerating apparatus comprising a pump for compressing a refrigerating medium having acid forming properties, a condenser for the compressed medium, expansion coils for the condensed medium, and a valve controlling the flow of the condensed medium from the condenser to said coils, certain parts of the elements aforesaid being formed of materials substantially non-corrodible by the acid formed from said medium.

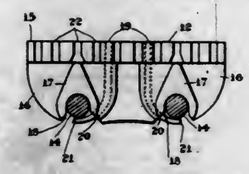
1,631,279. LIFE-SAVING DEVICE. JAMES MANDY, New York, N. Y., assignor of thirty-five per cent to Louis Mandy, New York, N. Y. Filed Jan. 29, 1925. Serial No. 5,484. 3 Claims. (Cl. 227—22.)



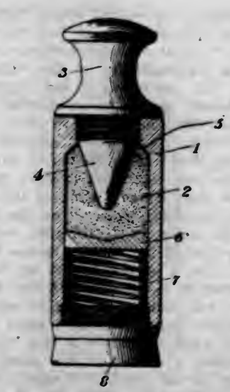
1. In an apparatus of the class described, in combination with a suitable casing and supporting elements therefor, a wheel member mounted on a central shaft, friction bands between the inner face of the said wheel, and the said casing, and means to adjust the said wheel to exert a permanent pressure on the said bands, an inwardly disposed rim on the said wheel which acts to retain the said bands in position and also serves to present a frictional bearing surface, a brake band which partially encircles same, and another brake band resting over the first mentioned brake band, and means to apply a pressure to the said brake bands.

1,631,280. MANUFACTURE OF PRODUCTS FROM AROMATIC AMINES AND SULPHUR CHLORIDE. JOSEPH V. MEIGS, Montclair, N. J., assignor, by mesne assignments, to Carlton Ellis, Montclair, N. J. Filed May 10, 1919. Serial No. 296,057. 6 Claims. (Cl. 260—23.)

1. The process which consists in contacting the sulphur chloride with aniline itself dissolved in a solvent in the form of a concentrated solution while maintaining the mixture cool.



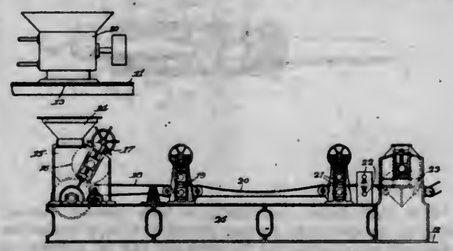
1,631,281. MACHINE FOR REMOVING AIR BAGS FROM TIRES. HOWARD P. MOORE, Cuyahoga Falls, Ohio, assignor to The Mohawk Rubber Company, Akron, Ohio, a Corporation of New York. Filed July 29, 1926. Serial No. 125,745. 14 Claims. (Cl. 18—2.)



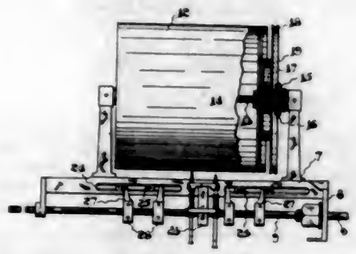
1. In a device of the class described, a suitable frame, a tire rack pivotally mounted thereon for swinging movement between a forward inclination and a rearward inclination, a tire support positioned forwardly of said rack, a downwardly presented, vertically operable hook mounted forwardly of said support, a track on said frame, said track extending rearwardly from said support, a carriage on said track a downwardly presented forwardly projecting hook hingedly connected to said carriage and means to move said carriage on said track, said means also moving said rack from one inclined position to the other.

1,631,282. CHAIN GRATE FOR FURNACES. ARTHUR L. MORGAN, Montreal, Quebec, Canada. Filed Sept. 25, 1925. Serial No. 58,659. 2 Claims. (Cl. 110—40.)

2. A chain grate link presenting a fuel bearing surface formed with an integral depending web having a slot extending inwardly from one edge thereof to receive a link supporting rod, there being a passage formed in said bearing surface and web to extend downwardly therethrough from the top of the bearing surface at one side of the slot with the lower end of the passage curving toward the slot and communicating therewith at one side of and adjacent the mouth portion of the slot and a pin of greater length than said passage adapted to be driven downwardly therethrough whereby the lower end of the pin is guided by the curved portion of the passage to project across the mouth of the slot to retain the supporting rod therein.

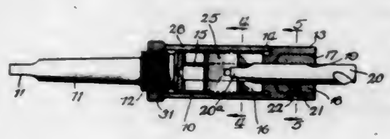


1,631,283. LIP STICK. EMERSON ERNEST MORGAN, Yonkers, and WALLACE HERBERT DAY, New Rochelle, N. Y. Filed Apr. 14, 1926. Serial No. 101,858. 9 Claims. (Cl. 132—82.)



1. A device of the class described comprising a container for the reception of a mobile substance, an applicator detachably associated with the container and serving as a cover therefor and means for producing an intimate contact between the substance and the applicator.

1,631,284. PROCESS OF MANUFACTURING MASTIC TILE AND THE LIKE. FRANKLYN R. MULLER, Lake Bluff, Ill., assignor to Franklyn R. Muller, Inc., Waukegan, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed Aug. 30, 1926. Serial No. 132,460. 4 Claims. (Cl. 25—156.)

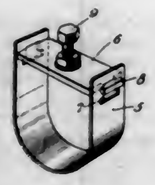


1. A process of producing sheet mastic which includes heating and mixing the ingredients thereof, passing the plastic material thus produced through chilled forming rolls, squeeze rolls, and a liquid spray.

1,631,285. INDICATOR FOR SETTING STEAM-ENGINE VALVES. STANLEY B. MUSSELMAN, Sarina, Ontario, Canada. Filed June 8, 1925. Serial No. 35,827. 4 Claims. (Cl. 234—1.)

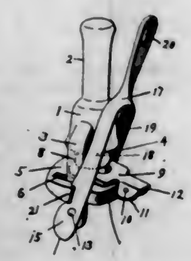
3. In an indicator for setting steam engine valves, the combination of a frame adapted for connection at the end of the valve chest of a locomotive; indicator members adjustable longitudinally of the frame to indicate port openings and positions; a rod slidable longitudinally of the frame; means for connecting the rod with the end of the valve in the valve chest; pointers adjustable longitudinally of the rod adapted to be set to accord with the positions of the valve parts and to co-operate with the port indicators to show the positions of the valves and ports at any point of the stroke of the valve; a drum rotatably mounted on the frame; means for rotating the drum in synchronism with the movements of the piston of the engine; means for freeing the drum at will; and a stylus carried by the sliding rod aforesaid adapted to co-operate with the drum, the said port indicators and pointers serving to enable the stylus to be set to scribe datum lines on a sheet carried by the drum aforesaid when the latter is free, the stylus being adapted to scribe a curve on the sheet compounding the movements of the valve and piston rod when the drum is rotated in synchronism with the movements of the said rod.

1,631,286. DRILL HOLDER. FREBERT J. PETERS, Richmond, Ind., assignor to The National Automatic Tool Co., Richmond, Ind., a Corporation of Indiana. Filed May 3, 1923. Serial No. 636,284. 7 Claims. (Cl. 279—9.)



1. A drill holder comprising a body member formed with an intermediate portion provided with a transverse slot and terminating at its forward end in a head; a drill centralizing collet removably secured in said head; a combined drill rotating and backing-block translatably mounted in said slot and having its projecting ends threaded; an internally threaded sleeve rotatably but non-translatably journaled coaxial with the intermediate portion of said body member and having a threaded connection only with said block; and means permitting said sleeve to be rotated to adjust said block axially of said body member.

1,631,287. PIE-FILLING COMPOUND. VITUS POTMAKER, San Francisco, Calif. Filed Feb. 8, 1926. Serial No. 86,925. 3 Claims. (Cl. 99—10.)

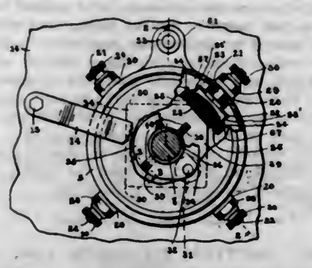


1. A pie filling compound comprising macerated sprouted wheat and roasted whole wheat flour mixed with water.

1,631,288. GROUND-CLAMP CONNECTER. EARL F. POTTER, Glencoe, Ill., assignor of one-half to George W. Rodormer, Park Ridge, Ill. Filed June 7, 1923. Serial No. 643,892. 4 Claims. (Cl. 173—273.)

1. A ground clamp connecter of the character described comprising a flexible metal strip formed into a U shape to embrace a pipe for an electrical connection, a bridge piece, said strip and bridge piece having interlocking T-heads and T-holes for removably securing the bridge piece to the strip across the open end so as to be laterally applicable to and removable from the pipe, and a clamping screw for securely holding the strip and bridge piece in electrical contact with the pipe embraced.

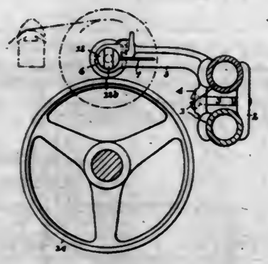
1,631,289. BOTTLE-CAPPING UTENSIL. ROBERT EDWIN REARDON, Columbia, Pa. Filed Aug. 2, 1926. Serial No. 126,429. 7 Claims. (Cl. 226—84.)



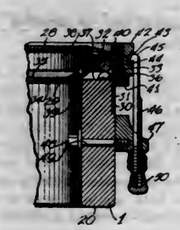
1. A capping die member, a bottle gripping member mounted so as to permit movement towards and away from said die member, a lever pivoted to one of said members below the top of the die member and co-acting means on the lever and the other member to cause movement of said members towards each other.

1,631,290. METHOD OF AND APPARATUS FOR OBTAINING DISRUPTIVE EFFECTS. JOHN M. SHEEDY, Richmond Hill, N. Y., and WESLEY MYERS, Bethlehem, Pa., assignors to The Etzel Company, Inc., New York, N. Y., a Corporation of Connecticut. Continuation of application Serial No. 78,257, filed Dec. 30, 1925. This application filed Feb. 11, 1927. Serial No. 168,248. 4 Claims. (Cl. 262—1.)

1. The method of disrupting rock or similar material which consists in confining a non-explosive fusible body in the material to be acted upon and supplying oxygen thereto and thereby causing disruption of the material by expansion without explosion.



1,631,291. TIMER. EMIL SINNER, Milwaukee, Wis. Filed Oct. 23, 1922. Serial No. 596,465. 10 Claims. (Cl. 200—26.)

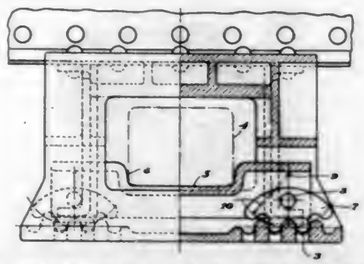


5. In a device of the character described, the combination with a rotary brush, of a pair of supports projecting toward the path of rotation of said brush and provided with recesses, a helical spring having its ends confined within said recesses, and an electrically conductive helical spring externally concentric with said first mentioned spring and abutting said supports about said recesses, said first mentioned spring having portions disposed in the path of rotation of said brush whereby to be contacted thereby.

1,631,292. WINDING MACHINE. GRANT SIPP, Paterson, N. J. Filed Aug. 19, 1926. Serial No. 130,204. 5 Claims. (Cl. 242—18.)

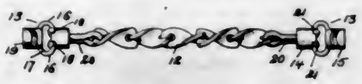
1. The combination, with a winding machine frame and a driving wheel rotatable therein on a horizontal axis, of means to support the package to be rotated in peripheral contact with the wheel and with its axis substantially horizontal including a bracket body member projecting from the frame and a bearing member removably secured in the body member and having a slot bearing extending across said bearing member transversely of the package axis and receiving a journal of the package.

1,631,293. BANJO. HENRY H. SLINGERLAND, River Forest, Ill. Filed Oct. 29, 1924. Serial No. 746,607. 3 Claims. (Cl. 84—270.)



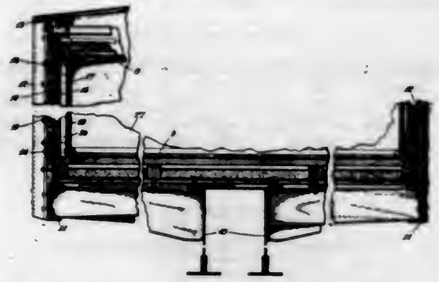
1. In a device of the type described, a cylindrical wall, a metal supporting member adapted to support a membrane carried by said wall and having an opening therein, a flange carried by said supporting member and bearing against the membrane, said flange extending outwardly away from said supporting member throughout the greater portion of its width.

1,631,294. DEVICE FOR OPERATING CAR COUPLERS. ARTHUR E. SMALL, Oak Park, Ill., assignor to Union Metal Products Company, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Delaware. Original application filed Oct. 8, 1924, Serial No. 742,395. Divided and this application filed Mar. 9, 1925. Serial No. 14,280. 4 Claims. (Cl. 213—170.)



1. A connector for a railway car coupler lock lifter and its operating rod comprising an open hook member, a bar passing through a portion of said member and having a threaded engagement therewith so as to be rotatable therethrough to open or close said hook, and means integral with the hook to prevent the rotation of the bar when desired.

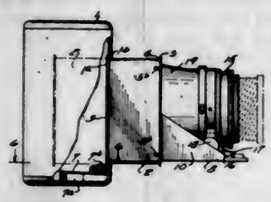
1,631,295. CENTERING DEVICE FOR CAR COUPLERS. ARTHUR E. SMALL, Oak Park, Ill., assignor to Union Metal Products Company, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Nov. 12, 1925. Serial No. 68,663. 4 Claims. (Cl. 213—21.)



1. A centering device for a car coupler comprising a member provided with a tread, a coupler carriage, and an eccentric wheel pivoted to said carriage to roll upon said tread.

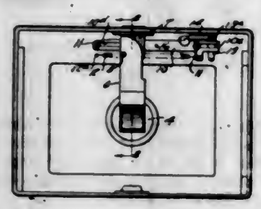
1,631,296. TIRE CHAIN. FRANK A. SMITH, Union City, Conn. Filed May 28, 1925. Serial No. 33,545. 6 Claims. (Cl. 152—14.)

1. In a tire chain, the combination with side chains; of cross chains; a coupling at each end of the cross chains, connected with a side chain and having an opening therein; and a connection between the links of the cross chain and the coupling that projects through said opening and terminates in radially projecting arms that engage and are held against movement in one direction by a surface on the coupling adjacent to the opening.



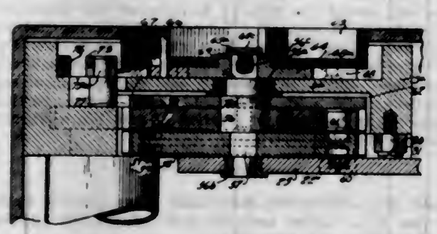
1,631,297. REFRIGERATOR CAR. LOTHAR VON DABROWSKI, Chicago, Ill., assignor to American Car and Foundry Company, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Feb. 7, 1923. Serial No. 617,625. 6 Claims. (Cl. 105—423.)

1. A refrigerator car construction comprising an exterior wall with its framing, and an inner wall carried by said exterior wall but spaced therefrom, and secured to said exterior wall without direct thermoconductive connection to said framing.



1,631,298. COLLAPSIBLE CAMERA. GEORGE WASHINGTON, Brooklyn, N. Y. Filed Feb. 1, 1926. Serial No. 85,127. 10 Claims. (Cl. 95—40.)

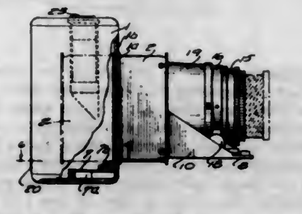
1. In a camera the combination, with a main casing having an opening in its front face, of a casing section fitting in said opening and adapted to telescope into said main casing, said telescoping section having a flange on its rear portion projecting laterally inside of said main casing and a groove in its outer wall face adjacent said



flange, and elastic pressure means inside said main casing for holding said telescoping section against the opposite edge of said main casing opening the said groove in engagement with said edge when the telescoping section is pulled out.

1,631,299. FOCUSING DEVICE FOR CAMERAS. GEORGE WASHINGTON, Brooklyn, N. Y. Filed Feb. 1, 1926. Serial No. 85,128. 10 Claims. (Cl. 95—42.)

1. In a camera having an enclosing casing provided with suitable apertures in the walls thereof, an objective lens supported in line with one of said apertures, and means for supporting inside said casing a sensitized film or plate in the focal plane of said lens, the combination, with the above recited elements, of a second lens in line with a second aperture in said casing, and reflecting apparatus located in said casing, separated from said second lens only by an open air space and so inclined and spaced apart from both said lenses as to cause the focal plane of light rays entering through said objective lens and reflected by said apparatus to coincide with the focal plane of said second lens at a point located in said open air space, whereby the object to be photographed can be viewed clearly and directly during the finding and focusing operations, as through a telescope.



1,631,300. SHUTTER MECHANISM FOR CAMERAS. GEORGE WASHINGTON, Brooklyn, N. Y. Filed Feb. 1, 1926. Serial No. 85,129. 9 Claims. (Cl. 95—57.)

1. In a camera having a shutter mechanism comprising two spring actuated curtains adapted to follow one another across the field of the camera object lens, rollers for said curtain and means for winding and unwinding said curtains upon and from said rollers, the combination, with said above recited elements, of a curtain setting and releasing mechanism comprising a recessed base block in the outer face of which said curtain rollers are journalled, a short shaft journaled in the interior of said block, two gear wheels, one connected to each curtain roller and nested in a recess in said block, one of said gear wheels being fast on said shaft and the other loosely rotatable thereon, cooperating projections on said gear wheels by which the relative rotation thereof is limited to one revolution, a fixed stop for limiting the rotation of the gear fast on said shaft to one revolution, means mounted on the exterior end of said shaft for simultaneously rotating said gears to set the shutter curtains, a pawl for holding or releasing the gear which is fast on said shaft, a second pawl for holding or releasing the other gear, and automatic means moving with said first mentioned gear for releasing said second pawl.

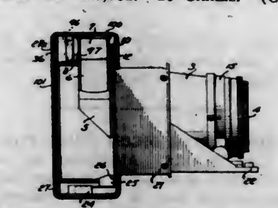
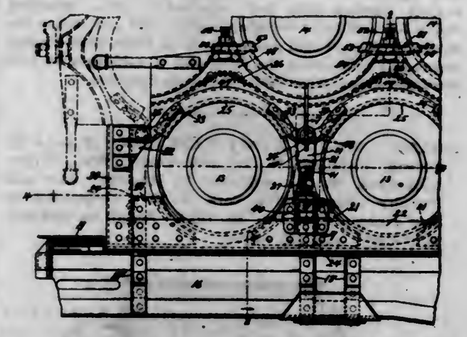
1,631,301. PHOTOGRAPHIC CAMERA. GEORGE WASHINGTON, Brooklyn, N. Y. Filed Feb. 1, 1926. Serial No. 85,130. 2 Claims. (Cl. 95—42.)



1. In a pocket camera the combination of a relatively flat casing adapted to be slipped into the pocket of a garment, a shutter curtain having winding and unwinding rollers mounted in either end of said casing, a mirror pivoted in said casing between said rollers on an axis perpendicular to the plane of said shutter curtain and adapted to either swing down into the focal axis of the camera lens or out along one edge of said curtain, and means for operating said shutter curtain adapted to be released by the outward swinging movement of said mirror, whereby said curtain is operated only after said mirror has swung out of the field of the camera lens.

1,631,302. FILM-WINDING SPOOL FOR CAMERAS. GEORGE WASHINGTON, Mendham, N. J. Original application filed Feb. 1, 1926, Serial No. 85,130. Divided and this application filed Aug. 12, 1926. Serial No. 128,740. 10 Claims. (Cl. 242—71.)



1. In a photographic camera, a take-up mechanism for the previously exposed portions of a sensitized film, which mechanism comprises, in combination, a casing, a spool adapted to fit into said casing and to be connected to that end of said film which has been previously exposed, two revoluble buttons journaled in opposite walls of said casing and having their outer faces exposed, centering means for said spool carried by said buttons, and a driving connection between one of said buttons and said spool whereby the operator may grasp the exposed surfaces of said buttons between the thumb and forefinger of one hand and by rotation of that hand positively rotate said spool.

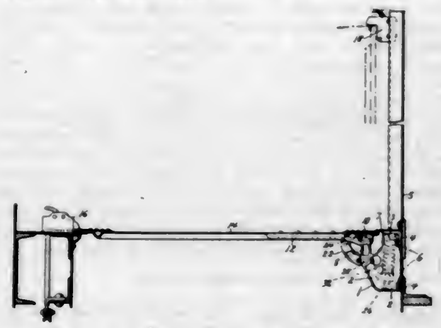
1,631,303. FINDING AND FOCUSING DEVICE FOR CAMERAS. GEORGE WASHINGTON, Mendham, N. J. Original application filed Feb. 1, 1926, Serial No. 85,128. Divided and this application filed Jan. 4, 1927. Serial No. 158,862. 10 Claims. (Cl. 95—42.)

1. In a camera comprising a casing having an aperture in its rear wall, an objective lens, and a support for a sensitized surface coincident with the focal plane of said objective lens, the combination, with the above recited apparatus, of a mirror movable into, and away from, the focal axis of said lens in front of said sensitized surface support and inclined to said axis, a second lens located in line with said aperture, and additional reflecting means separated from said first mentioned mirror only by an open air space extending between them and so inclined as to cause the focal plane of light rays passing through said second lens to coincide with the focal plane of the objective lens at a point in said open air space, when the image of an exterior object is reflected by said first mentioned mirror to said point.

1,631,304. TANK CAR. VICTOR WILLOUGHBY, Ridgewood, N. J., assignor to American Car and Foundry Company, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed June 15, 1926. Serial No. 116,128. 21 Claims. (Cl. 105—362.)

1. A multiple unit tank car construction comprising a car frame with tank seats; opposed connected unitary retaining frames for engaging the top sides of each tank adjacent each end thereof; and means for securing said retaining frames to the car frame.

1,631,305. SHUTTLE TENSION. GEORGE BRAHS, Paterson, N. J. Filed Nov. 17, 1926. Serial No. 148,969. 2 Claims. (Cl. 139—214.)



1. A tension lever for a shuttle tension device of the class described consisting of a piece of strip material having a fulcrum portion and bent into a succession of reverse bends all of which are also bent transversely on two substantially parallel lines to form together a skeleton thread-channel, each of the portions of the strip between said lines being substantially straight and parallel with the axis of said fulcrum portion and forming a guide proper for contact by the thread.

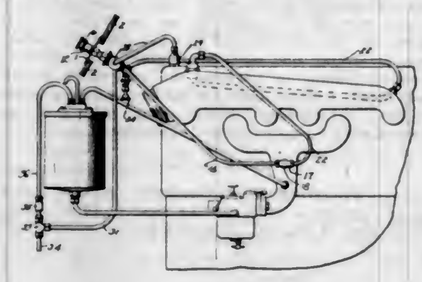
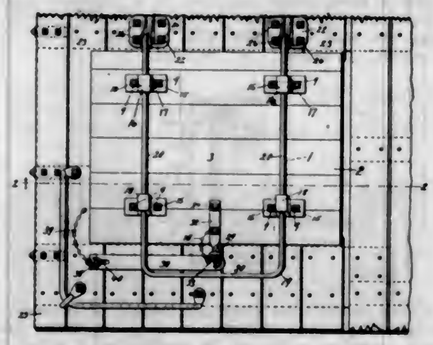
1,631,306. OPERATING MECHANISM FOR CAR-VESTIBULE TRAPDOORS. ALPHONSE A. CONSTANTINE, Jeffersonville, Ind., assignor to American Car and Foundry Company, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed July 21, 1925. Serial No. 45,092. 12 Claims. (Cl. 105—434.)



3. In a trap door operating mechanism, a hinge bracket for the door having door supporting arms, a door operating lever pivotally mounted on said hinge bracket between said door supporting arms, operating means for said lever engaging said bracket and means for hinging a door in said door supporting arms, said hinging means serving to limit the movement of said lever by said operating means when said bracket is detached.

1,631,307. MULTIPLE-UNIT TANK CAR. WARREN E. COOPER, Flushing, N. Y., and VICTOR WILLOUGHBY, Ridgewood, N. J., assignors to American Car and Foundry Company, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Feb. 15, 1924. Serial No. 693,002. 26 Claims. (Cl. 105—362.)

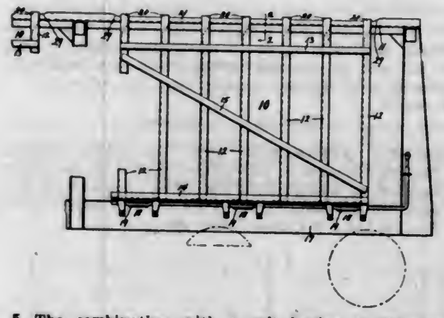


1. In a multiple unit tank car, a supporting means, tank units carried by said supporting means, securing members for said tank units pivotally mounted on said supporting means at the ends of each tank unit and means directly interconnecting the securing members of each tank unit, so as to draw on each against the other in forcing them into engagement with said tank unit.

1,631,308. HUMIDIFYING DEVICE FOR USE WITH INTERNAL-COMBUSTION ENGINES. ANDREW J. COPPOCK, Detroit, Mich. Filed Jan. 25, 1924. Serial No. 688,365. Renewed Apr. 15, 1927. 4 Claims. (Cl. 123—25.)

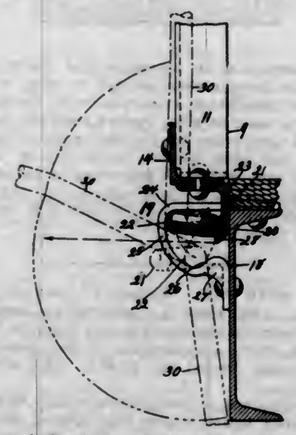
1. A humidifying device for use in an internal combustion engine comprising the combination with the engine having an intake manifold and a water space of a plate, a main conduit adjacent the plate and three valve members therefor manually operable from the side of the plate opposite the conduit, the said valves being in alignment and the center valve member providing an air inlet, a fuel conduit controlled by one of the end valves, a water conduit controlled by the other end valve, the said water conduit being open to the water space of the engine, and a discharge conduit opening to the intake manifold of the engine through which fluid passing any of the valves directly discharges.

1,631,309. HATCH-COVER OPERATING MEANS FOR REFRIGERATOR CARS. WILLIAM F. DIETRICHSON, Webster Groves, Mo., assignor to American Car and Foundry Company, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Aug. 20, 1925. Serial No. 51,516. 22 Claims. (Cl. 268—98.)



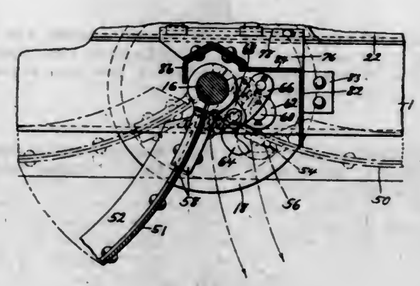
1. In a refrigerator car, a hatchway, a cover for said hatchway, and a lever for raising said cover variably connected to the cover and also having a variable hinge connection to the car.

1,631,310. COUNTER AND HEEL GUARD. MAUDE M. DORAN, Spokane, Wash. Filed Oct. 27, 1926. Serial No. 144,566. 3 Claims. (Cl. 36—72.)



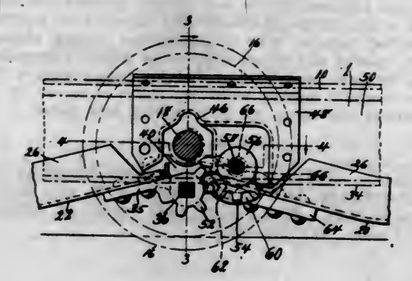
3. In a shoe counter and heel protecting device, a rubber sheet guard proportioned to extend vertically along the rear of the heel and counter of a shoe, said guard having means adapted to engage the heel for holding said guard in position and arching said guard about the heel and counter.

1,631,311. CANE CAR. THOMAS W. ELDER, Jr., Brooklyn, N. Y., assignor to American Car and Foundry Company, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed July 28, 1926. Serial No. 125,462. 10 Claims. (Cl. 105—378.)



5. The combination with a rail having an inturned upper flange, of a door with biangular hooks for hooking over said flange and shoulders normally extending beneath the rail and the free ends of the hooks, so as to prevent disengagement of the hooks, but releasable by an excessive outward swing of the door, so as to allow it to be lifted off.

1,631,312. CAR-DOOR LOCK. THOMAS W. ELDER, Jr., Brooklyn, N. Y., assignor to American Car and Foundry Company, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed July 28, 1926. Serial No. 125,463. 7 Claims. (Cl. 105—308.)

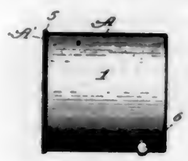


2. A door lock of the character described comprising a rotary crank rod, with portions offset laterally relative to one another, and means cooperating with said relatively offset portions to shift the rotating rod sidewise between an unlocked position where the door may open past it and a locking position in front of the door.

1,631,313. MINE CAR. HENRY P. FIELD, Berwick, Pa., assignor to American Car and Foundry Company, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Jan. 14, 1926. Serial No. 81,255. 20 Claims. (Cl. 105—364.)

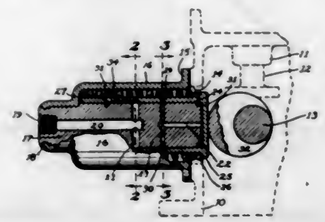
11. In a mine car, a drop door, latches for holding said door closed, and a second door linked to said latches.

1,631,314. MINE CAR. HENRY P. FIELD, Berwick, Pa., assignor to American Car and Foundry Company, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed July 20, 1926. Serial No. 123,738. 14 Claims. (Cl. 105—364.)



1. In a car, a pivotally mounted door, a pivotally mounted latch for said door, a second pivotally mounted door and cooperating gearing on said latch and said second door.

1,631,315. SAVINGS BANK. CHARLES FISHER, Chicago, Ill., assignor to The Automatic Recording Safe Company, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed Oct. 25, 1923. Serial No. 670,784. 5 Claims. (Cl. 232—4.)



1. A savings bank comprising a casing-section having an open end, a closure having a flange extending into said open end and having an end wall provided with a key-slot and with a coin-slot, stud and slot connection between said casing-section and said flange at one point, a locking member mounted in the casing and engaging said flange at another point, a guard plate adjacent the inner surface of the end wall of said closure, said guard plate having rearwardly extending flanges, the flanges of said members being secured together, and a leaf spring confined between the end wall of said closure and said guard plate and having a free end serving as a guard for said coin-slot.

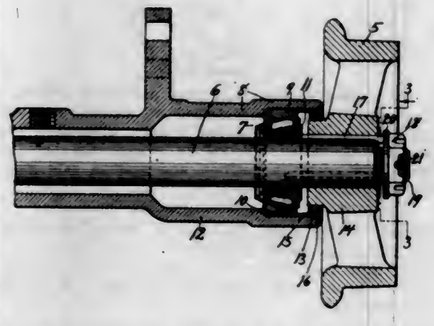
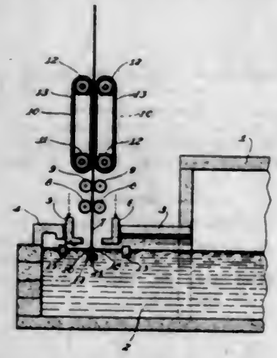
1,631,316. PUMP. HENRY FORD, Dearborn, Mich. Filed June 1, 1926. Serial No. 112,762. 4 Claims. (Cl. 230—27.)



1. In a pump for creating a partial vacuum, a member having an inlet port therein and a passageway therethrough adjacent to the end thereof opposite the inlet port, a cup shaped piston member mounted on the first described member, said piston member having exhaust ports therein and recess designed to permit communication between the inlet port and the passageway in the first described member when the piston is in one of its positions, and means for reciprocating said piston.

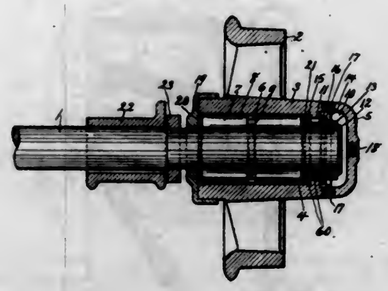
1,631,317. BASEBALL CENTER AND PROCESS OF PRODUCING THE SAME. WILLIAM H. FOX, Minneapolis, Minn. Filed Feb. 11, 1927. Serial No. 167,478. 8 Claims. (Cl. 273—60.)



1. As a new article of manufacture, a ball center comprising a spherical center core, a thin spherical layer of rubber applied around said center core, a pair of inner semi-spherical rubber sections applied around and in contact with said spherical rubber layer, a thin outer rubber spherical rubber layer applied around said inner spherical sections, and a pair of semi-spherical outer rubber sections applied around and in contact with said outer spherical rubber layer, the said spherical rubber layers being vulcanized and connecting the contacting elements substantially as an integral structure.

1,631,318. ANTIFRICTION-BEARING APPLICATION. FREDERICK H. GIBBS, Brooklyn, N. Y., assignor to American Car and Foundry Company, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed June 16, 1926. Serial No. 116,370. 16 Claims. (Cl. 308—180.)

1. The combination with an axle and a wheel frictionally held thereon, of an antifriction rolling bearing for the axle at one side of the wheel, and means for adjusting said bearing operable from the other side of the wheel.



1,631,319. APPARATUS FOR DRAWING SHEET GLASS. JOSEPH S. GREGORIUS, Mount Vernon, Ohio, assignor to Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Oct. 21, 1926. Serial No. 143,113. 5 Claims. (Cl. 49—17.)

1. In combination in apparatus for drawing sheet glass, a glass drawing tank adapted to carry a bath of molten glass from which a sheet is to be drawn, means for drawing a sheet of glass upward from the bath with its plane of generation lying transversely of the bath, and a clay bar lying beneath the surface of the glass in alinement with the line of generation of the sheet, and provided with a central longitudinal rib, and with a slot extending through the bar on each side of said rib and parallel thereto.

1,631,320. MINE CAR. WARREN V. JOHNSON, Bloomsburg, Pa., and JOHN L. MCDOWELL, Jersey City, N. J., assignors to American Car and Foundry Company, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Feb. 26, 1926. Serial No. 90,867. 16 Claims. (Cl. 295—49.)

1. In combination, a wheel having a hub with an axle opening therein means closing said opening at one end, an axle projecting into said opening, and means comprising thrust members detachably secured against rotation on the axle within said opening for preventing movement of the wheel along the axle in either direction, said thrust members having bearing surfaces located near the wall forming the axle opening in the hub and engaging at opposite sides of a part carried by the hub independently of said closing means.

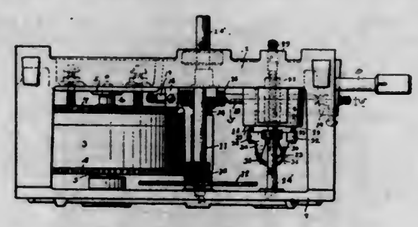
1,631,321. LOCK FOR CAR-DOOR-OPERATING MECHANISM. ADOLPH KASSLER, New York, N. Y., assignor to American Car and Foundry Company, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Dec. 17, 1925. Serial No. 76,080. 23 Claims. (Cl. 105—250.)

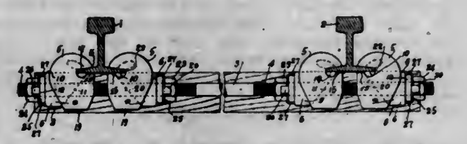
1. In a dumping car, dumping doors, an operating mechanism for said dumping doors comprising a door operating shaft at each end of said doors operatively connected to said doors and means operatively connecting said shafts and locking means for said operating mechanism operated by said connecting means.

1,631,322. MONOLITHIC STRUCTURE AND PROCESS OF MAKING THE SAME. ANTHONY M. KOHLER, East Liverpool, Ohio, assignor to The Babcock & Wilcox Company, Bayonne, N. J., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed June 9, 1925. Serial No. 36,057. 13 Claims. (Cl. 25—157.)



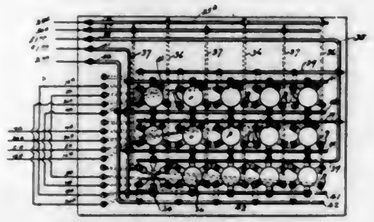
1. The method of making a monolithic structure which comprises heating a shaped plastic refractory mass containing material having a melting point in excess of 3000° F. shielded from the free flame of the furnace until the mass acquires sufficient rigidity to sustain its own weight and thereafter heating said mass with a free flame until the desired cohesion and rigidity are obtained.

1,631,323. STRIPPER DEVICE FOR PERFORATING PUNCHES. NICHOLAS LOESEL, Richmond Hill, N. Y., assignor to American Can Company, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Mar. 23, 1925. Serial No. 17,547. 9 Claims. (Cl. 164—110.)



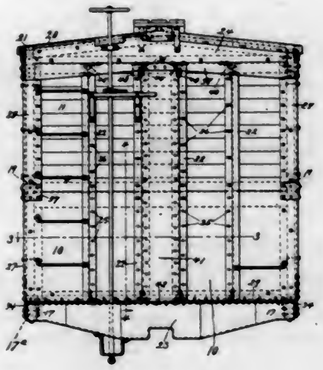
1. In a punch press, the combination of perforating punches, a die block having openings therein into which the punches are adapted to enter after perforating a blank, and resilient stripper washers disposed in said openings and extending around the punches and adapted to strip the punchings from said punches on the upward stroke thereof.

1,631,324. LOW-SPEED GOVERNOR FOR SPRING MOTORS AND THE LIKE. FRED N. MIZER, Elyria, Ohio, assignor to The General Phonograph Manufacturing Company, Elyria, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Oct. 31, 1925. Serial No. 66,044. 9 Claims. (Cl. 188—184.)



9. The combination with a motor device for use with revolving display supports, of a centrifugal governor, a rotatable shaft, means for rotating the shaft, a collar adjustably secured to said shaft, and governor arms pivotally and freely suspended from said collar, each of said arms having a twisted main arm portion.

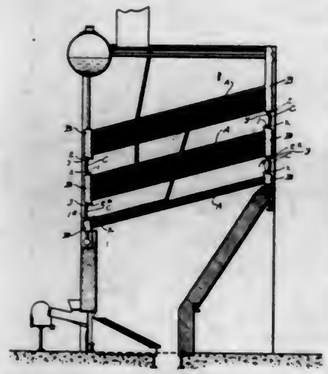
1,631,325. RAIL BRACE. JOHN G. MUELLER, Dayton, Ohio. Filed Apr. 14, 1926. Serial No. 102,081. 6 Claims. (Cl. 238—53.)



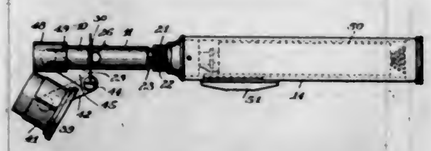
2. In a rail brace, the combination with a tie rod, of clamping members mounted on said rod, wedging members mounted on said rod, and means for urging said wedging members into contact with said clamping members and the bottom of the rail base to clamp the latter.

1,631,326. CHANGE-RETURNING DEVICE. LUDVIG B. NORDLUND, San Francisco, Calif. Filed May 21, 1924. Serial No. 714,907. 2 Claims. (Cl. 133—2.)

1. In a change returning device of the character described, a double control for a plurality of change returning circuits, one control closing gaps in circuits returning change on a possible maximum deposit and the second control completing those of the said circuits only which return change on the actual deposit.



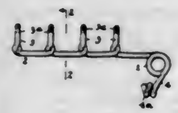
1,631,327. CAR-END CONSTRUCTION. ALLEN E. OSTRANDER, Bronxville, N. Y., assignor to American Car and Foundry Company, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Oct. 12, 1926. Serial No. 141,161. 9 Claims. (Cl. 105—410.)



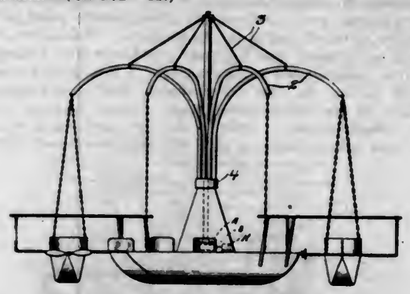
1. A car end construction comprising a sheet metal end panel, an end wall of transverse planking extending upward above said panel, a hood extending entirely across the upper end of the wood planking, external end posts for laterally sustaining said planking and panel, and vertical brace members having their lower ends attached to portions of the car and their upper ends secured within the hood.

1,631,328. BOILER. FREDERICK O. PAHMEYER, St. Louis, Mo., assignor to Heine Boiler Company, St. Louis, Mo., a Corporation of Missouri. Filed Aug. 4, 1923. Serial No. 655,665. 1 Claim. (Cl. 122—360.)

A water tube boiler provided with a plurality of superimposed tube banks, sectional headers at the front and rear ends of each of said tube banks, and curved nipples that connect the headers of one bank with the aligned headers of an adjacent bank, the opposed end faces of the two headers to which each nipple is connected being disposed at an angle to the longitudinal axes of the headers and being oppositely inclined for the purpose described.

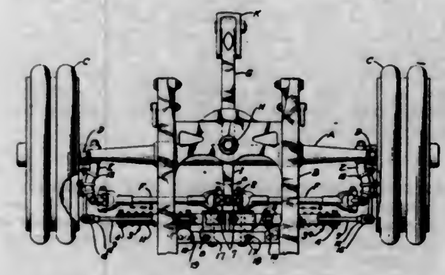


1,631,329. OPTICAL INSTRUMENT. WILLIAM L. PATTERSON, Rochester, N. Y., assignor to Bausch & Lomb Optical Company, Rochester, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Apr. 29, 1925. Serial No. 26,759. 10 Claims. (Cl. 88—20.)



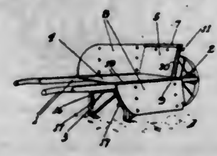
1. In an optical instrument, a casing, a lamp disposed within the casing, a light-projecting lens within the casing, an adjustable diaphragm operable within the casing between the lens and lamp, a condenser between the lamp and diaphragm and an eye piece embodying a magnifying lens mounted for universal movement upon the casing whereby its optical axis is adapted to intersect that of said projecting lens at different distances from the latter.

1,631,330. TENSION DEVICE AND THE LIKE. LUIGI PAVIA, Allentown, Pa. Filed June 23, 1926. Serial No. 118,112. 1 Claim. (Cl. 139—214.)



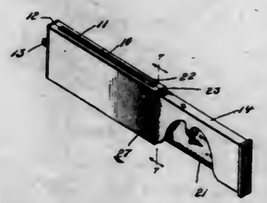
A tension lever of the class described consisting of a piece of wire bent to include a bearing portion, a shank projecting from said bearing portion and having eyelets projecting therefrom at intervals, and an arm forming one end of the wire and bent into an eye to receive the knotted end of a rubber elastic and formed as an open spiral.

1,631,331. CARROUSEL. ANGELO PINTO, Brooklyn, N. Y. Filed Oct. 6, 1924. Serial No. 741,814. 1 Claim. (Cl. 272—41.)



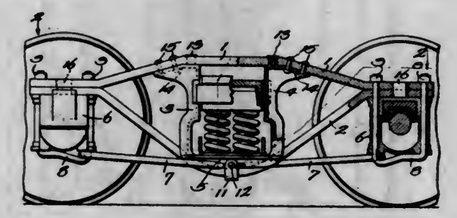
In carrousels, a casing, a shaft passing into said casing, the shaft being adapted to support rotating carriers, a thrust bearing disposed in a seat within the casing, the bearing being apertured to receive an end of said shaft, a friction disk lying under a shoulder on the shaft and thereby adapted to receive the weight of the shaft and its load, the disk being keyed to the shaft, a second friction disk loosely mounted on the shaft below the first disk and supported by said thrust bearing and means for rotating said last named disk.

1,631,332. STEERING-MECHANISM STABILIZER FOR TRAILERS. WALTER E. PLANK, San Francisco, Calif. Filed Mar. 25, 1926. Serial No. 97,473. 4 Claims. (Cl. 280—33.55.)



1. In a vehicle of the character described, an axle, steering wheels pivotally mounted on the ends thereof, a main frame resiliently supported with relation to the axle, a draw-bar pivotally connected with the frame, means connected with the draw-bar for controlling the movement of the pivoted steering wheels, and resilient means interposed between the steering wheels and the frame tending to normally maintain the wheels in a straight ahead position.

1,631,333. GARDEN WHEELBARROW. BERNARD PAIVAT, Stockton, Calif. Filed Jan. 16, 1926. Serial No. 81,089. 3 Claims. (Cl. 280—52.)

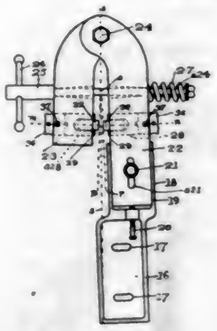


2. A wheelbarrow including fixed bottom and front end boards, side boards hinged along the bottom board and normally abutting against and extending ahead of the front end board, individual latches engaging the front ends of the side boards when the latter are raised, a spring strap mounted onto the front end board and to which the latches are fastened, said strap acting to press the latches against the side boards, and individually operable release means for the latches acting against the strap adjacent the latches for moving the same forwardly and out of engagement with the side boards.

1,631,334. RECEPTACLE. ERNEST J. QVARNSTROM, Attleboro, Mass. Filed Aug. 20, 1925. Serial No. 51,384. 4 Claims. (Cl. 206—39.)

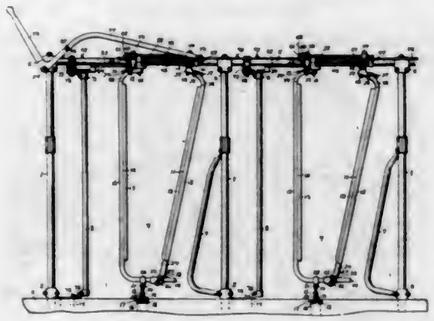
2. A receptacle comprising a box shaped body member having an elongated slot in one of its edge walls, a sheet metal U shaped slide therein, an integral resilient stop raised from the stock of the bridge portion of said U slide to extend into said slot and a resilient portion raised from said bridge adjacent said stop to engage the end portion of the slotted edge wall to hold said slide firm when in extended position.

1,631,335. TRUCK FRAME. HERMAN C. PRIEBE, Blue Island, Ill. Filed Sept. 14, 1926. Serial No. 135,389. 9 Claims. (Cl. 105—204.)



1. A truck side frame including upper and lower arch bars; two columns between said arch bars, there being a yoke joining similar ends of said columns and assembled with one of said arch bars, the ends of the columns opposite said yoke being reduced to form pins and seats at the bases of the pins, said pins entering openings formed in the other arch bar and which arch bar engages said seats, said pins having their outer ends expanded into heads that lap this arch bar; and rivets also uniting said columns and the latter arch bar.

1,631,336. BAND-SAW-TOOTH ROLLER. ALBERT E. PROCTOR, Bellingham, Wash. Filed Dec. 6, 1926. Serial No. 152,824. 8 Claims. (Cl. 76—27.)



8. In a saw tooth roller in combination, two hinged jaws, each having a bore therethrough at right angles with the axis of said hinge said bores in line in one position in oscillation of said jaws on said hinge and each of said bores having a threaded outer end, a roll housing mounted in each of said bores for revolution and reciprocation therein, a roll mounted for revolution in each of said roll housings in operative opposite proximity, a screw plug engaged in the said threaded end of each of said bores adapted to bear on said roll housing therein, means to engage each of said screw plugs with the roll housing in said bore therewith for simultaneous movements in said bore, and means to fasten said screw plugs in desired positions in rotation.

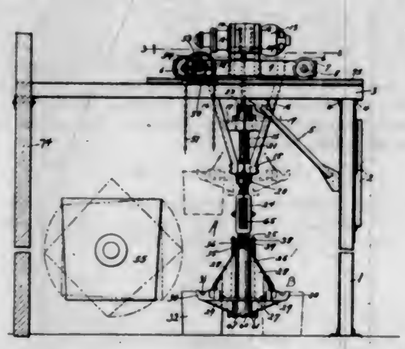
1,631,337. STALL AND STANCHION. ALFRED QUADE and ARTHUR H. KLUMB, West Bend, Wis., assignors to West Bend Equipment Corporation, West Bend, Wis., a Corporation of Wisconsin. Filed May 28, 1925. Serial No. 33,361. 11 Claims. (Cl. 119—148.)

1. The combination with the bows of a stanchion which are connected together at their lower ends for opening and closing movements, of means for confining the lower end of the stanchion without preventing rotational movements thereof, separate means for pivotally supporting the upper ends of the bows, said separate means for pivotally supporting the upper ends of the bows being provided with means for limiting the rotational movement of the bow supported thereby, and means for locking the upper ends of the bows together to permit of rotational movements of the stanchion as a whole when the bows are in closed positions.



1,631,338. CHANGE-SPEED TRANSMISSION. GEORGE J. RACKHAM, Chicago, Ill., assignor to Yellow Coach Manufacturing Co., Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed Sept. 24, 1923. Serial No. 664,523. 2 Claims. (Cl. 74—59.)

2. In a change speed device, the combination of a driving shaft, a transmission shaft in alignment therewith, a lay shaft parallel to the transmission shaft, a sprocket and chain connection between the driving shaft and the lay shaft for driving the lay shaft in the same direction as the driving shaft, a pair of sprockets of different sizes journalled on the transmission shaft, companion sprockets keyed to the lay shaft, chain drive connections between the lay shaft sprockets and the companion transmission shaft sprockets, a low speed forward drive pinion on the transmission shaft, a reversing pinion on the transmission shaft, further removed from the sprockets thereof than is the first mentioned pinion, an idler pinion meshing with the first mentioned pinion, a gear splined to the transmission shaft and of proper size to engage the idler pinion when moved into one position and of proper size to engage the second mentioned larger pinion on the transmission shaft when moved into proper position, a clutch device on said gear, adapted to engage the adjacent transmission shaft sprocket when moved into another position, a sleeve on the transmission shaft, a clutch thereon adapted to engage the adjacent transmission shaft sprocket when moved into one position, and another clutch thereon adapted to engage the driving shaft when moved into another position, substantially as described.

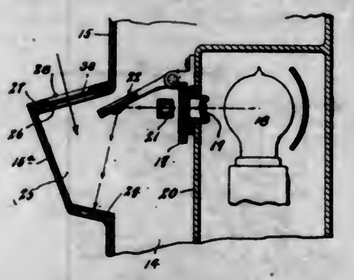
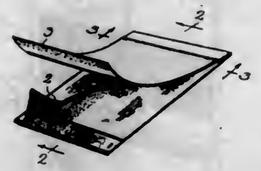
1,631,339. LADLE ELEVATOR. JOHN M. ROHLFING, Plainfield, N. J., assignor to American Car and Foundry Company, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed May 7, 1923. Serial No. 637,209. 12 Claims. (Cl. 22—82.)



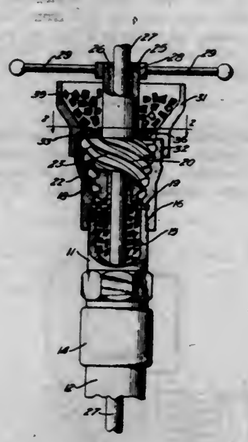
1. A shiftable turret elevator of the character described comprising a carriage, an upright movable up and down relative thereto, guide means for maintaining said upright in definite angular relation to the carriage, and a multiple ladle support rotatably mounted on said upright.

1,631,340. BRAKE FOR ELEVATORS. JOHN M. ROHLFING, Plainfield, N. J., assignor to American Car and Foundry Company, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New Jersey. Original application filed Dec. 15, 1923, Serial No. 680,880. Divided and this application filed Jan. 11, 1926. Serial No. 80,534. 13 Claims. (Cl. 187—81.)



11. In a device of the class described, an elevator, guides for said elevator, supporting brackets for said elevator having surfaces inclined to said guides, counterweights, flexible means connected to said counter-weights and having connections through said brackets, followers carried by said connections, springs interposed between said followers and brackets, and brake shoes shiftable by said followers into wedging engagement with said inclined surfaces and guides upon the yielding of said springs.

1,631,341. PERSONAL WEIGHING SCALE. HARRY C. SCHAPER, St. Louis, Mo., assignor to The Weightograph Company, St. Louis, Mo., a Corporation of Missouri. Filed May 19, 1925. Serial No. 31,379. 2 Claims. (Cl. 88—24.)

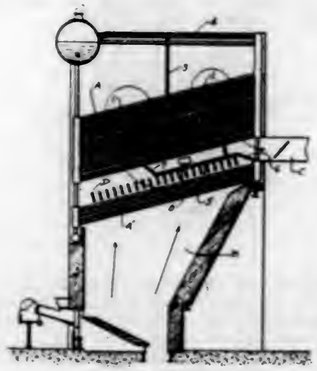


1. In a scale the combination with a housing, of weighing mechanism located within the housing including a transparent weight indicia member, a platform located exteriorly of the housing and connected with said weighing mechanism, an extension connected with the housing having a sight opening lying in substantially a horizontal plane and in view of an operator on the weighing platform, projecting means for projecting the scale indicia, a screen located within the extension and out of view except through said sight opening, and a reflector for reflecting the scale indicia image on to said screen.

1,631,342. PAD FOR HAIR WAVING. ERNST O. SCHNELL, Chicago, Ill. Filed Oct. 14, 1926. Serial No. 141,475. 5 Claims. (Cl. 132—36.2.)

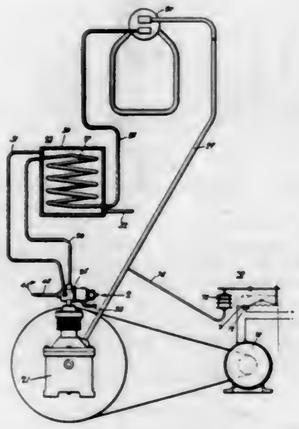
1. A steam pad for the purpose described, comprising a hair treating substance in wafer form, a fabric envelope enclosing said wafer, and having its open edges sealed with a heat-resisting adhesive.

1,631,343. PACKING DEVICE. AUGUST L. SEGELHORST, Whittier, Calif. Filed Oct. 11, 1922. Serial No. 593,855. 4 Claims. (Cl. 286—38.)



1. In a packing device of the class described, the combination of: a body providing a packing chamber directly surrounding the shaft to be packed; walls providing a receptacle for holding a packing material; and rotatable means comprising a spiral member engaging said packing material and disposed between said packing chamber and said receptacle for forcing said packing material into said packing chamber.

1,631,344. STEAM BOILER. WALTER SIEGERIST, St. Louis, Mo., assignor to Heine Boiler Company, St. Louis, Mo., a Corporation of Missouri. Filed Aug. 4, 1928. Serial No. 655,671. 2 Claims. (Cl. 122—303.)



1. A steam boiler, comprising superimposed banks of water tubes that project rearwardly and upwardly from the front wall of the boiler setting, a combustion chamber whose upper portion extends substantially the full length of the boiler so as to cause the tubes of the bottom bank to be subjected to radiant heat throughout substantially their entire length, a gas outlet at the rear end of the boiler leading from the space between said banks, a transversely-disposed baffle in the space between said tube banks disposed substantially parallel to same and arranged over the rear end portion of the combustion chamber, and a plurality of transverse upright baffles in the upper tube bank disposed in such relation to each other and to the front and rear walls of the boiler setting as to form a first up-pass contracted at its upper end, a final down-pass contracted at its lower end, and a plurality of intermediate passes.

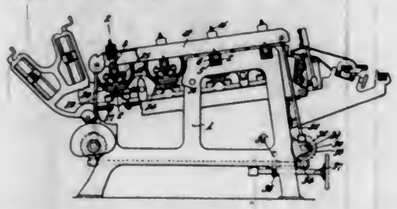
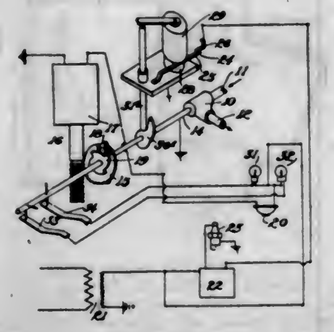
1,631,345. REFRIGERATING APPARATUS. ANTHONY T. STOCK, Dayton, Ohio, assignor to Delco-Light Company, Dayton, Ohio, a Corporation of Delaware. Filed July 26, 1926. Serial No. 124,860. 4 Claims. (Cl. 62—4.)



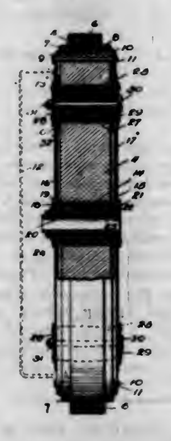
1. A refrigerating apparatus comprising a refrigerant circulatory system having means for circulating the refrigerant in said system and having a condenser portion; a cooling medium circuit for said condenser portion; and means responsive to the temperature of the refrigerant and the medium in said circuit for controlling the flow of said medium.

1,631,346. REPAIR LINK. SAMUEL FRANKLIN SWOOPE, Cincinnati, Ohio. Filed Feb. 12, 1925. Serial No. 8,843. 2 Claims. (Cl. 59—84.)



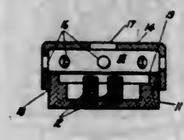
1. A repair link of the character described comprising an enlarged body portion provided with flat surfaces and having merging therefrom rounded in cross section arms adapted to receive the adjacent links of a cross chain of an anti-skid chain, and enlarged ends formed on the arms.

1,631,347. FLAT-WORK IRONER. JAMES H. TAYLOR, New York, N. Y., assignor to The American Laundry Machinery Company, Cincinnati, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Nov. 3, 1921. Serial No. 512,444. 7 Claims. (Cl. 68—9.)



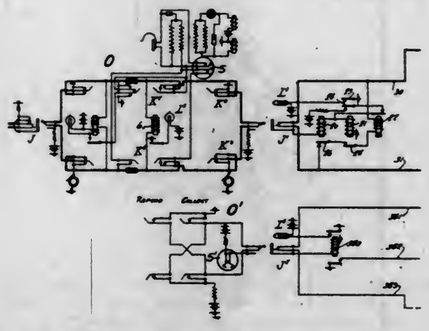
1. In an ironing machine, an ironing member, a superposed padded ironing roll cooperating with said ironing member, means for moving said ironing roll into and out of ironing position, supporting means having a constant position relative to said ironing member, means mounted upon said supporting means for supporting said ironing roll in ironing contact with but with no pressure on said ironing member when all the ironing pressure hereinafter referred to is removed from the ironing roll, and yielding means effective upon said ironing roll for producing the desired yielding ironing pressure upon the work as it passes between said ironing member and said ironing roll.

1,631,348. FURNACE IGNITER. FREDERICK P. TERRY, Alameda, Calif. Filed Aug. 10, 1925. Serial No. 49,491. 2 Claims. (Cl. 158—99.)



1. A furnace ignition system including a fuel control valve controlling the supply of fuel delivered to the burners of a furnace, electrically actuated means for operating said control valve, a normally open main electrical circuit for operating said means, said valve being normally closed and adapted to be opened to progressively decreasing degrees in successive steps, each step occurring upon the closing and opening of the main circuit whereby by successively closing and opening said main circuit said valve will be advanced through its cycle of operation, a second circuit for creating an ignition spark to ignite fuel delivered to the burners of the furnace, means actuated by the closing of the main circuit at the commencement of the cycle of operation of the valve for closing the second circuit, means for automatically opening the second circuit independently of the main circuit and after a predetermined time period has elapsed, further opening and closing of the main circuit during the remaining portion of the cycle of operation of the valve unaffecting the second circuit.

1,631,349. FLEXIBLE WHEEL. WILLIAM THORNTON, Salt Lake City, Utah. Filed May 17, 1926. Serial No. 109,734. 7 Claims. (Cl. 152—28.)



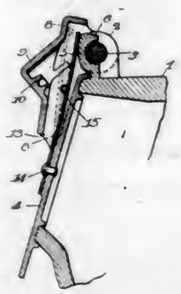
1. A flexible wheel comprising a wheel body, a road engaging tire thereon, a main flexible bushing at the central portion of the wheel, ancillary flexible bushings in the wheel body distributed about said central bushing, and a metal cage adapted to be mounted on the axle and floating in said flexible bushings.

1,631,350. TELEPHONE AND CAP THEREFOR. FRANK WALTER, Los Angeles, Calif. Filed Dec. 16, 1925. Serial No. 75,755. 1 Claim. (Cl. 179—182.)

A cap for a radio telephone receiver of the diaphragm type, said cap having an opening adapted to conduc the sound waves produced by the receiver, said cap extending over the diaphragm, the cap and said diaphragm defining a large, free space immediately interposed between the said opening and the surface of substantially the entire diaphragm, said cap having radial openings connecting said space directly with the external atmosphere.

1,631,351. AUTOMATIC TELEPHONE SYSTEM. JOHN WICKS, Oak Park, Ill., assignor, by mesne assignments, to Automatic Electric Inc., Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Delaware. Original application filed May 6, 1920, Serial No. 379,217. Divided and this application filed Apr. 2, 1921, Serial No. 458,174. Renewed Nov. 7, 1925. 19 Claims. (Cl. 179—27.)

1. In a telephone system, a first exchange, a second exchange, a trunk line having only two conductors for connecting said exchanges and terminating in a jack in said first exchange, a cord circuit for extending a connection between said exchanges by way of said trunk line, and means operative if disconnection is effected at said first exchange while the trunk is still held at said second exchange for maintaining a busy potential on said jack until the called subscriber replaces his receiver.



1,631,352. JOURNAL-BOX LID. GEORGE A. WOODMAN, Chicago, Ill. Filed Apr. 1, 1918. Serial No. 225,891. 4 Claims. (Cl. 308—47.)

1. A journal box having an upstanding lug, a lid pivotally mounted on said lug and provided with a housing, the front face of the lug having an intermediate convex portion eccentric to the pivotal axis of the lid, a bodily movable follower slidably mounted in the housing and guided for rectilinear movement towards and away from the lug, and a spring yieldably maintaining the follower in frictional engagement with the lug, the follower having a contact face portion conforming to the convex portion of the lug for facilitating the operation of opening and closing the lid.

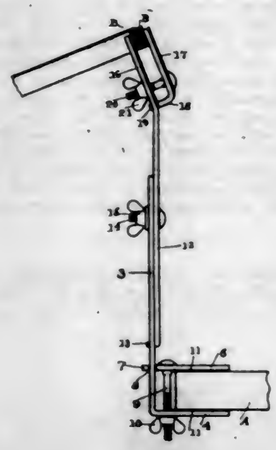
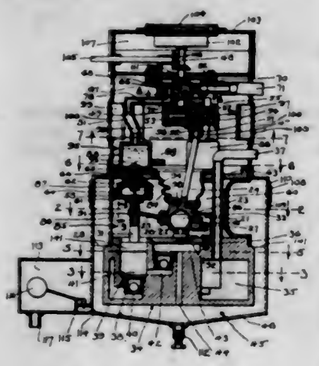
1,631,353. JOURNAL-BOX LID. GEORGE A. WOODMAN, Chicago, Ill., assignor to Woodman Railway Supply Company, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed July 25, 1925. Serial No. 45,959. 2 Claims. (Cl. 308—47.)



1. As a new article of manufacture, a journal box lid comprising a body provided upon its outer side with a follower-housing projecting above the top of the body of the lid, the inner side of the housing above the top of the lid being open, the outer face of the lid being provided with a raised leaf spring seat at the open bottom end of the housing, the bottom of the housing being open to receive a leaf spring upwardly therethrough, and opposite side walls of the housing having aligned perforations to receive a rod for the purpose described.

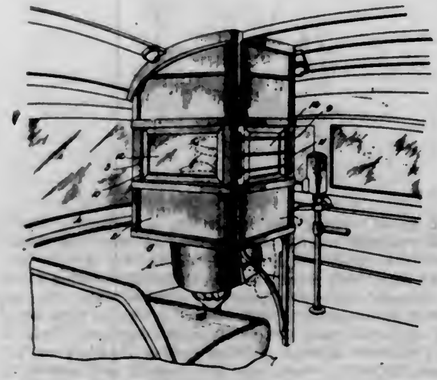
1,631,354. BLOW-OUT PATCH FOR BALLOON TIRES. CHARLES E. AYERS, Cleves, Ohio. Filed Aug. 9, 1926. Serial No. 128,081. 7 Claims. (Cl. 152—26.)



2. A tire patch comprising a rubber base, strips of uncured cord stock overlapping one another at different angles, a sheet of cushion stock superposed upon the base and strips and a piece of raw tread stock surmounting the patch above the overlapped portion of the strips.

1,631,355. EMBROIDERY-HOOP CLAMP. CLARENCE D. BALDWIN, Bellingham, Wash. Filed Jan. 2, 1926. Serial No. 78,932. 1 Claim. (Cl. 45—24.)

In an embroidery hoop clamp in combination, a standard composed of lower and upper parts having registering longitudinal slots therein, a boss on the lower end of said upper standard part engageable in the slot in said lower standard part, a clamping bolt in said slots, a fixed jaw on the lower end of said lower standard part, a loose jaw engaged with said slot in said lower standard part, a clamping bolt through both of said lower jaws, an inclined fixed jaw on the upper end of said upper standard part, a loose jaw having a boss on its lower end engageable in a hole in said upper fixed jaw, and a clamping bolt through both of said upper jaws, said upper jaws having arcuate upper ends.



1,631,356. FUEL FEEDING AND METERING SYSTEM AND APPARATUS. THOMAS D. BANNING, Jr., Wilmette, Ill. Filed July 25, 1924. Serial No. 728,209. 43 Claims. (Cl. 103—38.)

1. Liquid metering apparatus comprising in combination three vertical cylinders located at the corners of an equi-lateral triangle, a vertically movable plunger within each cylinder, a stem reaching upwards from each plunger, a centrally placed rocker plate between the stems, a central ball and socket support therefor, a connection from the plate to each plunger stem, a common inlet chamber beneath all of the cylinders, an inlet check valve in the floor of each cylinder communicating with the inlet chamber, a discharge chamber beneath the inlet chamber, an outlet check valve controlling communication from each cylinder to the discharge chamber, a central upwardly reaching rocker stem on the rocker plate, a horizontal partition above the rocker plate and having a central opening through which the rocker stem reaches, a flexible gas tight diaphragm between the edge of the perforation and the central portion of the rocker plate around the rocker stem, a collapsible chamber between the partition and each plunger stem, a surge chamber above the partition corresponding to each collapsible chamber and communicating therewith, a partition enclosing the discharge chamber aforesaid and co-operating with the first mentioned partition to establish a gas tight chamber including the space around the rocker plate and around the collapsible chambers and the space above the top sides of the plungers, a partition between the rocker plate together with the plunger stems and collapsible chambers, and the discharge chamber preventing communication except at the upper end of said partition, a rotary valve, a ball and socket crank connection between the rocker stem and said valve, means for adjusting the throw of said crank connection, a motive power connection to said valve, connections from said valve to the surge chamber aforesaid, ports in the valve serving to establish alternative connection between each surge chamber and the motive power connection and atmosphere, in timed succession with respect to the movements of the plungers, suitable liquid in each collapsible cylinder and its surge chamber, and suitable oil on the top sides of the plungers and around the ball and socket joint aforesaid, substantially as described.

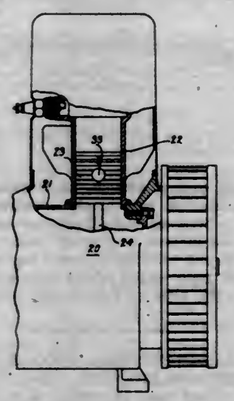
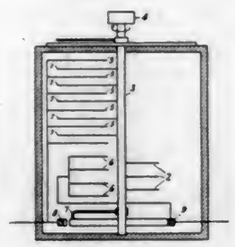
1,631,357. DRIVER'S COMPARTMENT FOR VEHICLES. ROBERT F. BLAIR and GEORGE HIND, Detroit, Mich. Filed Aug. 6, 1926. Serial No. 127,502. 5 Claims. (Cl. 105—342.)



1. In a vehicle, a driver's enclosure comprising a partition including a wall situated rearward of the driver's seat, said wall having a sight opening intermediate of its height, a vertically slidable panel having a glazed portion and an opaque portion, either of which may be brought into justaposition with said sight opening by the sliding of said panel, and means for retaining said panel in either position to which it may be moved.

1,631,358. STAY CONNECTION FOR WEIGHING APPARATUS AND THE LIKE. ERNEST LESLIE BLICK, Altrincham, England, assignor to The Automatic Scale Company, Limited, Altrincham, England. Original application filed June 4, 1923, Serial No. 643,445, and in Great Britain June 24, 1922. Divided and this application filed July 29, 1924. Serial No. 728,946. 3 Claims. (Cl. 265—27.)

1. A stay for use in connection with weighing scales comprising a plate adapted for connection to the resistant mechanism of the scale, a plate adapted for connection with the indicating mechanism, a bearing stay, a cone point bearing connection between said stay and the first mentioned plate and a cone point bearing connection between said stay and the second mentioned plate whereby a substantially frictionless connection is obtained between the resistant mechanism and the indicating mechanism.



1,631,359. METHOD OF FITTING COOPERATING BODIES. CHARLES S. BROWN, Dayton, Ohio. Filed Apr. 18, 1923. Serial No. 632,958. 9 Claims. (Cl. 29—90.)

1. The method of fitting two bodies having co-operating surfaces which comprises providing one of the bodies with relatively elevated and depressed portions, and moving some of the material of the elevated portions into the depressed portions by producing relative sliding movement between the surfaces while causing the elevated portions of the one body to bear with relatively great pressure on the surface of the other body.

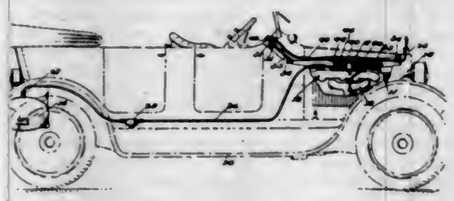
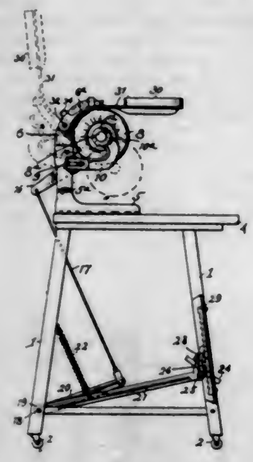
1,631,360. VARIABLE CONDENSER. GEORGE H. CLARK, Brooklyn, N. Y., assignor to Radio Corporation of America, a Corporation of Delaware. Filed June 27, 1922. Serial No. 571,249. 8 Claims. (Cl. 250—41.)

1. A variable condenser comprising two variable portions, one portion having a maximum capacity substantially equal to the minimum capacity of the other portion and means for short-circuiting the portions in sequence.



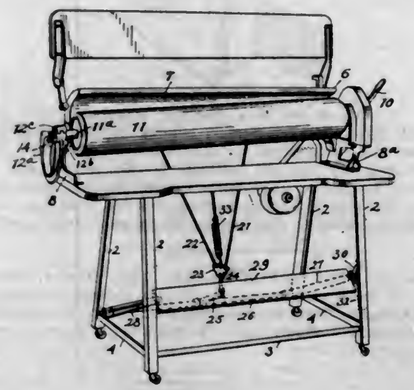
1,631,361. CONDUCTOR FOR TRAIN-CONTROL SYSTEMS. THOMAS E. CLARK, Detroit, Mich., assignor to Continuous Train Control Corporation, Detroit, Mich., a Corporation of Michigan. Filed Apr. 14, 1924. Serial No. 706,375. 9 Claims. (Cl. 246—41.)



1. In a train control system, in combination with a two-rail track divided into blocks insulated from each other, means to impress radio-frequency current on one of the blocks, conductors electrically connecting the rails of said block to the rails of a second non-adjacent block in the direction from which trains approach, and a condenser between the rails of said second block.

1,631,362. CHARGE-FORMING DEVICE FOR INTERNAL-COMBUSTION ENGINES. EMIL COLLIARD, Arcade, N. Y. Filed Mar. 12, 1924. Serial No. 698,741. 4 Claims. (Cl. 123—25.)

1. In combination with an internal combustion engine having an intake and an exhaust manifold, a water cooling system having a vapor space, and a main fuel supply tank, a combined heating and mixing chamber associated with the exhaust manifold so as to be heated thereby, a connection between the main fuel supply tank and the chamber, said connection communicating with the main fuel tank at a point above the level of the fuel therein, and having a liquid trap therein, a connection between the chamber and the vapor space of the water cooling system, and a connection between the chamber and the intake manifold.



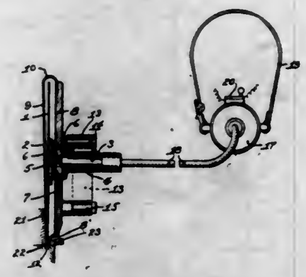
1,631,363. IRONING MACHINE. EARL B. DECKER, Cleveland, Ohio, assignor to Barton R. Deming, Cleveland Heights, Ohio. Filed Oct. 12, 1922. Serial No. 594,179. 6 Claims. (Cl. 68—9.)

1. In an ironing machine having a supporting frame and a pair of ironing elements one movable toward and from the other, means for actuating the movable element comprising a pair of levers pivoted to swing about a common axis, an operating member pivotally connected at its opposite ends to said levers to rock about a longitudinal axis, and means connecting said levers to said movable element coacting locking members on the operating member and frame for retaining said member in a position to which it has been moved, and means operable upon a rocking movement of said operating member for releasing said locking members.

3. In an ironing machine, the combination of an ironing shoe and a roller engageable therewith, means for driving the roller, a table normally extending in front of the roller with its inner edge adjacent the top of the roller and pivotally mounted to swing about an axis parallel with that of the roller and at the rear of the roller, said table being swingable about said axis to a position above and to the rear of said roller and shoe.

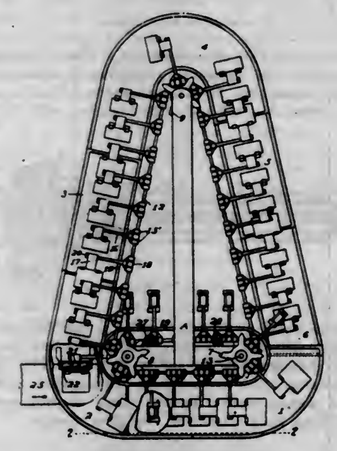
1,631,364. IRONING MACHINE. EARL B. DECKER, Cleveland, Ohio, assignor to Barton R. Deming, Cleveland Heights, Ohio. Filed Nov. 25, 1922, Serial No. 603,215. Renewed Nov. 3, 1926. 7 Claims. (Cl. 68—9.)

1. In combination in an ironing machine, an ironing member, a co-operating roller member, means for moving one of said members toward the other comprising independent arms which support the movable member at opposite ends thereof, a movable actuating member, connections between said actuating member and each of said arms including an equalizing mechanism whereby the engaging pressure of said members is uniform.



1,631,365. HINGE. FRED W. FAHRENFELD, Chicago, Ill., assignor, by mesne assignments, to Automatic Electric Inc., Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Apr. 10, 1922. Serial No. 551,421. 5 Claims. (Cl. 220—31.)

1. In combination, a door or cover, a base or support, said support having a trough formed therein, a slot in the support beside said trough, and a hinge member secured to the cover in such a position that an edge of the latter fits into said trough and the surface of the former rides over the opposite side of the trough when the former is inserted into said slot, said hinge member being provided with a projecting extension which engages the base at the edge of said slot, the resulting combination forming a hinge joint which allows said cover to rotate back and forth about said edge as an axis.



1,631,366. MEAT SAW. GEORGE F. FEISTER, Maricopa, Calif. Filed Nov. 17, 1925. Serial No. 69,589. 7 Claims. (Cl. 17—23.)

1. A sawing device comprising a rotating saw; a housing therefor formed of a pair of spaced plates between which the saw is positioned, the bottom edges of said plates lying closely adjacent to the sides of the saw and being adapted to rest upon the work, and their top edges being more widely spaced from said saw than said bottom edges; a journal member in which said saw is carried; guide means associated with one of said plates and in which said journal member is mounted for movement toward and away from the work; and means for rotating said saw.

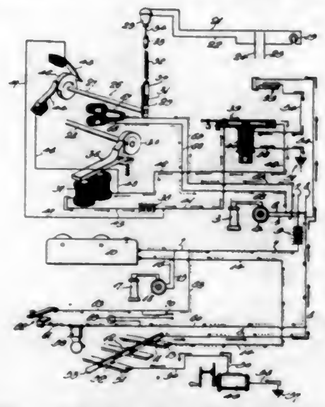
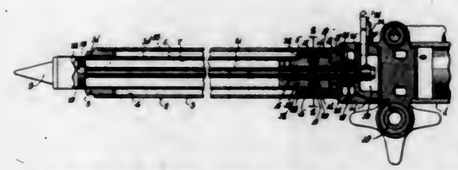
1,631,367. SHEET CONVEYER. ARTHUR J. FREEMAN, Alameda, Calif. Filed Mar. 18, 1924. Serial No. 700,068. 17 Claims. (Cl. 95—89.)



1. In a sheet conveyer a plurality of sheet holders, means for connecting said holders to form a chain, means for temporarily isolating a sheet holder to facilitate the attaching of a sheet thereto and the discharging of a sheet therefrom, mechanism for carrying and driving said chain of holders to convey sheets of material and means for discharging the sheets from the holders.

1,631,368. POLICE SIGNAL SYSTEM. WALTER EDWIN FROST, Auburn, Me., assignor of one-eighth to Mountfort Ernest Hunt and three-eighths to William Elwell Thurlow, Auburn, Me. Filed Jan. 24, 1924. Serial No. 688,310. 1 Claim. (Cl. 179—5.)



The combination with a telephone circuit from a police station to a policeman's phone box, including a normally closed switch at the station, having a handle by means of which it may be opened, of a signal in proximity to the phone box, electrical means for bringing said signal into play including a circuit formed in part by a portion of said phone circuit and a normally open switch at the station positively connected with said handle to be closed simultaneously with the opening of the first named switch, an electrical tell-tale at the police station and conductors connecting it with the phone circuit, an automatic switch at the phone box closed by operation of

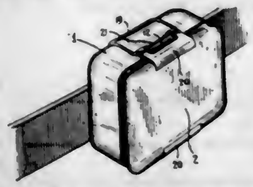
said signal, and conductors connecting said automatic switch with the phone circuit, whereby to operate said tell-tale when the signal is operated.

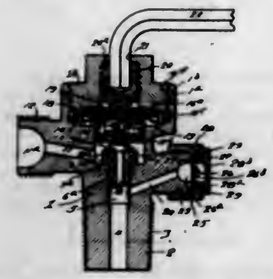
1,631,369. BRAKING MECHANISM. ELMER G. GARTIN, Claremont, N. H., assignor to Sullivan Machinery Company, a Corporation of Massachusetts. Filed Mar. 21, 1921. Serial No. 454,103. 20 Claims. (Cl. 121—9.)



1. Feeding mechanism comprising, in combination, stationary and movable members cooperating to form an expansible chamber feeding motor, means carried by one of said members and frictionally engageable with the other, and means carried by the other of said members for controlling said frictional engaging means.

1,631,370. SASH FASTENER. WALTER H. GILLETTE, Long Beach, Calif. Filed June 2, 1926. Serial No. 113,294. 4 Claims. (Cl. 292—57.)

1. A sash fastener comprising a tubular body adapted to be embedded in the sash, a pin in said body having a pair of annular grooves therein, and a lug on said body extending into either of said grooves to hold said pin in extended or retracted position.



1,631,371. CASE. MICHAEL J. GREUBEL, North Plainfield, N. J. Filed Apr. 6, 1926. Serial No. 100,007. 11 Claims. (Cl. 224—26.)

1. A case of the kind described comprising two sections, means for releasably holding the two sections closed one on another to encase an article, means for attaching one of said sections to the person, and a holder to contain the article carried by the other section, the case being characterized by the fact that said holder is releasable from the section by which it is carried

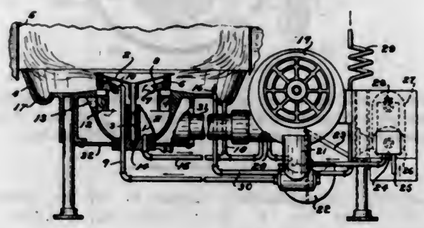
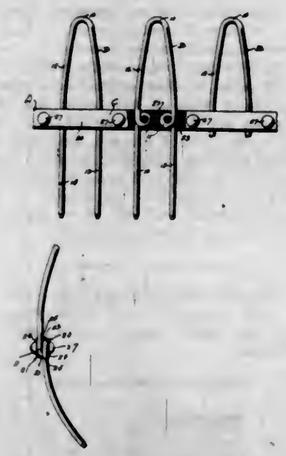
1,631,372. VALVE FOR TANKS. JOHN HARRIS, Cleveland, Ohio, assignor to The Harris Calorific Company, Cleveland, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed June 19, 1924. Serial No. 720,943. 14 Claims. (Cl. 251—31.)



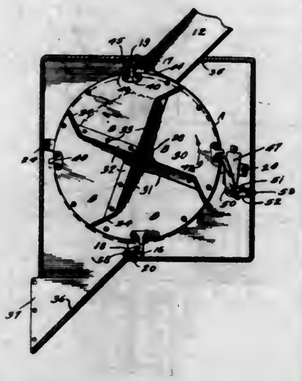
1. In a valve of the character described, the combination of a body having a passage for the supply of fluid, there being a valve seat at the delivery end of said passage, with a diaphragm chamber beyond the said seat and a delivery port communicating with the said chamber, a diaphragm extending across the diaphragm chamber, a valve secured to the central portion of the said diaphragm and adapted to engage the said valve seat, a backing on the opposite surface of the diaphragm from the said valve, a plug for securing the diaphragm to its seat, and a socketed plug threaded within the first mentioned plug, the said socketed plug having a portion adapted to be projected through the bottom of the first mentioned plug to engage said backing and the first mentioned plug being provided with a portion at its upper or outer end adapted to overhang the said plug to prevent its withdrawal in one direction from the first mentioned plug.

1,631,373. PARTITION WALL. JAMES MONROE HEWLETT, Lawrence, N. Y. Filed June 28, 1926. Serial No. 118,884. 5 Claims. (Cl. 72—32.)



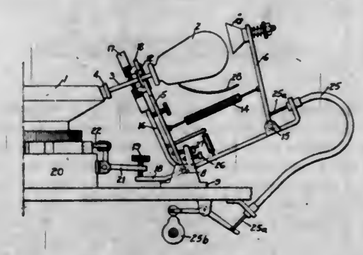
1. In a wall structure made up of courses of blocks laid in staggered relation, clips each having a central portion which extends between two adjacent blocks and having end portions connected with the central portion which end portions extend over parts of the faces of at least three adjacent blocks comprised in the wall.

1,631,374. OIL BURNER. BRUCE K. INGLIS, Milwaukee, Wis., assignor of one-half to Clement W. Inglis, Milwaukee, Wis. Filed June 25, 1923. Serial No. 647,674. 7 Claims. (Cl. 158—77.)



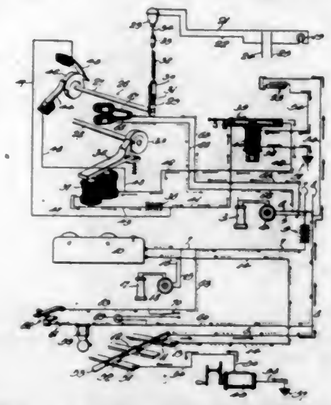
1. In combination, a rotor comprising vertically spaced walls forming an annular space surrounding and extending away from the rotor axis, an annular series of blades surrounding said axis below said space, the discharge edges of said blades being in communication with the inlet of said space, means for directing air tangentially against said blades and toward said axis to rotate said rotor, and means for delivering oil directly into said space near the inlet thereof.

1,631,375. LAWN RAKE. OLIVER C. KENYON, Geneva, Ill. Filed Mar. 14, 1924. Serial No. 699,267. 5 Claims. (Cl. 55—114.)



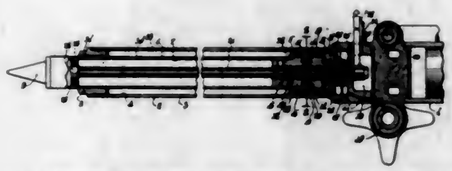
2. In a lawn rake, the combination of a rake frame comprising a pair of angle sections each comprising a short leg and a longer leg, the short leg having a plurality of spaced apart recesses leading inwardly from its free margin, means securing said angle sections together with the short legs abutting the longer legs to provide a passageway extending longitudinally thru the frame, and a series of tooth structures having complete loops intermediate their ends disposed in said passageway and with portions extending from said loops in opposite direction thru said recesses.

1,631,376. GRAIN WEIGHER. WIGGERT LANGERAK, Pella, Iowa, assignor of one-half to Meyer Langerak, Pella, Iowa. Filed Apr. 17, 1924. Serial No. 707,095. 9 Claims. (Cl. 249—19.)



1. An automatic weigher comprising a casing having an inlet and a discharge opening therein, a weigher rotor journaled therein, said weigher rotor having a number of pockets therein adapted to register with the inlet and discharge openings in said casing, means for retaining the weigher rotor in position where a pocket registers with the inlet opening and a pocket with the discharge opening, said last means being rendered inoperative when the contents of one pocket reach a predetermined weight for permitting the pocket registering with the inlet opening to move to position where it registers with the discharge opening, lugs on said rotor and a cam arranged in said casing for engaging the lugs on the rotor and causing said weigher rotor retaining means operative immediately before a pocket registers with said inlet opening.

1,631,377. SEALING-OFF DEVICE. WALTHER-WINFRIED LOEBE and MAX GROSSMANN, Berlin, Germany, assignors to General Electric Company, a Corporation of New York. Filed Feb. 20, 1925, Serial No. 10,552, and in Germany Mar. 14, 1924. 9 Claims. (Cl. 176—2.)



1. In a device of the character described, the combination with a head for holding a tubulated vessel by the end of the exhaust tube, of a holder bodily movable away from said head to elongate said tubulature and comprising relatively movable fingers for gripping said vessel, a burner mounted to direct the flame upon the exhaust tube adjacent said holder, and means actuated subsequent to said bodily movement of said holder to separate said fingers and deliver the vessel from said holder.

switch, an electrical tell-tale at the police station and conductors connecting it with the phone circuit, an automatic switch at the phone box closed by operation of

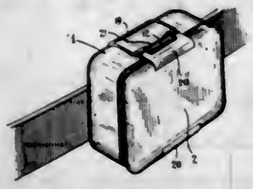
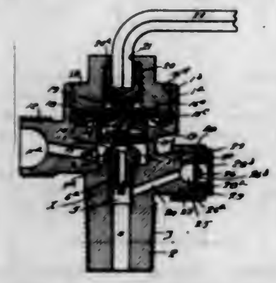
1,631,369. BRAKING MECHANISM. ELMER G. GARTIN, Claremont, N. H., assignor to Sullivan Machinery Company, a Corporation of Massachusetts. Filed Mar. 21, 1921. Serial No. 454,103. 20 Claims. (Cl. 121—9.)



1. Feeding mechanism comprising, in combination, stationary and movable members cooperating to form an expansible chamber feeding motor, means carried by one of said members and frictionally engageable with the other, and means carried by the other of said members for controlling said frictional engaging means.

1,631,370. SASH FASTENER. WALTER H. GILLETTE, Long Beach, Calif. Filed June 2, 1926. Serial No. 113,294. 4 Claims. (Cl. 292—57.)

1. A sash fastener comprising a tubular body adapted to be embedded in the sash, a pin in said body having a pair of annular grooves therein, and a lug on said body extending into either of said grooves to hold said pin in extended or retracted position.



1,631,371. CASE. MICHAEL J. GARUDEL, North Plainfield, N. J. Filed Apr. 6, 1926. Serial No. 100,007. 11 Claims. (Cl. 224—26.)

1. A case of the kind described comprising two sections, means for releasably holding the two sections closed one on another to encase an article, means for attaching one of said sections to the person, and a holder to contain the article carried by the other section, the case being characterized by the fact that said holder is releasable from the section by which it is carried

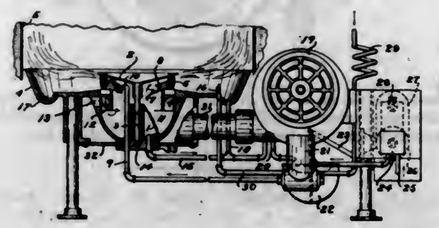
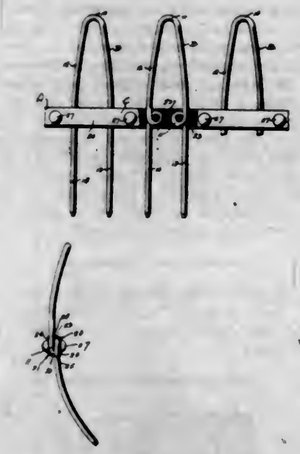
1,631,372. VALVE FOR TANKS. JOHN HARRIS, Cleveland, Ohio, assignor to The Harris Calorific Company, Cleveland, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed June 19, 1924. Serial No. 720,943. 14 Claims. (Cl. 251—31.)



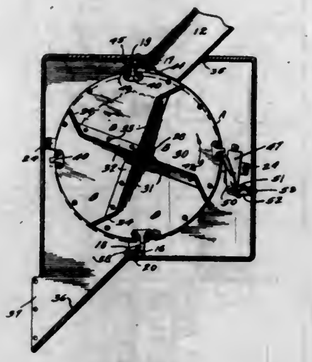
1. In a valve of the character described, the combination of a body having a passage for the supply of fluid, there being a valve seat at the delivery end of said passage, with a diaphragm chamber beyond the said seat and a delivery port communicating with the said chamber, a diaphragm extending across the diaphragm chamber, a valve secured to the central portion of the said diaphragm and adapted to engage the said valve seat, a backing on the opposite surface of the diaphragm from the said valve, a plug for securing the diaphragm to its seat, and a socketed plug threaded within the first mentioned plug, the said socketed plug having a portion adapted to be projected through the bottom of the first mentioned plug to engage said backing and the first mentioned plug being provided with a portion at its upper or outer end adapted to overhang the said plug to prevent its withdrawal in one direction from the first mentioned plug.

1,631,373. PARTITION WALL. JAMES MONROE HEWLETT, Lawrence, N. Y. Filed June 28, 1926. Serial No. 118,884. 5 Claims. (Cl. 72—32.)



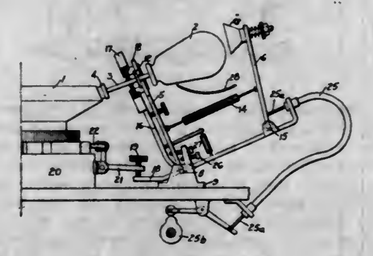
1. In a wall structure made up of courses of blocks laid in staggered relation, clips each having a central portion which extends between two adjacent blocks and having end portions connected with the central portion which end portions extend over parts of the faces of at least three adjacent blocks comprised in the wall.

1,631,374. OIL BURNER. BRUCE K. INGLIS, Milwaukee, Wis., assignor of one-half to Clement W. Inglis, Milwaukee, Wis. Filed June 25, 1923. Serial No. 647,674. 7 Claims. (Cl. 158—77.)



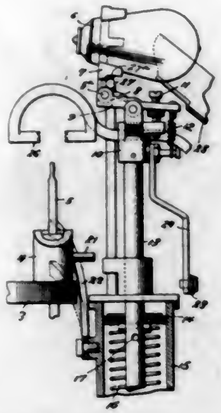
1. In combination, a rotor comprising vertically spaced walls forming an annular space surrounding and extending away from the rotor axis, an annular series of blades surrounding said axis below said space, the discharge edges of said blades being in communication with the inlet of said space, means for directing air tangentially against said blades and toward said axis to rotate said rotor, and means for delivering oil directly into said space near the inlet thereof.

1,631,375. LAWN RAKE. OLIVER C. KENYON, Geneva, Ill. Filed Mar. 14, 1924. Serial No. 699,267. 5 Claims. (Cl. 55—114.)



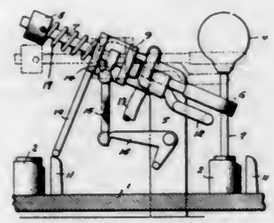
2. In a lawn rake, the combination of a rake frame comprising a pair of angle sections each comprising a short leg and a longer leg, the short leg having a plurality of spaced apart recesses leading inwardly from its free margin, means securing said angle sections together with the short legs abutting the longer legs to provide a passageway extending longitudinally thru the frame, and a series of tooth structures having complete loops intermediate their ends disposed in said passageway and with portions extending from said loops in opposite direction thru said recesses.

1,631,376. GRAIN WEIGHER. WIGGERT LANGERAK, Pella, Iowa, assignor of one-half to Meyer Langerak, Pella, Iowa. Filed Apr. 17, 1924. Serial No. 707,095. 9 Claims. (Cl. 249—19.)



1. An automatic weigher comprising a casing having an inlet and a discharge opening therein, a weigher rotor journaled therein, said weigher rotor having a number of pockets therein adapted to register with the inlet and discharge openings in said casing, means for retaining the weigher rotor in position where a pocket registers with the inlet opening and a pocket with the discharge opening, said last means being rendered inoperative when the contents of one pocket reach a predetermined weight for permitting the pocket registering with the inlet opening to move to position where it registers with the discharge opening, lugs on said rotor and a cam arranged in said casing for engaging the lugs on the rotor and causing said weigher rotor retaining means operative immediately before a pocket registers with said inlet opening.

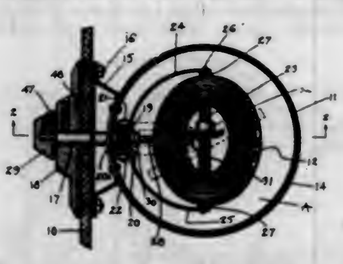
1,631,377. SEALING-OFF DEVICE. WALTHER-WINFRIED LOEHE and MAX GROSSMANN, Berlin, Germany, assignors to General Electric Company, a Corporation of New York. Filed Feb. 20, 1925, Serial No. 10,552, and in Germany Mar. 14, 1924. 9 Claims. (Cl. 176—2.)



1. In a device of the character described, the combination with a head for holding a tubulated vessel by the end of the exhaust tube, of a holder bodily movable away from said head to elongate said tubulature and comprising relatively movable fingers for gripping said vessel, a burner mounted to direct the flame upon the exhaust tube adjacent said holder, and means actuated subsequent to said bodily movement of said holder to separate said fingers and deliver the vessel from said holder.

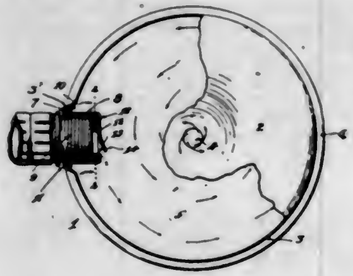
1,631,378. SEALING-OFF DEVICE. CARL MARTIN, Kearny, N. J., assignor to General Electric Company, a Corporation of New York. Filed June 4, 1923. Serial No. 643,182. 12 Claims. (Cl. 176—2.)

1. In a device for automatically sealing off a bulb from an exhaust tube comprising a movably mounted bulb fork, means adjacent said fork for heating an exhaust tube, means for automatically moving said fork to pull the bulb away from the exhaust tube sufficiently to seal it off, and means for subsequently tilting said fork to discharge the sealed off bulb from the fork.



1,631,379. SEALING-OFF TORCH. LOUIS A. MAURER, Irvington, N. J., assignor to General Electric Company, a Corporation of New York. Filed June 4, 1923. Serial No. 643,166. 10 Claims. (Cl. 176—2.)

1. The combination of an exhaust head intermittently movable into and out of sealing off position, a bulb fork which registers with said head in sealing off position and tends when moved out of its normal position toward said head to move back to normal position, a burner mounted to direct a flame between said fork and said head, and means responsive to the movement of said exhaust head for first moving said fork out of normal position toward said head with its open end toward and in the path of an exhaust tube in said head and then as said head reaches sealing off position releasing said fork and leaving it free to return to normal position.



1,631,380. RADIO TUNING DEVICE. WILLIAM L. MILLER, St. Paul, Minn. Filed Sept. 2, 1925. Serial No. 54,129. 12 Claims. (Cl. 171—119.)

1. A radio tuning device for application to a fixed support comprising a coil mounted upon said support, a second coil arranged for rotation relative to said first coil about two intersecting axes, an operating member having a fixed situs relative to said support for rotating said movable coil about one of its axes, and another operating member having a fixed situs relative to said support for independently rotating said coil about its other axis.

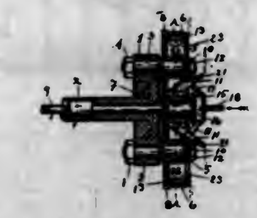
1,631,381. SPRINKLER. LEWEN R. NELSON, Peoria, Ill. Filed June 9, 1924. Serial No. 718,723. 3 Claims. (Cl. 299—114.)

1. In combination with a sprinkler head including side and top walls and having a single central discharge orifice in said top wall, a nut secured in the side wall of the head, the axis of whose bore is disposed at right angles to the axis of said orifice, both axes lying in the same plane, a wall at the inner end of said nut lying within the space of said head and at right angles to the axis of the bore of the nut, said wall being integral with said nut and arranged parallel to the axis of the discharge orifice, said wall being slitted and a portion adjacent the slit being bent outwardly to deflect the stream passing through said slit at an angle to the bore of the nut toward the sides of the head.



1,631,382. FLOTATION APPARATUS. TOM M. OWEN, Wallace, and MICHAEL P. DALTON, Mullan, Idaho. Filed May 29, 1925. Serial No. 33,601. 8 Claims. (Cl. 209—169.)

1. A flotation apparatus comprising a series of cells, an agitator rotor extending horizontally of each cell, an inlet chamber communicating with each cell adjacent the bottom thereof through a discharge opening directed toward a relatively short longitudinal portion of said rotor and connected with the preceding cell through an inlet opening at a substantially higher level than said discharge opening, said portion of the rotor acting to elevate the pulp to a predetermined level in each cell.

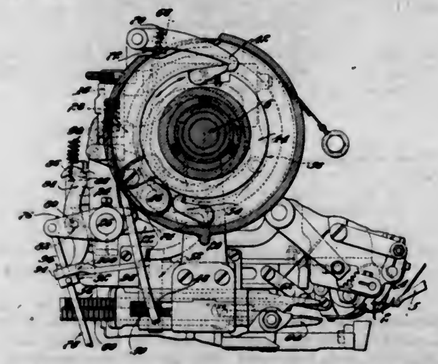
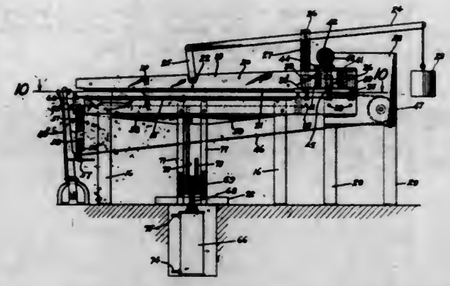
1,631,383. CENTRIFUGAL APPARATUS FOR SEPARATING PURPOSES. FRANCISCO ANGEL QUIROZ, New York, N. Y. Filed Apr. 23, 1926. Serial No. 104,146. 10 Claims. (Cl. 233—25.)



1. A centrifugal separator comprising a container, rotatable in a fixed orbit and also about its own axis, having vanes or ribs extending from one end to the other of the container in such a way that they form pockets at its periphery, said ribs or vanes being set at an angle to the radial line of the container and toward the direction of rotation of the container about its own axis, having means for introducing the material inside the container, means for withdrawing the liquids and means for withdrawing the solids out of the container.

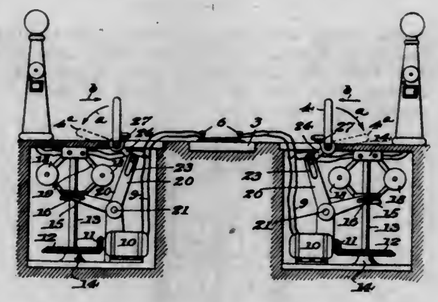
1,631,384. LOTION. FRANCIS A. RICHMOND, Elmira, N. Y., assignor to The Frostilla Company, Elmira, N. Y., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed July 17, 1926. Serial No. 123,252. 6 Claims. (Cl. 167—9.)

1. A lotion for personal use including a base comprising substantially pure citrous pectin.



6. A lotion for personal use including a creamy emollient base which includes substantially pure citrous pectin containing not more than 3% of solid impurities.

1,631,385. SEWING MACHINE. FRED RICKS and ERNEST GEORGE EDGAR BURGOYNE, Leicester, England, assignors to United Shoe Machinery Corporation, Paterson, N. J., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Apr. 2, 1921, Serial No. 457,031, and in Great Britain May 31, 1920. 17 Claims. (Cl. 112—46.)

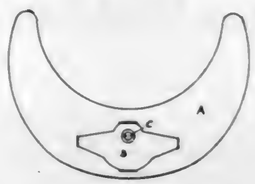


1. A welt shoe sewing machine having, in combination, stitch forming devices, power operated mechanism for severing the welt and means dependent for its actuation upon the performance of a plurality of separate operations on the part of the operator after the completion of the sewing operation for controlling the operation of said mechanism.

1,631,386. METAL-BENDING MACHINE. WILLIAM SEYMOUR, JR., JAMES O. GROFF, and ALBERT SCHAAF, Chicago, Ill., assignors to Joseph T. Ryerson & Son, Inc., Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed Apr. 2, 1925. Serial No. 20,216. 10 Claims. (Cl. 153—17.)

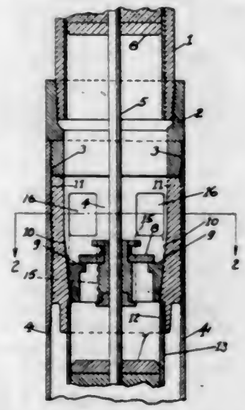
1. A machine of the class described comprising work-clamping jaws, upper and lower, bending aprons pivoted one at each side of and adjacent said jaws adapted when rocked to perform bending operations upon work clampingly held between and projecting laterally from the jaws, a cylinder centrally below the lower jaw and having a vertical piston rod, and links co-pivotally attached to the rod diverging upwardly and pivotally connecting with respective aprons.

1,631,387. RAILROAD-CROSSING SAFETY DEVICE. GARLAND P. SPRINGFIELD, Evansville, Ind., assignor of one-half to Raymond C. Smith, Vanderburg County, Ind. Filed Aug. 30, 1926. Serial No. 132,514. 1 Claim. (Cl. 39—7.)



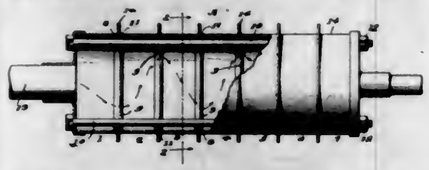
A safety device for railroad crossings comprising a gate or barrier hinged in the region of the level of the crossing and which is adapted to be arranged in an upright position to form an obstruction at the crossing to bar the passage of a vehicle, or to be lowered away from the track to permit passage from the crossing, means being provided to prevent the gate or barrier from being swung downwardly toward the track when said barrier has been raised, and power means for arranging and maintaining the gate or barrier in raised position consisting of a motor and a centrifugal weight-operated governor by which the barrier is raised and kept in raised position so long as the motor operates, the weights of said governor dropping and automatically lowering the gate or barrier when the motor ceases to operate.

1,631,388. GYMNASTIC IMPLEMENT. ALEXANDER WESCHKE, Berlin-Schoneberg, Germany. Filed Mar. 17, 1926, Serial No. 95,451, and in Germany Nov. 18, 1924. 3 Claims. (Cl. 272—84.)



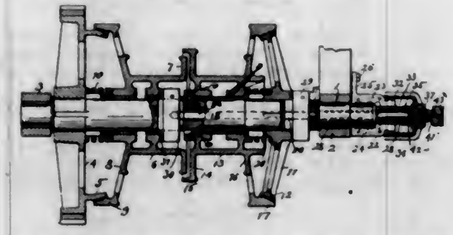
1. Gymnastic device comprising a handle and a weight, separate rods secured to said handle, and to said weight, and a resilient connection between said rods.

1,631,389. MANUFACTURE OF CAPS. MARY JANE WEST, Nelson, England. Filed May 10, 1926, Serial No. 108,085, and in Great Britain May 11, 1925. 1 Claim. (Cl. 2—195.)



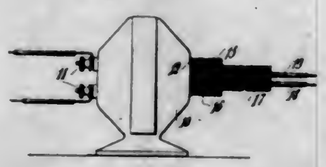
A stiffener for the peak of a cap, comprising a piece of sheet metal having a central portion and four tapering and pointed arms which project radially from the central portion, two of the arms being of greater length than the other two, the two long arms being arranged in line with each other, the two short arms also being arranged in line with each other and crosswise of the long arms, and the pointed ends of all the arms being adapted to be bent over and passed through openings in the peak of the cap and clenched to the peak.

1,631,390. DEEP-WELL-PUMP CONNECTING DEVICE. GEORGE E. WILLERS, Lawrenceburg, Ind., assignor to A. D. Cook, Inc., Lawrenceburg, Ind., a Corporation of Indiana. Filed July 16, 1925. Serial No. 44,027. 3 Claims. (Cl. 103—187.)



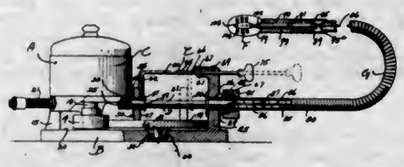
1. In a deep well pump, an upper barrel, a lower barrel casing, a lower working barrel within the lower barrel casing, a housing between the upper barrel and the lower working barrel, a bushing for connecting the lower barrel casing with the upper barrel, and an independent member mounted within the lower barrel casing supporting the lower working barrel and the housing.

1,631,391. MUFFLER. JOHN WARD WILLIAMS, Buffalo, N. Y. Filed Dec. 7, 1925. Serial No. 73,719. 1 Claim. (Cl. 137—160.)



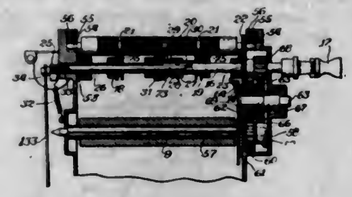
A device of the character described including a plurality of cup-shaped sections provided with outwardly extending flanges at their outer edges, the bottom portions of the sections having right-angle indentations in close proximity to the bottom edges of the sections to provide seats for the upper edges in such manner that the outer flanges are in approximately the same plane with the bottoms of the sections, suitable end sections and means for securing the several sections in their proper relationship.

1,631,392. CLUTCH-OPERATING MECHANISM. JAMES F. WRIGHT, Cleveland, Ohio, assignor to The McMyler Interstate Company, Bedford, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Dec. 9, 1922. Serial No. 605,830. 6 Claims. (Cl. 192—94.)



1. In a clutch controlled mechanism the combination with a hollow rotatable shaft, of clutch members slidable on the shaft, a hollow push pin within the shaft for shifting one of the clutch members, a push pin within the hollow push pin for shifting another clutch member, and means at one end of the shaft for operating said push pins.

1,631,393. TRANSFORMER. HENRY P. ANDREOLI, Long Beach, N. Y. Filed Feb. 11, 1925. Serial No. 8,358. 2 Claims. (Cl. 175—361.)

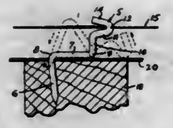


1. A transformer casing having terminals at one side thereof for the secondary winding of the transformer and provided at its opposite side with a projecting guide nipple for leads connected with the primary winding of the transformer, and said nipple provided with means for rigidly connecting the same with the wall of an outlet box or conduit member.

1,631,394. MOTOR-DRIVEN TOOTHBRUSH. GLEN WILLIAM BAIRD and ARTHUR LAMB, Drummond, Idaho. Filed Aug. 18, 1924. Serial No. 732,799. 1 Claim. (Cl. 74—26.)

In a motor driven tooth brush the combination of a horizontally supported base, a motor mounted on the base having a drive shaft vertically disposed in right angled relation with the base, a drive wheel on the shaft between the motor and the base, a relatively large wheel having a spindle extending from one side thereof and being smooth and flat on the opposite side thereof, means rotatably supporting said spindle in the horizontal base with the relatively large wheel horizontally supported above the horizontal base with its smooth flat side uppermost and at its periphery in driven engagement with the peripheral edge of the motor wheel, a standard rigid with the base in right angled vertically upstanding relation therefrom, a driven shaft horizontally supported by said standard including a horizontal portion extending substantially diametrically across the relatively large wheel above the upper surface thereof in spaced relation, a friction wheel splined on the driven shaft above the relatively large wheel and at its periphery being in driven engagement with the upper surface of the relatively large wheel, the length of the driven shaft above the relatively large wheel being such that the friction wheel may be slid diametrically across the relatively large wheel into engagement therewith at the opposite sides of the axis of rotation of the relatively large wheel, and operating means slidably carried by the standard for moving the friction wheel and holding it in a desired engagement with the relatively large wheel for drive of the driven shaft.

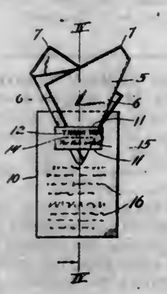
1,631,395. AUTOGRAPHIC-REGISTER CASH DRAWER. WALTER R. BARKER and LOUIS JENSEN, Chicago, Ill., assignors to United Autographic Register Company, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed Nov. 10, 1923. Serial No. 673,988. 8 Claims. (Cl. 235—5.)



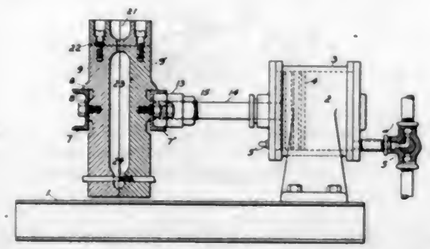
1. An autographic register comprising a frame and a normally ineffective paper feeding roller mounted thereon, a cash drawer slidable in said frame, a drawer latch, a normally ineffective drawer release, means for operating said feed roller, and a depressible key for rendering said paper feeding roller effective and set the drawer release mechanism upon an operation of said means.

1,631,396. CLAMPING DEVICE. RAYMOND E. BEEGLE, East St. Louis, Ill., assignor of one-half to William J. Steinbreder, St. Louis, Mo. Filed Oct. 23, 1924. Serial No. 745,405. 11 Claims. (Cl. 24—19.)

1. A clamping device comprising a flexible band shaped to produce an annular member, and a projecting portion on said band, said projecting portion comprising a pair of legs arranged at an angle to each other to provide an approximately V-shaped space therebetween, and said projecting portion being adapted to be bent to cause said annular member to be contracted, said band being provided with an abutment with which a portion of said band contacts when said projecting portion has been bent to contract said annular member.

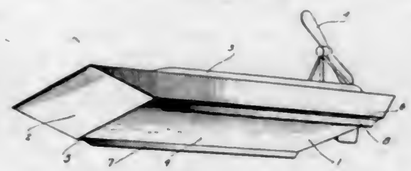


1,631,397. STUCCO NAIL. CLAUDE E. BOWERS, Los Angeles, Calif. Filed Mar. 13, 1926. Serial No. 94,385. 4 Claims. (Cl. 72—118.)



2. A stucco nail consisting of a single piece of wire provided with a wall penetrating point and bent upon itself to form an angular portion, the pointed leg of the angle when driven into the wall bending the other leg of the angle into a plane parallel with the wall surface, that portion of the wire extending beyond the angular portion being bent to form a hooked wire receiving end.

1,631,398. DISPLAY KERCHIEF. LAWRENCE A. CAMPBELL, Kansas City, Mo. Filed Sept. 22, 1924. Serial No. 739,089. 1 Claim. (Cl. 24—3.)



A display kerchief for outside coat pockets comprising a fabric kerchief adapted to be folded inside the top of the pocket, a flat comparatively stiff supporting and holding member of such size that when the bottom thereof is resting upon the bottom of the pocket the kerchief is in proper display position, said supporting member having a pair of spaced parallel slits for holding the lower portion of the kerchief and maintaining the kerchief in folded condition, and a row of stitching intermediate said slits adapted to secure the kerchief to the material of said flat supporting member between said slits.

1,631,399. CASTING MACHINE. WALTER J. CHRISTIE, Alameda, Calif. Filed Dec. 1, 1922, Serial No. 604,277. Renewed Nov. 1, 1926. 5 Claims. (Cl. 22—149.)

1. As an element of a casting machine, a mold section having a cavity on one face and recesses on its side faces at the parting line of the mold, such, that when similar sections are positioned side by side a vent shaft will be formed centrally between the castings for the escapement of heat radiation.

1,631,400. BOAT. T. B. COLLINS, also known as Timothy Banker Collins, deceased, Daytona, Fla., by George R. Collins, administrator, Kansas City, Mo. Filed June 17, 1925. Serial No. 37,672. 2 Claims. (Cl. 114—66.5.)

1. A boat having a smooth, flat, uninterrupted bottom, an inclined substantially plane faced bow merging therewith and a pair of substantially parallel fins extending longitudinally of said bottom adjacent the side edges thereof and depending therefrom substantially perpendicular to said bottom, said fins having bevelled forward ends.

1,631,401. PROCESS OF MAKING MOTOR FUEL. ROY CROSS, Kansas City, Mo., assignor to Gasoline Products Company, Inc., New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Sept. 12, 1925. Serial No. 56,070. 5 Claims. (Cl. 196—37.)

1. A process of making motor fuel having antidetonating properties, comprising the steps of subjecting petroleum oil to the solvent action of sulphur dioxide, removing the undissolved hydrocarbons from the sulphur dioxide fraction, extracting the sulphur dioxide from the dissolved fraction, subjecting the residue to cracking conditions of temperature and pressure.

1,631,402. BALE-BAND BUCKLE. THOMAS J. M. DALY, Memphis, Tenn. Filed Apr. 17, 1925. Serial No. 23,927. 2 Claims. (Cl. 24—21.)

1. A buckle comprising a bail-like body having side bars, a cross bar straight between and connecting the side bars at one end, one of the side bars being extended from said cross bar in the plane of the latter and the other side bar inclining normally upward from its end connected with the cross bar toward its other or free end, an end bar extending from the free end of the inclined side bar toward the other side bar and having its extremity returned inwardly in hook form for a portion of the length of the said end bar and above the latter and the other side bar of the bail having at its free end a short inwardly projecting arm in the plane of said side bar and the first named cross bar as and for the purpose set forth.

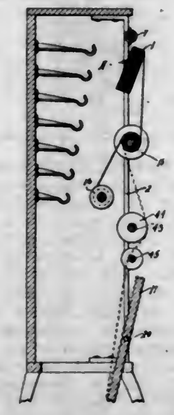
1,631,403. LOG RAFT. MATTHEW J. DAVIS, Portland, Oreg. Filed Dec. 1, 1924. Serial No. 753,339. 6 Claims. (Cl. 9—15.)



1. A log raft comprising a raft floor, and a superimposed load of logs upon the floor, means for binding the superimposed load of logs to the raft floor, transversely disposed logs upon the ends of the raft and lines binding the ends of the raft floor to the transverse logs and lines extending longitudinally of the raft to bind the transverse logs together.

1,631,404. CENTRIFUGAL FLUID-FUEL BURNER. FREDERICK S. DENISON, Minneapolis, Minn., assignor to Minneapolis Heat Regulator Company, Minneapolis, Minn., a Corporation of Minnesota. Filed Mar. 24, 1924. Serial No. 701,480. 4 Claims. (Cl. 158—77.)

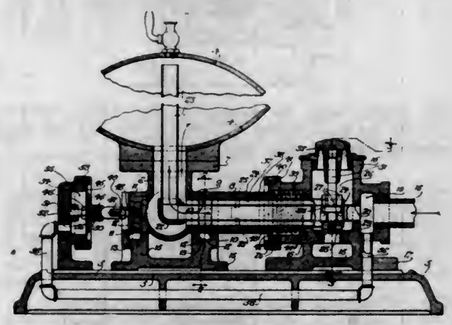
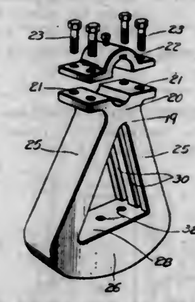
1,631,405. DRY-GOODS-MEASURING MACHINE. JAMES YOUNG DOWNING, Jackson, Miss. Filed July 28, 1924. Serial No. 728,759. 1 Claim. (Cl. 33—131.)



A device of the class described including a supporting frame, means detachably, removably and rotatably supporting a bolt of material in the frame, a tube removably supported in the same beneath the bolt supporting means, means whereby to impart rotative movement to said tube for winding material thereon from the bolt and means disposed between the layer of material as it is wound upon the tube whereby to measure said material when removed from the tube.

1,631,406. VALVE. CHARLES P. EISENHAUER, Dayton, Ohio, assignor to The Duro Company, Dayton, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Nov. 23, 1925. Serial No. 70,836. 2 Claims. (Cl. 251—31.)

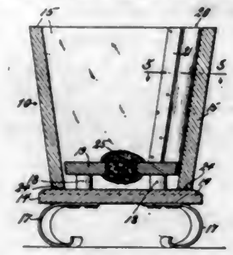


1. In a valve, a valve body having a passageway therethrough, a valve member adapted to control said passageway, a diaphragm associated with said valve member and said passageway interposed between the valve member and its actuating means, and an actuating means for said valve member, separable from said diaphragm and valve member said diaphragm being corrugated, said valve member being located in and positioned by one of the corrugations of said diaphragm.

1,631,407. TILTING TRAP. NORMAN C. ELLIS and HUBERT C. ELLIS, Evanston, Ill., assignors to Ellis Drier & Elevator Company, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Wisconsin. Filed Aug. 4, 1922. Serial No. 579,656. 11 Claims. (Cl. 137—103.)

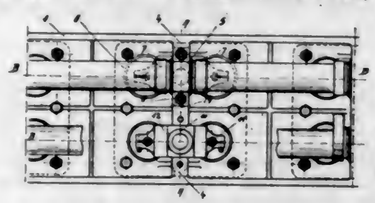
3. In a tilting trap, the combination of a tiltable drum, a trunnion pipe secured to and movable with the drum, having a fluid passage connected to the drum, a stationary pipe in the trunnion pipe communicating with the drum, a stationary fitting in which the stationary pipe is secured, and a valve inside of the fitting and operated by the trunnion-pipe.

1,631,408. COUNTERBALANCING MEANS FOR WELL-PUMPING APPARATUS. CHARLIE CAMDON FETTY, Eldorado, Kans. Filed May 20, 1926. Serial No. 110,581. 5 Claims. (Cl. 74—71.)



1. In pumping apparatus, a shaft, a band wheel thereon, a crank on said shaft and a counterbalancing member on said shaft, said counterbalancing member comprising a yoke-like arm having a shaft engaging portion at one end thereof and a weight removably anchored in said yoke-like arm.

1,631,409. WOODEN POT FOR PLANTS. JOHN CHARLES FINN, Los Angeles, Calif. Filed Apr. 11, 1925. Serial No. 22,394. 1 Claim. (Cl. 47—38.)



A wooden pot for plants including a thick wooden bottom and side walls, a removable rigid false bottom made of wood to support the dirt in the pot and spaced from the bottom of the pot to form a water chamber and spaced from the wall of the pot and having an opening through it, a conduit on the inside of the wall of the pot leading from the top of the pot down through the false bottom to supply water directly to the water chamber, and a sponge filling the opening in the false bottom and held therein by expansion and extending above and also freely below the same into the water chamber, whereby the false bottom will be kept wet and the earth irrigated from the false bottom.

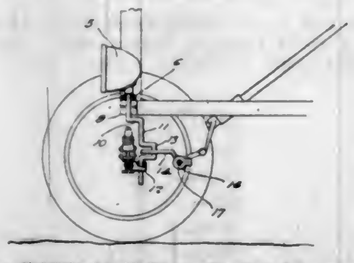
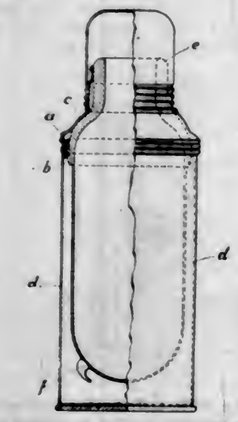
1,631,410. VALVE MECHANISM FOR INTERNAL-COMBUSTION ENGINES. GUIDO FORNACA, Turin, Italy. Filed Mar. 20, 1926, Serial No. 96,229, and in Italy Mar. 25, 1925. 6 Claims. (Cl. 123—90.)



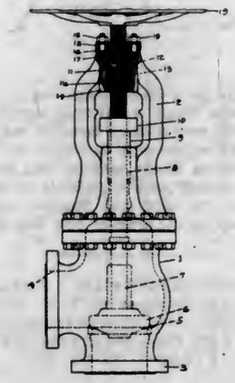
3. A valve mechanism for internal combustion engines, comprising a plurality of valves grouped in sets, and having stems in parallel relation, a cross-piece bearing on the end of the stem of each valve of a set, a shaft arranged above the cross-pieces, bearings for said shaft, mounted between the valve stems of each set, extensions formed on each bearing constituting guides for said cross pieces, and cams mounted on the shafts in proximity to and laterally of each bearing, each set of cams cooperating with a cross piece for actuating the corresponding set of valves.

1,631,411. ELECTRIC FAN. EPHRAIM GOLDFAIN and SAMUEL FOWLER, Oklahoma City, Okla. Filed Oct. 25, 1926. Serial No. 144,053. 1 Claim. (Cl. 230—256.)



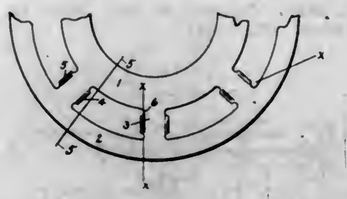
In an electric fan, an upright support, a head rotatable on the support and including a fan rotatable about an axis at a right angle to the axis of rotation of the head, an eccentric operatively connected with the fan, an annular ratchet on the support, an annulus circumjacent the ratchet, a set screw in the annulus and engageable with the ratchet to lock the ratchet and annulus together, a spring pressed pawl mounted in the annulus to engage the ratchet, and a link engaged with the eccentric and the annulus so that with one operation of the fan oscillatory movement is imparted to the head when the set screw is engaged with the ratchet or rotary intermittent motion is imparted to the head when the set screw is disengaged from the ratchet.

1,631,412. DIRIGIBLE HEADLIGHT CONSTRUCTION FOR AUTOMOBILES. FRED GREENLEE, Gallia, Ohio. Filed Oct. 7, 1926. Serial No. 140,110. 1 Claim. (Cl. 240—62.)



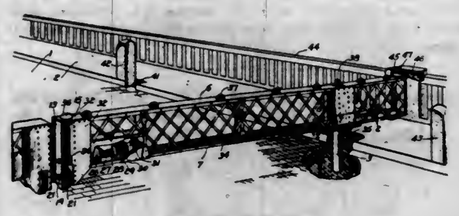
In a dirigible headlight construction for automobiles, the combination with the frame, the cross bar extending across the forward end of the frame, the front axle and the transverse connecting rod of the steering mechanism, a shaft mounted vertically for rotation at the front of the automobile, bearings arranged upon the top of the cross bar and the inner side of the front axle, the upper portion of said shaft extending through the cross bar and through the upper bearing, the lower end of the shaft being journaled in the lower bearing on the front axle, a headlight secured on the upper end of the shaft, the portion of the shaft below the cross bar being directed rearwardy and then downwardly, the lower portion of the shaft being bent to form a rearwardly extending crank at a point slightly above the front axle, a connecting arm between the crank and the connecting rod of the steering mechanism, said arm being formed at its inner end with split clamping means for engagement with the connecting rod, the forward end of the arm being formed with a longitudinal slot for receiving the crank portion of the shaft.

1,631,413. HEAT-INSULATING BOTTLE. ALBERT GÜNTHER and RICHARD GERTLOFF, Schmiedefeld in Thuringen, Germany. Filed June 8, 1926, Serial No. 114,450, and in Germany Mar. 4, 1926. 3 Claims. (Cl. 215—13.)



1. In an insulating bottle, a glass bottle having the upper portion thereof thickened to present an outstanding reinforce, a ring cooperating with the reinforce and having an internal diameter slightly less than the maximum external diameter of the reinforce, whereby the ring can only engage with the reinforce from the bottom of the bottle, and a casing cooperating with the ring and binding the same upon the reinforce.

1,631,414. VALVE. FREDERICK H. REHEMANN, Cincinnati, Ohio, assignor to The Lunkenheimer Company, Cincinnati, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Jan. 25, 1926. Serial No. 83,513. 3 Claims. (Cl. 251—49.)

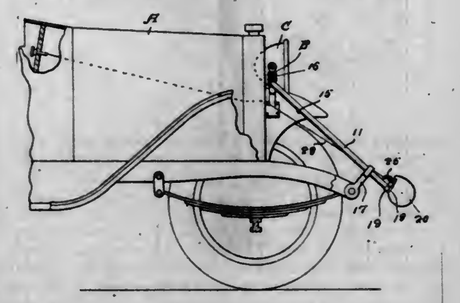


1. In combination with a valve having a stem, a valve casing, a bushing having internal threads, and the stem having threads engaging those of said bushing, said bushing slidably mounted in the casing with clamping members for controlling the extent of slidable movement of the bushing.

1,631,415. LOCK WASHER. RICHARD T. HOSKING, Wilmette, Ill., assignor, by mesne assignments, to Shakeproof Lock Washer Company, Incorporated, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Feb. 14, 1925. Serial No. 9,147. 1 Claim. (Cl. 151—35.)

A spring-tooth lock washer comprising an inner and an outer concentric annular ring of spring material spaced apart and connected by a plurality of substantially radial bars spaced apart circumferentially and spanning the annular space between said rings, the two lateral margins of each bar flanged, one upwardly, the other downwardly, each of said flanged margins being of suitably narrow width to cause its gripping edge to engage the face of the work and dig into the same by a rolling movement when the work tends to turn in a direction to unscrew the same.

1,631,416. TRAFFIC GATE. ERNEST E. HOWARD, Kansas City, Mo. Filed Mar. 20, 1926. Serial No. 96,351. 10 Claims. (Cl. 39—7.)

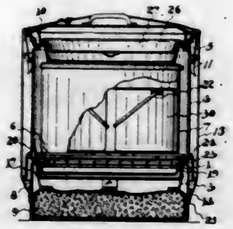


1. A traffic gate comprising a pivotally mounted barrier, having a ground wheel at its free end and a motor operatively connected with the ground wheel to rotate the same.

4. A traffic gate comprising a barrier having pivotal mounting at one of its ends, a ground wheel supporting the opposite end of the barrier, a gear wheel carried by the ground wheel, a drive pinion in mesh with the gear wheel and means carried by the gate for operating the pinion.

6. A traffic gate comprising paired barriers pivotally mounted at opposite sides of a roadway in a line perpendicular to the roadway, the combined length of the barriers being greater than the width of the roadway, whereby the ends of the barriers must contact as they approach said perpendicular line to lock the barriers against continued movement in the direction of said line, supporting ground wheels on said barriers, and an individual motor on each barrier operatively connected with the corresponding ground wheel.

10. In combination with a roadway, a sidewalk and a rail for the sidewalk, the rail having a vertical shouldered recess and a switch shifting surface within the recess, a pivotally mounted barrier having roadway and sidewalk sections, the end of the sidewalk section movable into and from the railing recess, and a motor for operating the barrier.



1,631,417. FENDER ATTACHMENT FOR AUTOMOBILES. HENRY H. IRWIN and WILLIAM ATTOR CARPENTER, Greenville, S. C. Filed Sept. 8, 1926. Serial No. 134,250. 3 Claims. (Cl. 293—26.)

2. An automobile attachment of the character described comprising a frame mounted on the front of the machine and including spaced parallel limbs, rods slidable in said limbs and normally held in retracted positions, a casing supported by said rods and normally arranged for use in the capacity of a bumper for the machine, a roller journaled in said casing, a netting normally wound about the roller and having one end secured to said frame, means for automatically projecting said rods in advance of said frame and simultaneously unwind the netting from said roller incident to the release of said rods, and manually operable means for releasing said rods from a point adjacent the driver's seat of the machine.

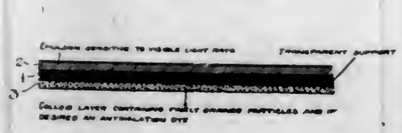
1,631,418. COOKING APPARATUS. PHILIP T. JACKSON, Toronto, Ontario, Canada. Filed May 21, 1926. Serial No. 110,710. 12 Claims. (Cl. 126—38.)

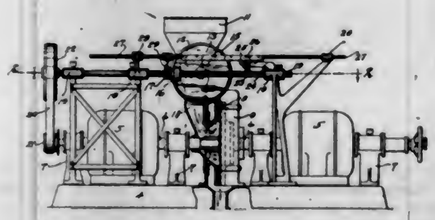
1. In cooking apparatus the combination of a fuel basket; and a cylinder adapted, when positioned one end up, to rest on the rim of the fuel basket, and when turned with the other end up, to slip over and enclose the fuel basket.

1,631,419. APPARATUS FOR PLUGGING WELLS. MYRON M. KINLEY, Tulsa, Okla. Filed June 4, 1926. Serial No. 113,712. 5 Claims. (Cl. 166—13.)



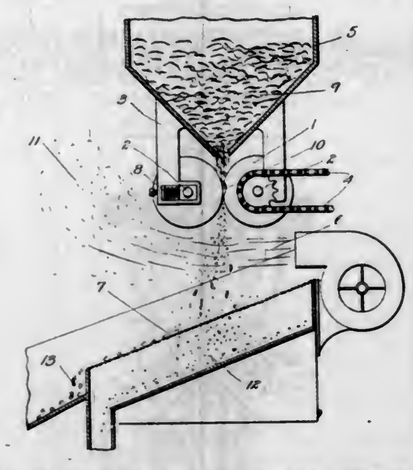
1. Apparatus for plugging wells comprising a rupturable container, a plug of expansible material in the lower portion of the container providing an upper space for sealing material and having a chamber for containing a charge of explosive, and fulminating means comprising a cap located in said chamber.

1,631,420. MUD GUARD FOR VEHICLES. ALEX KLOSS, Aachen-Rothe Erde, Germany. Filed Jan. 2, 1926, Serial No. 78,940, and in Germany Nov. 7, 1924. 4 Claims. (Cl. 280—152.)



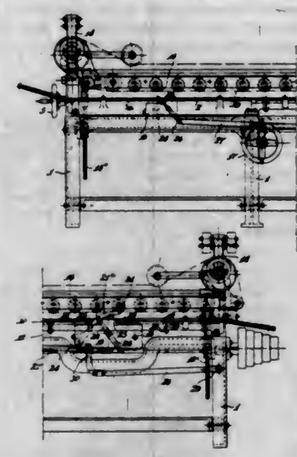
1. A mud guard for vehicles comprising a rigid skirt secured to a vehicle frame, a catching member supported solely by the skirt said member being of flexible material and formed with a plurality of beads on one surface thereof for stiffening of the material and means carried by the skirt to interfit with a plurality of said beads to thereby interlock the skirt and member, and provide a means for supporting the member over the skirt.

1,631,421. PHOTOGRAPHIC FILM. WILHELM LOHÖFER, Leipsic, Germany, assignor to I. G. Farbenindustrie Aktiengesellschaft, Frankfort-on-the-Main, Germany. Filed Nov. 3, 1923, Serial No. 672,650, and in Germany Mar. 9, 1923. 4 Claims. (Cl. 95—9.)



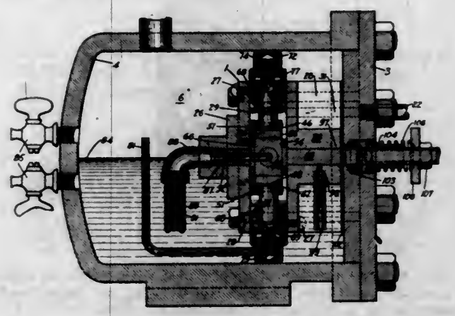
1. A film for photographic work with visible light rays comprising a supporting flexible sheet having on one side thereof a coating of material sensitive to visible light rays and upon the other side a coating of a colloid material containing finely grained particles in an amount and with a grain size enabling retouching.

1,631,422. ATTRITION MILL. WEBSTER LOKEM, Windom, Minn. Filed Oct. 30, 1926. Serial No. 145,203. 6 Claims. (Cl. 83—44.)



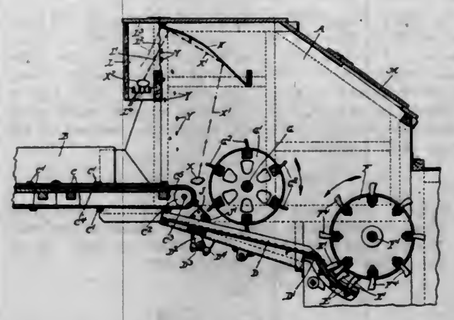
1. The combination with a pair of co-operating members, and power means for operating the same, of a corrugated feed roll for the members, and friction, variable speed, driving connections for the feed roll from the power means.

1,631,423. METHOD OF PURIFYING IRON SCALE. ANTON LUCAS, Kansas City, Mo. Filed Nov. 16, 1925. Serial No. 69,333. 2 Claims. (Cl. 209—2.)



1. The method of purifying iron scale, consisting of crushing the scale between crushing elements yieldable to substances of greater hardness than the scale and then separating the light crushed substances from the other substances, and then separating the scale from the remaining substances.

1,631,424. CAN-SOLDERING MACHINE. WILLIAM JOHN LUXTON and WILLIAM AHIRA GREEN, London, England. Filed Dec. 16, 1926, Serial No. 155,221, and in Great Britain Oct. 20, 1925. 2 Claims. (Cl. 113—78.)

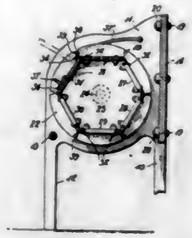


1. In a can soldering machine of the type wherein solder is elevated from a low well to a high well, a plurality of ladle devices for lifting the solder from a low well to a high well, pivoted arms carrying said ladle devices, a reciprocable member connecting said arms, a reciprocating connecting rod, and a loose connection between said rod and said member whereby the latter is moved by the former under normal working conditions, but rides free thereof when abnormal resistance is encountered by the ladles.

1,631,425. COMPRESSOR. HENRY C. MARCUS, San Francisco, and WILFRED FOURNESS, Oakland, Calif. Filed Mar. 1, 1923. Serial No. 622,023. 12 Claims. (Cl. 230—27.)

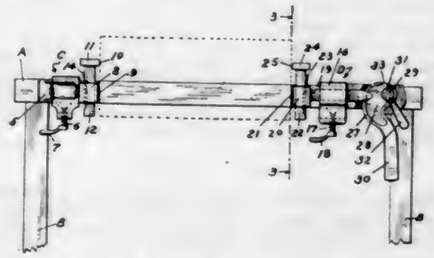
1. In a compressor, a housing enclosing a supply chamber and formed with bores comprising cylinders, pistons arranged in said cylinders, means for reciprocating said pistons, means for introducing the gas to be compressed into said chamber, means for establishing communication between each cylinder and said chamber prior to the beginning of the compression stroke of the piston therein, means for permitting the escape of the compressed gas from the cylinder, a receiver for said compressed gas enclosing said housing and adapted to hold a quantity of oil, and passages extending from below the oil lever to said pistons and said reciprocating means.

1,631,426. HULLER. FRANK H. MOENING, Coe Township, Isabella County, Mich. Filed Apr. 10, 1925. Serial No. 22,013. 17 Claims. (Cl. 130—30.)



2. A stone picker adapted to remove stones and other foreign material from a stream of grain which includes a rotating cylinder mounted in the path of the grain and provided with members adapted as the cylinder is rotated to contact the stones and drive them upward from the stream of material, in combination with a deflector and a receiving compartment having an open side closed by a swinging flexible cushioning curtain whereby material removed by the stone picker is deflected from the deflector against the curtain and into the receiving pocket.

1,631,427. REVOLVING GRATE. ERNEST R. MOORE, Gadsden, Ala. Filed Feb. 23, 1926. Serial No. 89,907. 2 Claims. (Cl. 126—181.)



1. A basket grate comprising end supports and connecting members, journals in said supports, a hollow polygonal grate having end members provided with trunnions adapted to be mounted in said journals, certain of the sides of said grate being provided with relatively large openings, at least one side being provided with relatively small openings, and one of said sides being an imperforate cover.

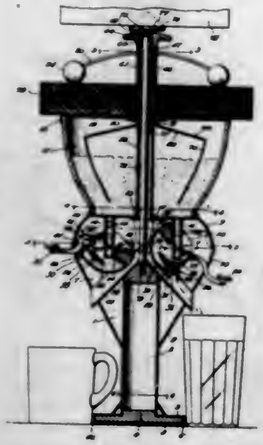
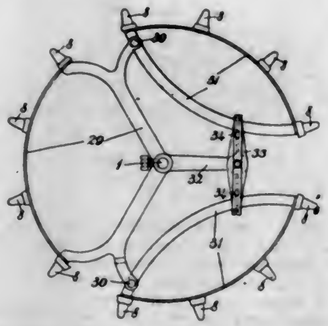
1,631,428. BENCH CLAMP. MARTIN EVALD OLSON, Minneapolis, Minn. Filed May 17, 1926. Serial No. 109,802. 1 Claim. (Cl. 144—307.)



A bench clamp comprising a pair of opposed units one of which is provided with a normally stationary clamp member, a horizontally movable bar carried by the other unit and having a complementing clamp member, a cam member having a flange for engagement with and to actuate the bar, said flange having a notch which when registered with the bar will permit the removal of the same from the unit.

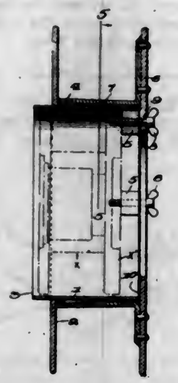
1,631,429. TELESCOPING TIRE RIM. ALBERT ROSS PARSONS, Bonaparte, Iowa, assignor of one-half to Paul Woods, Bonaparte, Iowa. Filed Jan. 15, 1926. Serial No. 81,391. 1 Claim. (Cl. 301—35.)



A demountable rim comprising an outer section formed with a projection on its inner face, said projection being formed with a dove tail groove opening to one end only of said projection, an inner section formed with a notch at one edge adapted to embrace said projection and formed with a dove tail groove adapted to aline and co-act with the first mentioned groove when said sections are in normal position, a slidable key designed to be completely received in the first mentioned groove and adapted to be moved to a position where it will project partly within the second mentioned groove, and an annular flange on each of said sections designed to embrace one side of a tire.

1,631,430. DISPENSING APPARATUS. SIGMOND SCHREIBER, Pittsburgh, Pa. Filed July 27, 1925. Serial No. 46,433. 4 Claims. (Cl. 221—98.)

1. In dispensing apparatus, a reservoir, a spout in communication with the bottom thereof, a delivery spout below the first mentioned spout, a measuring and delivering valve rotatably mounted upon the first mentioned spout and arranged to receive material therefrom in one position of adjustment and in another position of adjustment to deliver the material into the second mentioned spout, means for actuating the valve, and buffer elements carried by the valve for coaction with the first mentioned spout to cushion the movement of the valve to the said positions of adjustment thereof.



1,631,431. COLLAPSIBLE REEL FOR WINDING FILAMENTS, YARNS, THREADS, SILKS, AND THE LIKE. FRIEDRICH WILHELM SCHUBERT, Apperley Bridge, near Bradford, England, assignor to Brysilka, Limited, Apperley Bridge, near Bradford, England. Filed June 21, 1926. Serial No. 117,538, and in Great Britain July 2, 1925. 2 Claims. (Cl. 242—111.)

1. Collapsible reels for winding filaments, yarns, threads, silks and the like, wherein the filament supporting surface or surfaces comprise three segmental portions, two of which are pivotally connected to the third and adjustably secured to each other, means being provided for locking the segments in the extended or erected position.

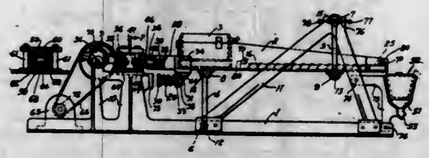
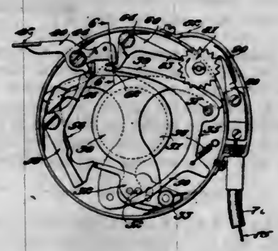
1,631,432. TAKE-UP REEL. THOMAS JOSEPH SCHUETZ, Tulsa, Okla., assignor to Braden Steel & Winch Company, Tulsa, Okla. Filed Dec. 27, 1926. Serial No. 157,374. 6 Claims. (Cl. 242—95.)



6. In combination with a winch secured to the driving wheel of a motor vehicle, a take-up reel comprising an inner member consisting of a cylinder adapted to fit over said winch and having a circumferential flange extending therefrom, a beveled ring on said cylinder immediately adjacent said flange, a plurality of internally threaded lugs on the inner surface of said cylinder at its outer extremity, an outer member comprising a disc having a plurality of angle spring bars secured thereto, the free arms of said bars extending approximately at right angles thereto, said spring bars being adapted to be slipped over said cylinder, and expanded by said beveled ring on said inner member, a plurality of apertures in said disc member arranged adjacent said internally threaded lugs on said inner member, and bolts adapted to be inserted through said apertures and screwed through said lugs into apertures provided in the outer wall of said winch, whereby said inner and outer members are secured together and operatively engage said winch.

1,631,433. YIELDING ROTARY DRIVING MECHANISM. FREDERICK RICHARD SIMMS, London, England. Filed July 29, 1924, Serial No. 728,990, and in Great Britain Aug. 10, 1923. 6 Claims. (Cl. 64—96.)

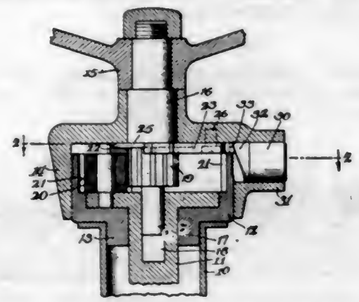


1. Yielding rotary driving mechanism comprising a driving member, a driven member, and a pneumatic cushioning means interposed between and positively secured to said members and placed in sheer stress when transmitting a driving torque from one member to the other, said cushioning means comprising a unitary outer flexible casing and an inflatable inner tube.

1,631,434. AMALGAMATING MACHINE. CHARLES E. SMITH, Azusa, Calif. Filed Sept. 28, 1925. Serial No. 59,079. 2 Claims. (Cl. 209—14.)

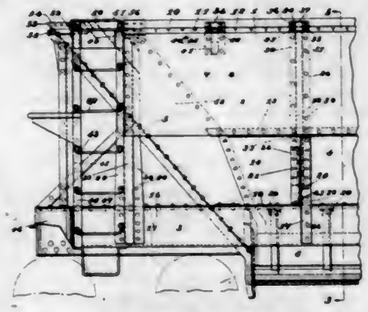
1. In an amalgamating and concentrating machine of the class described, a frame, a sluice operatively mounted in said frame upon two sets of links, one set of said links being extended upwardly from said frame to the front-bottom end of said sluice, and the other set of said links being extended downwardly from said frame to the rear-bottom end of said sluice, an adjustable vibrating means adapted to regulate the vibratory movements thereof, a power transmission means connected to said vibrating means, a riffle means positioned in the rear portion of said sluice adapted to concentrate the minerals escaping in the tailings from said amalgamated ores, a pan positioned in the forward end of said sluice adapted to hold mineral amalgamating elements, a box positioned above said pan, there being an ore screening means in the forward bottom end of said box, and an adjustable shock and stroke compensating means adapted to regulate the movements of said vibratory means.

1,631,435. SHUTTER CONTROL FOR CAMERAS. RICHMOND W. SMITH, Walpole, Mass. Filed Apr. 19, 1921. Serial No. 462,546. 7 Claims. (Cl. 95—31.)



1. A camera comprising a shutter control lever, a shutter mechanism cooperating therewith and adapted to open the shutter upon movement of the control lever from its initial position, a pivoted locking dog adapted to engage the control lever to prevent the return of the lever to initial position, a ratchet wheel engaging the locking dog, and means for turning the ratchet wheel upon movement of the film spool for releasing the locking dog to permit return of the control lever.

1,631,436. STEERING-WHEEL LOCK FOR AUTOMOBILES. FRANKLIN W. STEWART, Chicago, Ill. Filed Dec. 7, 1923. Serial No. 679,089. 1 Claim. (Cl. 70—129.)



The combination with a steering wheel, of a shaft, a steering wheel post and a housing, planetary gears mounted in said housing, one of said gears being mounted on said shaft, a flange on said shaft of greater diameter than said gear, a ratchet wheel of greater diameter than said flange and having a recess therein which receives said flange and a spring pawl mounted within said housing whereby it normally engages said ratchet.

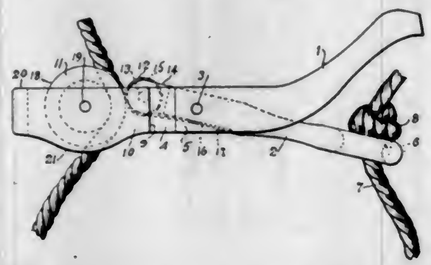
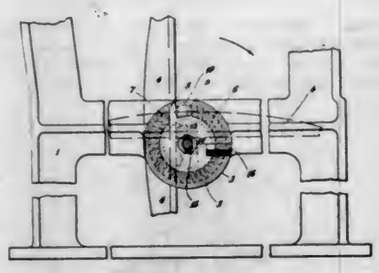
1,631,437. CAR CONSTRUCTION. JOHN F. STREIB, Avalon, Pa., assignor to Pressed Steel Car Company, Pittsburgh, Pa., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Sept. 5, 1923. Serial No. 660,984. 5 Claims. (Cl. 105—247.)



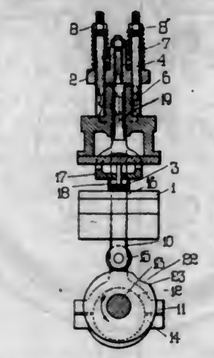
1. In a freight car, a wall having a vertically disposed upper portion and an inwardly extending lower portion, a side sill, a brace between the lower portion of said wall and said sill and secured thereto and adapted to fill the space therebetween, a stake on the inside of said wall, and a stake arranged on the outside of said wall and secured to said sill brace and first mentioned stake.

1,631,438. VALVE SHIELD. MAURICE SULLIVAN, Brooklyn, N. Y. Filed Dec. 16, 1925. Serial No. 75,811. 1 Claim. (Cl. 137—53.)



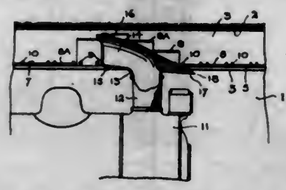
A shield for steam valves comprising a lower housing section of semi-spherical formation open at its upper end and formed with a restricted opening at its lower end adapted to engage a support member, a valve supporting tube formed integral with and centrally in said lower section and provided with a screw threaded opening at its upper end to accommodate a valve, a laterally extending drain nozzle formed at the lower end of the said section, a complementary cover section of semi-cylindrical formation adapted to be telescopically fitted in the upper edge of the lower section and having an annular flange formed adjacent its lower edge resting on the upper edge of the lower section, a steam escape opening formed at the upper edge of the said cover section, and an arcuate slot formed in the side of the upper section communicating with the opening adapted to accommodate a valve operating lever.

1,631,439. LOCKING MECHANISM FOR SHOCK ROPES. ANDREW TIMEUS, Sidney, Ohio. Filed Aug. 17, 1926. Serial No. 129,836. 1 Claim. (Cl. 100—31.)



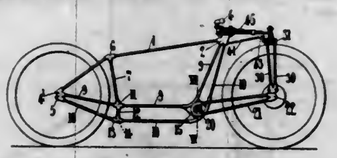
In combination, a frame having a slot in the side thereof communicating with a slot passing fore and aft thereof, a lever pivoted therein having an eye at one end and jaws at the other, a ratchet wheel pivotally supported between said jaws, a spring pawl carried by said lever for preventing the return movement of said ratchet wheel, a pulley mounted in said frame pivotally adapted to be engaged by said ratchet wheel, and a handle on said frame disposed at an angle thereto and depending flanges on the side wall of the frame extending below the margins of the pulley.

1,631,440. TIP-UP AND LIKE CHAIR. DAVID EDWARD TURNER, London, England. Filed June 9, 1924, Serial No. 718,920, and in Great Britain Oct. 17, 1923. 5 Claims. (Cl. 155—85.)



1. A tip-up chair including a pair of spaced standards, a seat supported by and between the standards, a casing mounted on one of the standards and disposed approximately midway of the front and back of the standard with which the casing is associated, a helical spring arranged in the said casing, a projection carried by the seat and adapted to move therewith so as to engage and effect shortening of the length of the spring as a whole and as the seat is lowered, a second projection carried by the seat, and means carried by the casing to be engaged by said second projection to limit movement of the seat when being lowered.

1,631,441. BISCUIT-MAKING AND THE LIKE MACHINE. EDWARD LYNTON VICARS, Earlestown, England. Filed Nov. 13, 1925, Serial No. 68,832, and in Great Britain Dec. 13, 1924. 2 Claims. (Cl. 107—26.)

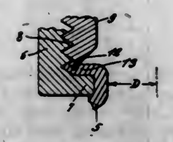


1. A biscuit-making machine comprising in combination, means for supporting a sheet of dough, cutters adapted to act on the dough, embossing tools disposed within said cutters and adapted also to act on the dough, means for moving the cutters initially only partially into the dough clear of the supporting means therefor to incompletely sever the dough, means for moving the embossing tools toward the dough while the cutters are moved into partial severance thereof and to thereafter effect an impression upon the portions of the dough held partially severed by the cutters while severance movement of the latter is temporarily interrupted, means for thereafter effecting a further movement of the cutters to completely sever the previously partially severed portions of the dough while gradually retracting the embossing tools therefrom, and means for retracting the cutters at a differential speed with the embossing tools to overtake and uncover the latter as said elements are moved away from the supporting means for the dough and cause the release or ejection of the embossed and severed portions of the dough from the cutters.

1,631,442. SMOKE-EXTRACTING DEVICE FOR TUNNELS. PETER WAGICH, Connaught, British Columbia, Canada. Filed Dec. 22, 1925, Serial No. 77,069, and in Canada Aug. 24, 1925. 2 Claims. (Cl. 98—49.)

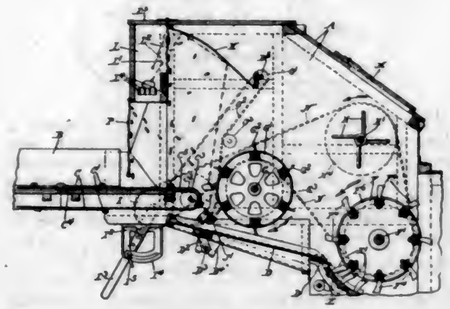
1. In a smoke extracting device for tunnels the combination with a duct having a bottom opening extending longitudinally and a plurality of independently displaceable panels normally closing said opening and adapted to be successively displaced to open position, of a locomotive having the stack thereof equipped with a cowl adapted to project upwardly through the bottom opening of the duct and provided at the front with an inclined plane for initiating displacement of the panels to open position.

1,631,443. MOTOR CYCLE. GEORGE LESLIE WALLIS, Bromley, England. Filed Jan. 30, 1926, Serial No. 85,037, and in Great Britain Jan. 30, 1925. 17 Claims. (Cl. 208—97.)



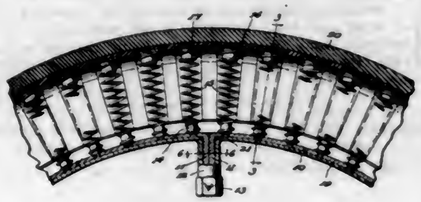
1. In a motor cycle, the combination of, a frame, a wheel, co-acting articulated members on which said wheel is mounted together with arms attached to said frame, certain of which are pivoted and certain others resilient, said pivoted arms being connected on one of said articulated members and said resilient arms to the other of said articulated members.

1,631,444. SHOULDERING ATTACHMENT. COLEMAN B. WARREN, Norfolk, Va. Filed May 29, 1926. Serial No. 112,648. 12 Claims. (Cl. 32—10.)



1. In a device of the character described, a housing, a cutter driving head, a cutter carried by the driving head, means for mounting said head within said housing for rotational and reciprocatory motion, a driving shaft and driving gearing between said shaft and said cutter driving head to rotate said cutter driving head and said cutter around a common axis, and means engaging said cutter head and said casing to cause said cutter to be reciprocated along its axis as it is being rotated around its axis, thereby giving the cutter a vibratory motion around its axis.

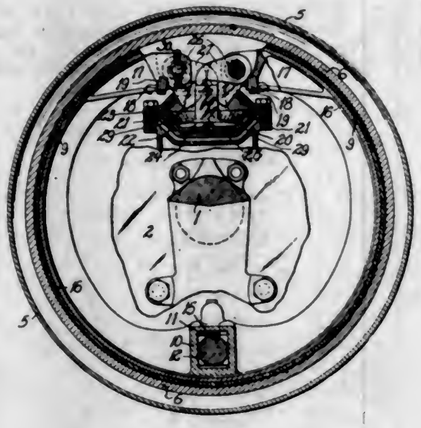
1,631,445. DRUM TRAP. RICHARD WENSLEY, Denver, Colo. Filed Oct. 11, 1926. Serial No. 140,835. 1 Claim. (Cl. 137—76.)



A structure of the class described, having a cylindrical member formed from soft metal, one end of which is closed and forms the bottom and the other end of which is open, an internally threaded ring surrounding the upper portion of the body of the structure and having an interiorly projecting flange over which the top of the structure is bent and a cap or closure having a depending flange externally threaded to engage the interior threads of the ring, the bottom of the flange of the cap being provided with a thin edge adapted to indent that portion of the body of the structure which is engaged by the flange of the ring, said thin edge having a diameter substantially equal to the root diameter of the threads on the depending flange, and formed in part by a continuation of said external thread.

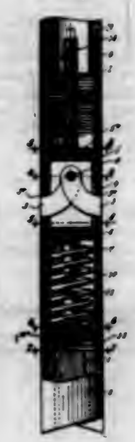
1,631,446. HULLER. WAYNE H. WORTHINGTON, Battle Creek, Mich., assignor to Advance-Rumely Company, La Porte, Ind., a Corporation of Indiana. Filed Mar. 20, 1925. Serial No. 16,875. 15 Claims. (Cl. 130—30.)

1. A stone picker, adapted to remove foreign material from the stream of grain, which includes a rotating member mounted in the path of the grain and adapted, as it is rotated, to drive the foreign material from the stream of grain, in combination with a beater adapted to drive the grain raised by the stone picker downward, and a yielding closure mounted in and partially closing the opening through which the grain is introduced.



1,631,447. CUSHIONING UNIT FOR VEHICLE TIRES. HEDWIG ZUBROW and EMIL SOLOMON, Philadelphia, Pa. Filed Jan. 14, 1926. Serial No. 81,286. 2 Claims. (Cl. 152—8.)

1. The combination with a rim provided with an opening, of a split clamping band encircling the rim and provided at its ends with mating lugs extending through said opening, means engaging said lugs and adjustable thereon for contracting the band tightly about the rim, radial load carrying springs carried by the band, transversely disposed tread springs carried by said load springs, and a casing engaged with the rim to enclose said springs and normally held distended thereby.



1,631,448. BRAKE FOR AUTOMOBILES. HERBERT W. ALDEN and GEORGE HUFFERD, Detroit, Mich., assignors to The Timken-Detroit Axle Company, Detroit, Mich., a Corporation of Michigan. Filed July 31, 1924. Serial No. 729,298. 8 Claims. (Cl. 188—152.)

6. A brake for automobiles comprising a brake band having free ends, bell crank levers pivotally mounted at said ends, and each having one end formed into a cam surface that works against the cam surface of the other lever, an operating block for operating against the other ends of said levers, said operating block being provided with a slot in which said cam arms are disposed, and fluid pressure operated means for actuating said operating block.

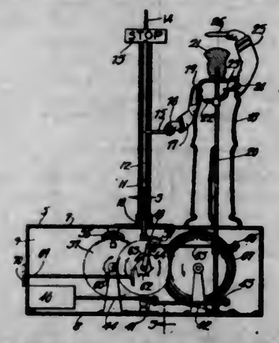
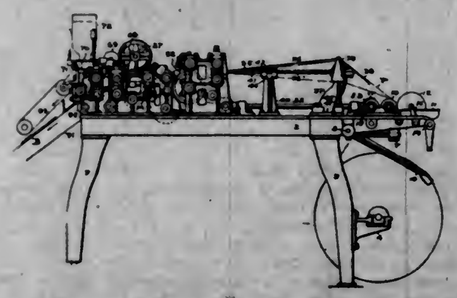
1,631,449. REAMER DRILL BIT. ALLEN D. ALFORD, Dallas, Tex. Filed Dec. 6, 1926. Serial No. 152,767. 2 Claims. (Cl. 255—75.)



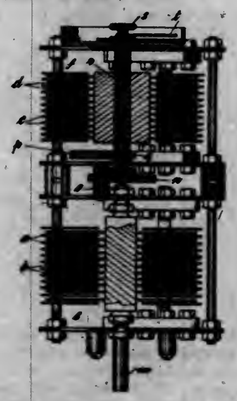
1. A reamer drill having a hollow cylindrical body, a drill bit on the end thereof, a slidable head within the drill body, reamer bits carried by said head, said head having an opening in its top and a series of openings in its lower end to admit water under pressure, the lower end of said head formed integrally with a downwardly projecting pin, a movable nut with an upwardly projecting pin below the upper pin, and a coil spring encircling and resting on the shoulders of said pins.

1,631,450. ART OF AND MEANS FOR METRICAL OPTIC AND ACOUSTIC RECORDING AND REPRODUCTION. CYRUS NEWTON ANDREWS, Yucaipa, Calif. Filed Feb. 3, 1920, Serial No. 356,037. Renewed Nov. 11, 1925. 13 Claims. (Cl. 88—16.2.)



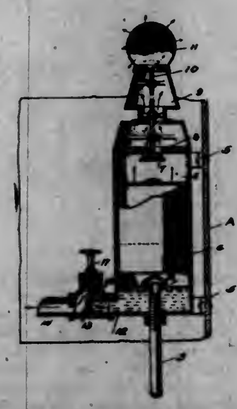
12. Apparatus for producing talking motion pictures comprising a mechanically driven reading record having markings indicating the time in which its parts shall be read, and mechanically driven motion picture projection mechanism and sound producing mechanism, marked, adapted, and arranged to operate in time with the reading record.

1,631,451. MECHANICALLY-OPERATED FIGURE TOY. ARTHUR W. ANKENY, Indiana, Pa. Filed Apr. 21, 1926. Serial No. 103,647. 5 Claims. (Cl. 46—40.)



1. A toy comprising a semaphore, a figure representing a traffic officer, means for operating said semaphore, a connection between said figure and said semaphore, a movable arm on the figure, a movable head on said figure, and means operated by said semaphore operating means for moving the head and arm of said figure simultaneously.

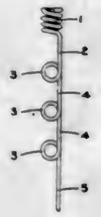
1,631,452. MACHINE FOR MAKING PAPER BAGS. DANIEL APPEL, Cleveland, Ohio, assignor to The Cleveland-Akron Bag Company, Cleveland, Ohio, a Corporation. Filed Sept. 18, 1924. Serial No. 738,537. 19 Claims. (Cl. 93—14.)



1. A machine for making paper bags, comprising means for slitting a strip of paper longitudinally at spaced intervals, means for producing a plicated tube from the slitted paper, said means being adapted to form the fold lines of the tube on lines coincident with the longitudinal slits in the paper, and means for producing completed bags from each slitted section of the tube.

1,631,453. VARIABLE CONDENSER. RALPH LEONARD ASPDEN, Chorley, England. Filed May 29, 1926, Serial No. 112,546, and in Great Britain May 7, 1925. 2 Claims. (Cl. 175—41.5.)

1. In the combination of two variable condensers arranged in coaxial alignment, a shaft on which said condensers are mounted, the stationary and movable plates of one condenser being each provided with a plurality of similar tongues and slots whereby the capacity is varied from minimum to maximum a plurality of times for a rotation of 180°, the other condenser being provided with fixed and movable plates providing a change from minimum to maximum for a rotation of 180°, and means on said shaft connecting both sets of movable plates for rotating one from the other.



1,631,454. LIQUID-DISPENSING APPARATUS. JOHN J. BAMBACH and MARTIN W. COLLINS, Wilkes-Barre, Pa. Filed July 6, 1926. Serial No. 120,634. 4 Claims. (Cl. 221—100.)

1. In combination with a liquid dispensing apparatus including a liquid storage tank, a pipe line connected with said storage tank at one end and a dispensing hose at the other end, a flow meter in said pipe line adjacent said hose, a foot valve for said pipe line located within said tank, and a pump connected in said pipe line, of valve means connected in the high point of said pipe line, said valve means automatically opening to vent said pipe line when the pump is in operation and closing to prevent admission of air when the pump is idle, whereby said pipe line is maintained filled with liquid to the high point in the line.

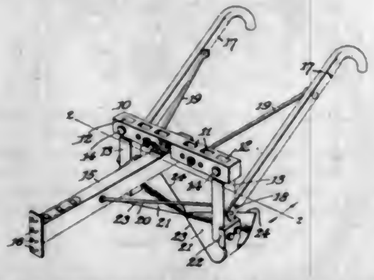
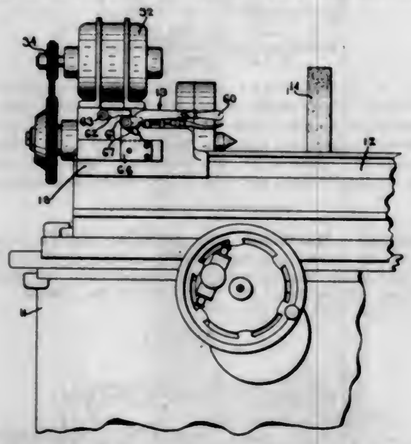
1,631,455. TINE FOR HAYMAKING AND LIKE MACHINERY. JOSEPH BAMFORD and CYRIL JOSEPH BAMFORD, Uttoxeter, England. Filed Sept. 10, 1925, Serial No. 55,566, and in Great Britain Oct. 7, 1924. 5 Claims. (Cl. 56—400.)



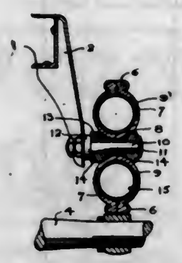
1. A tine for the rotary tine carrying members of haymaking and harvesting machines comprising a head formed as an open coil for receiving a securing bolt, and a shank for engaging in the crop, said shank having, intermediate its ends, a plurality of projecting portions for the purpose of taking hold of the crop more effectually.

1,631,456. VALVED PIPE COUPLING. VICTOR BARDIN, St.-Denis, France. Filed Feb. 3, 1925, Serial No. 6,647, and in France Feb. 6, 1924. 1 Claim. (Cl. 152—11.5.)



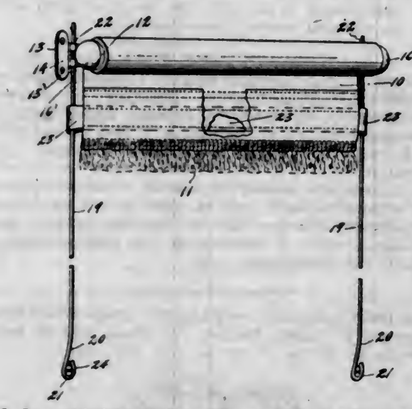
A valved pipe-coupling comprising a valve body, a threaded needle in said valve body, a seat provided on the valve body for said needle, a passage formed in said needle, lateral openings at the bottom of said passage, a central opening at the top of same, a polygonal head formed on the top of needle, an internal connection screwed on the valve body, an external connection surrounding said internal connection, a threaded sleeve inserted between the internal and external connections, a plug screwed in said sleeve, a chamber provided in same and communicating with the exterior, a polygonal slide fitting on the polygonal head of the needle and resting on the internal connection inside the chamber, holes in the walls of the slide, a shaft fitting inside the slide above the polygonal head and pressing through the plug, a spring disposed round said shaft and urging the slide downwards, and an external knob actuating the shaft.

1,631,457. PEANUT AND POTATO DIGGER. BELA K. BASHO, New York, N. Y. Filed July 26, 1924. Serial No. 728,290. 4 Claims. (Cl. 55—106.)



1. In a peanut and potato digger, a frame comprising a cross beam and a draft beam secured thereto, posts bolted to said cross beam, cutting blades carried on the posts, said blades having inwardly and backwardly directed cutting edges with the inner ends touching or overlapping to effect a complete cross cut, said blades also being turned upwardly at the rear edges, the same being inclined backwardly and outwardly from the free ends of the blades for the purpose specified, and means for guiding the digger.

1,631,458. MACHINE-TOOL WORK SUPPORTING AND DRIVING MECHANISM. ALBERT G. BELDEN, Worcester, Mass., assignor to Norton Company, Worcester, Mass., a Corporation of Massachusetts. Filed Feb. 19, 1924. Serial No. 693,890. 7 Claims. (Cl. 192—18.)

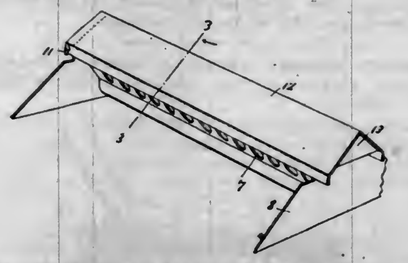


7. A headstock for a machine tool comprising a work-driving member, a shaft mounted on the headstock and connected to rotate said member, a positively driven pulley rotatably mounted on the shaft, a friction clutch having one member rotatable with the pulley and a second member slidably connected with the shaft, a friction plate fixed to said second clutch member, a yoke operably connected with the slidable clutch member to operate the clutch and having a portion arranged to engage the friction plate when the clutch members are disengaged, a spring tending to hold the clutch members in engagement and manually operable means to move the yoke against the tension of the spring.

1,631,459. SHOCK ABSORBER. ARTHUR BENNETT, Chilliwack Township, British Columbia, Canada. Filed Sept. 22, 1925. Serial No. 57,938. 2 Claims. (Cl. 267—35.)

1. A shock absorber comprising a tire detachably carried in a rim and having a tread upon its inner periphery, means for supporting the rim upon a wheel axle, and means for supporting a vehicle frame upon the tire tread, said supporting means characterized by a pin having a two member bushing adapted to engage the tread of the tire.

1,631,460. WINDOW-SHADE GUIDE. JAMES R. BINFORD, Dallas, Tex. Filed May 14, 1926. Serial No. 109,008. 3 Claims. (Cl. 156—26.)



1. In a window shade guide, a shade bracket having an outwardly directed loop upon its shank, and a vertical guide rod having a plurality of projections at its upper portion engaging said loop and bent upon itself to form a securing eye at its lower end.

1,631,461. COMMUTATOR AND METHOD OF MAKING SAME. LE BONSIEUR, Elyria, Ohio, assignor to The General Phonograph Manufacturing Co., Elyria, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Dec. 1, 1924. Serial No. 753,411. 3 Claims. (Cl. 171—321.)

1. The method of making a commutator comprising a plurality of segments, consisting of cutting from sheet metal a piece having radially extending arms joined at their inner ends, then bending the arms so as to approximately define a cylindrical cup, then in placing a plastic congealable insulating compound within the substantially cup-shaped article thereby produced and permitting a portion of the compound to flow between the arms to form a band surrounding the arms but united thereto, and to the rest of the compound within the arms, permitting the compound to congeal, and subsequently removing the portion of the sheet metal joining the inner ends of the arms.

In a feeder of the character described, a feed trough open at its top, a pair of apertured ears extending from one end of the feed trough in spaced parallel relation, a lid of substantial V-shaped cross section having parallel spaced flange edges, said apertured ears being received between the flange edges, and a pin piercing apertures in the flange edges and the apertures of the ears to hingedly mount the lid on the trough so that it may be disposed over the trough or in extension thereof in an open position at which time it may be utilized as a water trough, the lid being maintained in said horizontal open position by the abutment of one end of the said lid against the adjacent end of said trough.

1,631,463. PROCESS OF SMOKING MEAT. MAX BRITT, Chicago, Ill., assignor to Swift & Company, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed May 5, 1926. Serial No. 106,854. 1 Claim. (Cl. 99—9.)

The process of curing meat which consists in wrapping an individual sling around each piece of the same to cover the edges thereof and leaving the major portions of its surface exposed, suspending the sling from a hanger so that the weight of the meat causes pressure of the sling against the butt and side edges of the meat and then subjecting the same to the action of heat and smoke.

1,631,464. SEALING MEANS. WINFRED M. BROOKS, West Orange, N. J. Filed Nov. 11, 1925. Serial No. 68,260. 2 Claims. (Cl. 292—308.)

1. Sealing means including: a sealing member provided with a duct and having two sets of oppositely tapering cut-away portions at an angle to the lengthwise axis of the duct, said cut-away portions forming two substantially parallel spaced-apart bending lines, and an element to be sealed insertable lengthwise in said duct before bending the member, extending across the plane of said bending lines and sealed by bending the member, and therewith the element to be sealed, on both bending lines to thereby cause the taper faces of each set of cut-away portions to close up against each other and the member to assume the shape of an open rectangle.

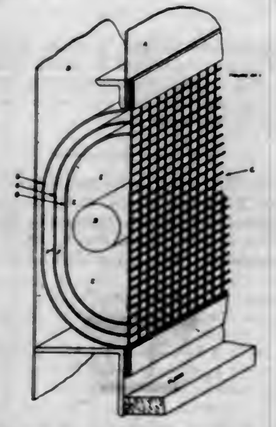
1,631,465. BROOM. WINFRED A. BROWN, Minneapolis, Minn. Filed Oct. 8, 1925. Serial No. 61,286. 1 Claim. (Cl. 306—3.)

In a broom, a brush having a horizontally elongated back, an elongated plate resting on the upper side and extending lengthwise of said back, said plate having an inclined handle near one end and an opening in said one end, said plate being of a length slightly more than one-half that of the brush back and having a longitudinal slot from its inner end to the handle, a fastener passing through said slot and engaged with the medial portion of the back to pivotally and longitudinally slidably mount the plate for adjustment lengthwise of the back of the brush, said back having openings spaced longitudinally from opposite sides of the fastener, and a second fastener passing through the first named opening for selective reception in the spaced openings to permit securing of the handle at either end or the center of the back whereby one end of the brush will project a considerable distance beyond the point of connection of the handle with the plates.

1,631,466. ADJUSTABLE ECCENTRIC. PASQUALE BUFFARDI, Irvington, N. J., assignor to Edmund W. Zeh, Newark, N. J. Filed Sept. 24, 1924. Serial No. 739,504. 5 Claims. (Cl. 74—1.)

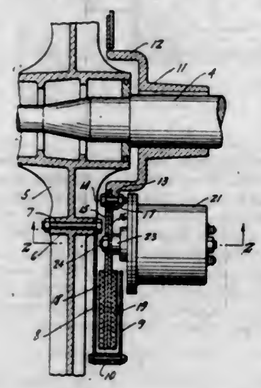
1. A shaft having spaced journals and an eccentric portion between said journals, a pitman on said eccentric portion, an eccentric bushing between said eccentric portion and pitman and capable of movement both longitudinally and rotatably with respect to said parts, cooperating means at one end of said eccentric portion and on said bushing adapted to engage and disengage upon longitudinal movement of said bushing in opposite directions to hold and release said bushing respectively against and for rotation on said eccentric portion, and means at the other end of the eccentric portion for releasably holding the bushing against longitudinal disengagement of the said cooperating means at the first-mentioned end of the eccentric portion and bushing.

1,631,467. SMOKER'S ARTICLE. EDWIN CALDWELL, New York, N. Y. Filed Jan. 14, 1924. Serial No. 686,039. 6 Claims. (Cl. 131—12.)



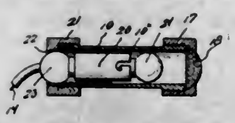
6. A pipe support comprising a metal stamping upon which the bottom of a pipe bowl may rest and being flanged upon three sides to support the bowl in a substantially upright position, said stamping having opposite edges at one end turned over to form guiding means, and also having in its bottom a struck up strap, a blade insertable into the guide means and having its inner end narrowed to fit under said strap when the blade is in the guide means, the narrowed end of the blade serving when the blade is removed from the stamping, as a pick for removing coke balls from the bottom of the bowl cavity of a pipe, the other end of the blade supporting the pipe stem when attached to the stamping and being shaped to fit and ream the bowl cavity of a pipe for removing encrustations therefrom.

1,631,468. CELLULOSE-ACETATE COMPOSITION OF LOW INFLAMMABILITY. STEWART J. CARROLL, Rochester, N. Y., assignor to Eastman Kodak Company, Rochester, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Apr. 27, 1925. Serial No. 26,309. 9 Claims. (Cl. 134—79.)



1. An effective neutral composition of matter comprising cellulose acetate, and at least one of the bromnucleo-substitution products of the phenols and their homologues which is substantially free form uncombined bromine and hydrobromic acid.

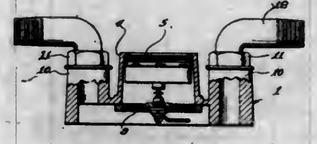
1,631,469. HEATING APPARATUS FOR VEHICLES. EUGENE P. CHASE, Altoona, Pa. Filed Sept. 5, 1925. Serial No. 54,744. 7 Claims. (Cl. 257—133.)



2. In a heating apparatus for vehicles, the combination of a vehicle wall; a heating member adjacent to the wall; means forming a plurality of air circulating and heat insulating passages between the member and the wall, said passages being open to the vehicle above and below the member; and means forming a dead air space between the outer passage and the wall.

1,631,470. VEHICLE BRAKE. HAMILTON C. CHASE, Los Angeles, Calif., assignor of one-half to Tobias Weber, Los Angeles, Calif. Filed Mar. 22, 1926, Serial No. 96,501. Renewed Apr. 9, 1927. 5 Claims. (Cl. 188—163.)

1. A brake comprising a rotatable element, a disk member having spaced plates, a working disk member comprising a pair of plates arranged side by side and mounted for being spread laterally so as to expand said working member and frictionally engage the plates of the other member, one of said members being secured to said element so as to be rotated therewith and the other being held against rotation, a plunger secured to one of the plates of said working member, and means for moving said plunger secured to the other plate of said working member providing a motor whereby said working member may be spread.



1,631,471. AUTOMOBILE SIGNAL. JOHN T. CHRISTIAN, Bremerton, Wash. Filed Mar. 20, 1925. Serial No. 16,997. 1 Claim. (Cl. 177—329.)

A device of the class described including a cylinder having one end thereof enlarged and externally threaded, an insulating sleeve disposed in said cylinder and having an enlarged end disposed in said enlargement of the cylinder to prevent longitudinal movement in one direction, said insulating sleeve adapted to receive a socket, and a cap threadedly engaged on the enlargement of the cylinder and adapted to engage a socket in the insulating sleeve and to engage the outer edge of the enlarged portion of the insulating sleeve to hold it in place in the cylinder.

A meter top comprising a body portion provided at its outer extremities with an apertured flange adapted to receive bolts, unobstructed vertically extending tubular members serving as inlet and outlet, integral with said body portion and located centrally of the longitudinal extremities thereof, connecting elbows removably mounted at the upper extremities of said tubular members, an upwardly extending hollow index box provided with a transparent upper face between said tubular members, spaced apart therefrom and also integral with said body portion, said index box being provided on its under side with a plurality of threaded apertures, and a plate provided with corresponding apertures and adapted to receive screws for securing the same rigidly against the under side of said index box to enclose the mechanism within the same.

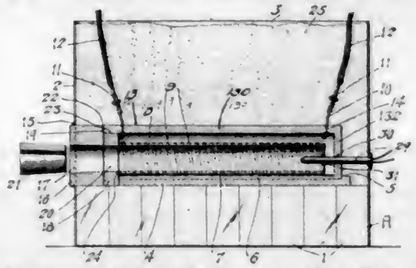
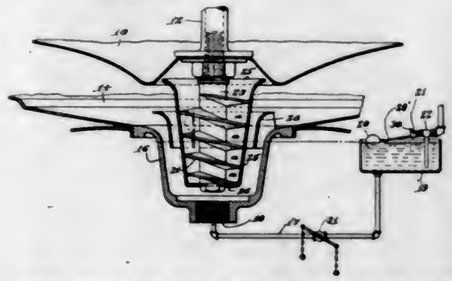
1,631,473. VISIBLE INDEX. WILLIAM CURTIS CLARK, San Francisco, Calif., assignor, by mesne assignments, to Acme Card System Company, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed Mar. 22, 1924. Serial No. 701,045. 2 Claims. (Cl. 129—16.)



1. In a visible index, the combination with a frame, of flexible metallic hangers having return-bent portions adapted to be detachably mounted thereon, master index cards detachably mounted by metallic hinges on the return-bent portions of the hanger, auxiliary sheets having holes adjacent one longitudinal edge also engaging the ends of the return-bent portions, said sheet being removable from said hangers without removing the master cards from the hangers nor the hangers from the frame.

1,631,474. MUFFLE FURNACE. EDWARD A. COLBY, Maplewood, FREDERICK MAEULEN, East Orange, and GEORGE L. VAN ALLEN, Newark, N. J., assignors to Baker & Company, Inc., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed July 12, 1926. Serial No. 121,792. 3 Claims. (Cl. 219—36.)



1. In a muffle furnace, the combination of a casing to receive a muffle and having an opening at its top to receive granular heat insulating material and an opening in one side, a muffle housing including a base having an end wall formed with a charging opening accessible through said side opening of the casing, a closure for said charging opening, and a muffle cover having an open bottom with its edges removably resting upon said base and one end open the edges of which separably abut said end wall of said base, a muffle removably mounted upon said base and having one open end the edges of which abut said end wall of said base around said charging opening, the top, sides and other end of said muffle being in spaced relation to said cover to form a closed air heat insulating space between the muffle and said cover, an electric heating coil surrounding said muffle, and granular heat insulating material in said casing surrounding said muffle housing, said muffle housing protecting said muffle against the weight of said granular insulating material.

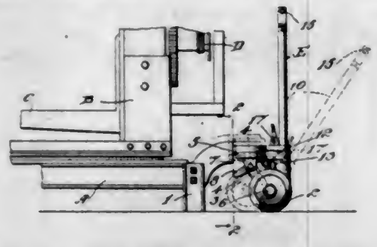
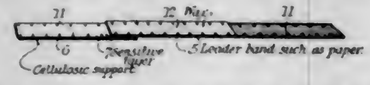
1,631,475. CONTROL MEANS FOR REGULATING THE OUTPUT OF ATOMIZERS AND THE LIKE. FRANK B. COMINS, Newton, Mass., assignor to American Moistening Company, Boston, Mass., a Corporation of Maine. Filed Mar. 6, 1924. Serial No. 697,365. 1 Claim. (Cl. 103—89.)



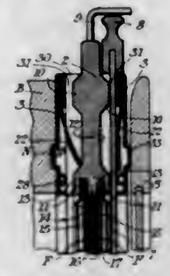
Means for lifting liquid from a supply to the rotor of a humidifier or the like, comprising a rotatable shaft having a helical worm thread and a housing therefor, having an opening below the level of the supply, for admission of liquid to the space between the convolutions; said opening being of such small area and so arranged that under the working head it does not admit as much water as the worm can lift, so that a variation of head of the water to which it is exposed makes material variation in the amount of water that flows through the worm, thus regulating the output of the humidifier.

1,631,476. PHOTOGRAPHIC FILM-DEVELOPING MACHINE. CHARLES DE MOOS, Fort Lee, N. J., assignor to Eastman Kodak Company, Rochester, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed June 9, 1922. Serial No. 567,146. 21 Claims. (Cl. 95—94.)



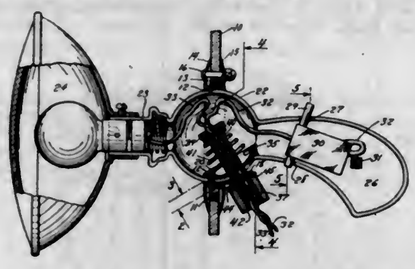
1. In a film-treating machine, the combination with means for moving a film band through a series of treatment baths, of means for automatically stopping the movement of a portion of the film band in advance of stopping the movement of the entire film.

1,631,477. COLLAPSIBLE HANDLE FOR PORTABLE ELEVATORS. FRANK L. EIDMANN, North Bergen, N. J., assignor to Henry S. Germond, jr., Bayonne, N. J. Filed Jan. 2, 1924. Serial No. 683,917. 14 Claims. (Cl. 280—46.)



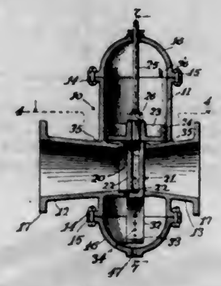
1. The combination with a wheeled truck having certain of the wheels swiveled on a vertical axis for steering the truck, of a telescoping multi-part pull handle having one part thereof pivotally connected to said wheels to swing in a vertical plane, the parts of said handle constructed to releasably interlock and being capable of telescoping movement when released from interlocking relation, whereby the handle may be swung about its pivot to the floor, collapsed, and swung beneath the truck by rotation of said wheels on said swivel.

1,631,478. MOTION-PICTURE-FILM STRIP. PAUL FAVOUR, Rochester, N. Y., assignor to Eastman Kodak Company, Rochester, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Aug. 23, 1926. Serial No. 130,805. 8 Claims. (Cl. 95—9.)



1. A motion picture film strip including a band of sensitized material and a protective band, forming a continuation thereof and having a deposit of a soft, solid lubricant upon a small portion only of one surface of the protective band.

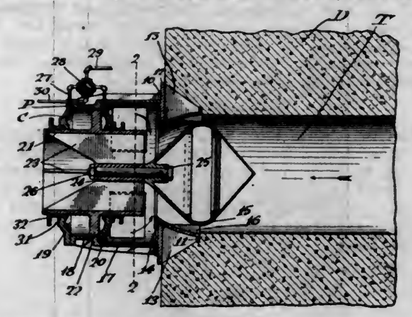
1,631,479. CUT-FILM HOLDER. WILLIAM F. FOLMER, Rochester, N. Y., assignor to Eastman Kodak Company, Rochester, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed July 28, 1923. Serial No. 654,489. 8 Claims. (Cl. 95—67.)



1. In a holder for photographic film, the combination with a frame including a top bar, of a plate spaced from the top bar throughout a portion of its length leaving a slot therebetween, a dark slide adapted to pass into the slot, a spring light-excluding member adapted to normally lie across the slot when the dark slide is removed from the camera, said spring light-excluding member being carried by the plate.

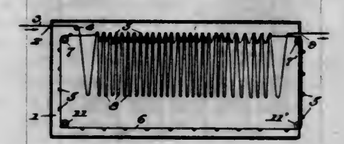
1,631,480. DIRIGIBLE LIGHT MOUNTING. ROBERT R. FREUND, Denver, Colo. Filed June 6, 1925. Serial No. 35,454. 7 Claims. (Cl. 240—61.)

1. In dirigible light mountings, the combination of a ball seating rim of approximately spherical curvature, a ball mounted therein and thereby as a sole bearing support for said ball, lamp supporting means associated with said ball, the rear of said rim having a bifurcated ear, forming a slot open at its outer end, and said ball having an interior chamber with a peripherally opening elongated slot, for registration with the slot of said ear, a radial rod longitudinally movable through said slots, a retaining member within said ball and associated with said rod to be held thereby in engagement with the inner peripheral face of said ball, and external means coacting with said ear and the outer end of said rod for radially adjusting said rod.



1,631,481. WATER-SHUT-OFF VALVE. FREDERICK GUELLER, Alhambra, Calif. Filed Mar. 10, 1925. Serial No. 14,465. 6 Claims. (Cl. 137—139.)

1. A valve comprising a cylindrical body, closures for the top and bottom of said body, a pair of aligned conduits extending into said body having their adjacent ends disposed in spaced relation therein, webs connecting the sides of the conduits to the sides of the body and cooperating with the conduits in defining an upper piston cylinder and a lower chamber in said body, a closure adapted to be disposed between the adjacent ends of said conduits for preventing the passage of fluid therethrough, a piston reciprocable in said piston cylinder and secured directly to the closure, and means for admitting fluid pressure to the piston cylinder upon either side of the piston so as to move the piston and closure.



1,631,482. WATER-DISCHARGE VALVE. FREDERICK GUELLER, Alhambra, Calif., assignor to Joshua Hendy Iron Works, Sunnyvale, Calif., a Corporation of California. Filed Dec. 23, 1925. Serial No. 77,391. 12 Claims. (Cl. 137—139.)

1. A valve comprising an outer stationary annular seat, an inner movable closure adapted to seat thereon, a tubular member behind the closure through which fluid passes after passing the closure when the closure is open, said tubular member being secured to said closure, and means for seating and unseating the closure, there being a passage whereby air may enter the tubular member and mix with the liquid therein as it passes therethrough so as to destroy partial vacuums which may tend to form in the tubular member.

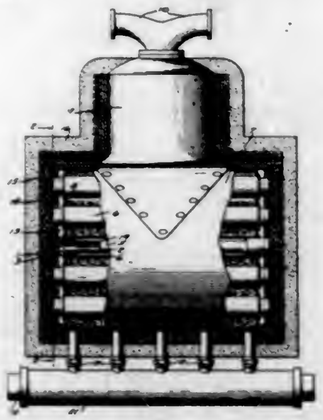
1,631,483. DRYING APPARATUS. FRANCIS HEAD, New York, N. Y. Filed Jan. 7, 1926. Serial No. 79,758. 9 Claims. (Cl. 34—12.)

1. In a drying apparatus, in combination, a drying chamber; an endless, flexible stick carrier; drying sticks fixed thereto; means for giving a continuous travelling motion to the carrier; and means for nesting the sticks in an intermediate portion of the stick carrier, and for moving them continuously at a slow speed while so nested.



1,631,484. ELECTRIC HEATER. WALTER E. HUDSON, Amagansett, N. Y., assignor to Hudson Heating Systems, Inc., New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Mar. 30, 1925. Serial No. 19,202. 17 Claims. (Cl. 219—20.)

1. In an electrical system for heating buildings and the like the combination of a suitable heat conveying medium, an electrical heating unit in operative relation with said medium and adapted to transfer heat thereto, which said unit comprises a plurality of separate current resistors, a current supply circuit of substantially constant voltage, means responsive to variations in temperature of said medium for connecting said resistors in parallel or in series with said supply circuit and independent means for controlling current in said supply circuit responsive to variations in temperature of the atmosphere of the space being heated.

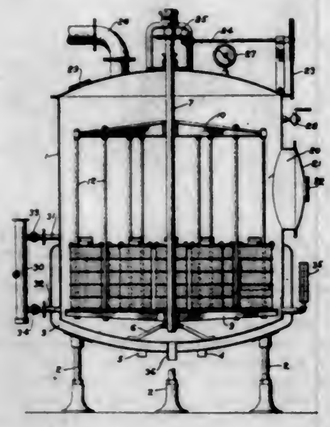
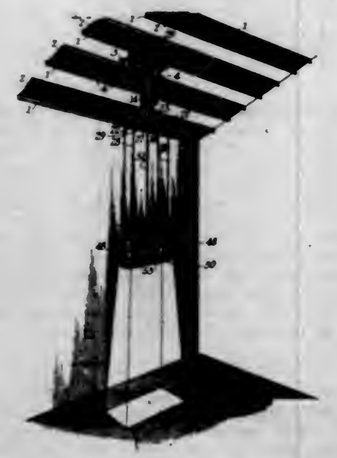
1,631,485. ELECTRIC-HEATING SYSTEM. WALTER E. HUDSON, Amagansett, N. Y., assignor to Hudson Heating Systems, Inc., New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Original application filed Mar. 5, 1924, Serial No. 697,030. Divided and this application filed Mar. 30, 1925. Serial No. 19,203. 7 Claims. (Cl. 219—38.)



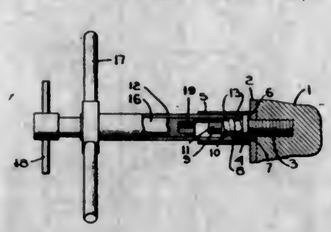
1. The combination, with a tubular boiler, of a plurality of electric heating elements adapted to be inserted in the tubes of such boiler, each of said heating elements being composed of a spool having heads adapted to fit closely into a boiler tube, an intermediate portion of less diameter on which a coil of resistance wire is wound, and an electrically insulating coating mass of refractory material in which said coil is embedded, the exterior diameter of said spool coating being less than the diameter of the spool heads, whereby closed annular spaces are found between said spool and its containing tube in which spaces the air heated by contact with the spool may circulate.

1,631,486. COFFEEPOT. LEON W. HYDE, Hillsboro, Oreg. Filed Oct. 28, 1925. Serial No. 65,324. 4 Claims. (Cl. 53—3.)



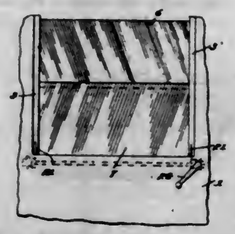
1. A coffee pot having, in combination, a container; a closure for hermetically sealing said container; a sound-producing means; and means for actuating said sound producer when the temperature of liquid in said container reaches a predetermined height.

1,631,487. PROCESS FOR MAKING GLACÉ FRUIT. ERNEST ENGLER JACOBS, San Francisco, Calif., assignor to Lyons' California Glacé Fruit Company, San Francisco, Calif., a Corporation of California. Filed July 15, 1925. Serial No. 43,666. 3 Claims. (Cl. 99—16.)



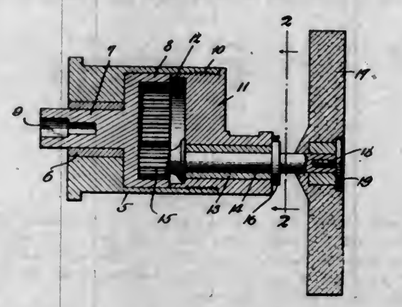
1. A process of preparing glacé fruit which comprises the steps of preparing the fruit, blanching the fruit in water to render it tender, permitting the fruit to remain submerged in cold syrup for a short period of time to remove the water therefrom and treat the fruit so that the cells will not become disrupted, then cooking the fruit in the syrup solution while under vacuum and in a manner saturating the fruit with the syrup, and thereafter permitting the fruit to stand in the solution until equilibrium take place between the syrup in the fruit and the syrup surrounding the fruit.

1,631,488. ILLUMINATING APPARATUS. LOYD A. JONES, Rochester, N. Y., assignor to Eastman Kodak Company, Rochester, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Dec. 19, 1924. Serial No. 757,072. 14 Claims. (Cl. 240—67.)



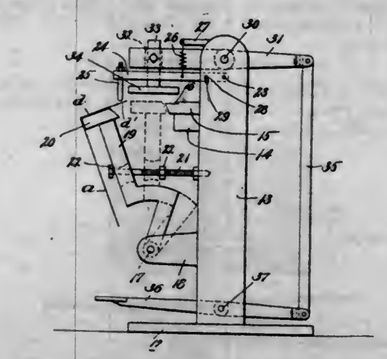
1. Illuminating apparatus comprising an elevated support, a lamp carriage, a plurality of lines extending from separated points on said lamp carriage to said support whereby said lamp carriage is suspended, independent means for adjusting said lines selectively to vary the inclination of the lamp carriage, and means for connecting said adjusting means whereby the lamp carriage as a whole may be adjusted vertically said last named means being operative to disconnect the adjusting means.

1,631,489. TOOL FOR INSERTING OR REMOVING SCREWS. JOHN KIEWICZ, Boston, Mass., assignor to The Reece Button Hole Machine Company, Boston, Mass., a Corporation of Maine. Filed Nov. 18, 1924. Serial No. 750,526. 3 Claims. (Cl. 81—53.)



1. A tool for removing or inserting a screw having a screw-threaded shank and a head, said head having thereon a coarse and a fine screw thread, the coarse screw thread being on a portion of larger diameter than the fine screw thread, said tool comprising a tubular member having on one end interior screw threads to engage the coarse screw threads of the screw head and provided at the other end with a handle, and a locking member telescoping within the tubular member and provided at one end with interior screw threads adapted to engage the finer screw threads of the screw head, said end of the locking member being larger than the screw-threaded portion of the bore of the tubular member, whereby when both the tubular member and the locking member have been screwed tightly to the head the tubular member is locked to the head and the screw can be manipulated by manipulating the tubular member.

1,631,490. WINDOW OPERATOR. FRANK G. KITCHIN, Anne Arundel County, Md. Filed Jan. 10, 1927. Serial No. 160,044. 15 Claims. (Cl. 268—132.)

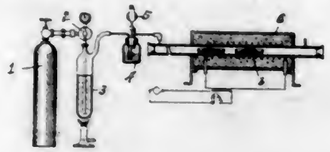


1. In a window construction, upper and lower transparent panels, adapted to lie side by side when the window is open, operating means for raising said panels, said panels being provided with interengageable means at the sides, coacting when the lower edge of the upper panel is about to assume an inactive position with respect to said operating means, to draw said lower panel up to a point at which said lower panel becomes active with respect to said operating means, said operating means engaging the lateral edges of said upper panel but inactive toward said lower panel in the initial side by side position of said panels, and engaging the lateral edges of the lower panel when the two panels are inter-engaged.

1,631,491. KNIFE-GRINDING ATTACHMENT FOR MEAT-GRINDING MACHINES. GEORGE S. KLEIN, Granger, Wash. Filed Mar. 27, 1926. Serial No. 98,040. 1 Claim. (Cl. 51—241.)

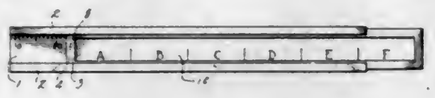
In a device of the character described, a casing having internal threads, a ring gear positioned within the casing and embodying a shaft, said shaft extending through the casing and having a socket to be positioned over the shaft of a meat grinding machine, a bearing member having external threads to be fitted within the casing to engage the internal threads and connect the bearing member and casing, a circular flange forming a part of the bearing member and contacting with one edge of the ring gear to hold the same against movement longitudinally of the casing, a shaft extending into the bearing member and having a pinion meshing with the ring gear, and a grinding stone mounted on the shaft.

1,631,492. APPLIANCE FOR MAKING SET-UP BOXES. ELIE W. LABOMBARDE, Nashua, N. H. Filed June 15, 1926. Serial No. 116,223. 7 Claims. (Cl. 93—39.)



1. Mechanism of the character described, comprising a divided support for a box end, one of the members of said support being movable relatively to the other, and a presser movable toward and from the surface of said support.

1,631,493. REFRACTORY METAL PRODUCT AND PROCESS OF MAKING SAME. CLEMENS A. LAISE, Toledo, Ohio, assignor to The Electron Relay Company, Toledo, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Apr. 18, 1924. Serial No. 707,325. 5 Claims. (Cl. 176—132.)



1. A composition of matter composed of tungsten, a refractory nitride, and alkali bronzes of tungsten.

5. The herein described method consisting in mechanically working metallic bars of tungsten or tungsten alloys containing refractory nitrides at yellow and red heats with intermediate annealings, thereby reducing size of said bars by hammering and drawing processes to about 40 mil. diameter; then heating the resultant wire in an atmosphere containing oxygen so as to form a compact coating of refractory oxide on same and further annealing said coated wire so as to produce a ductilizing effect on the metallic core; then dissolving the oxide coating in an alkaline solution and drawing the wire down to finer sizes using hot circulating lubricants on the wire during the drawing operation.

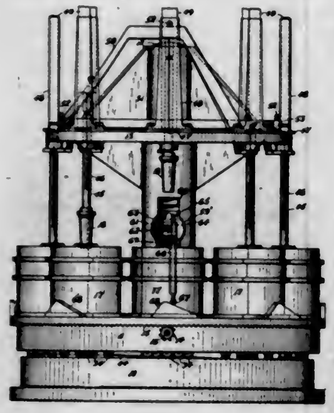
1,631,494. SCALE PLATE FOR TYPEWRITING MACHINES. WILLIAM EDWARD LANE, St. Louis, Mo., assignor to Underwood Typewriter Company, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed June 10, 1925. Serial No. 36,272. Renewed Apr. 30, 1927. 2 Claims. (Cl. 197—194.)



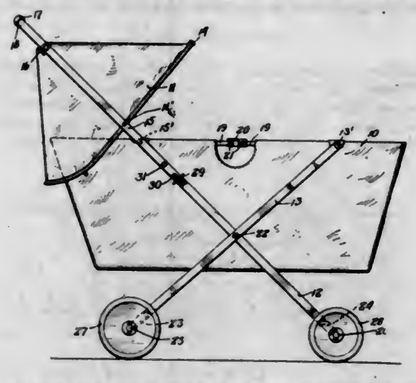
1. In a scale plate for typewriting machines, a flat metal plate adaptable for mounting and demounting in and from retaining means formed in a main typewriter scale, a shallow, rectilinear, four-walled recess formed in one face of said plate, the said recess being adapted to receive a characterized paper inlay adhesively secured to its floor.

1,631,495. BOILER-TUBE-CUTTING DEVICE. FRANK W. LARC, Panuco, Mexico. Filed July 13, 1925. Serial No. 43,390. 2 Claims. (Cl. 81—195.)

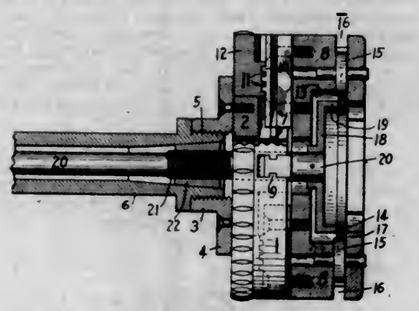
1. A cutting tool of the class described, including a mandrel having a longitudinally extending bore and on one end provided with radially extending recesses, said bore of the mandrel being provided with longitudinally extending pockets, springs supported in the pockets, knives located in the recesses, a collar having radially extending recesses registering with the first mentioned radially extending recesses, said collar being provided with a bore registering with the bore of the mandrel, said knives being provided with shoulders extending into the second mentioned recesses, said springs having their extremities engaging the knives, and means slidable through the bore for projecting the knives.

1,631,496. METHOD AND APPARATUS FOR FORMING HOLLOW WARE. HARRY LUNDGREN, Oakland, Calif., assignor to Fulcher Pulp Bottle Company, Oakland, Calif., a Corporation of California. Filed Mar. 16, 1921, Serial No. 452,814. Renewed Nov. 1, 1926. 20 Claims. (Cl. 92—64.)

16. A machine for producing containers from paper pulp comprising vertically movable cores adapted to be projected into said molds, means for simultaneously and intermittently creating pressure between the sections of the mold and the core as the said mold and core travel, means for partially rotating the core and the container being formed theron between intervals of pressure exerted by the mold sections, means for stretching the wall of the container circumferentially at the conclusion of the pressure forming operations of the mold, and means for automatically withdrawing the core from the mold.



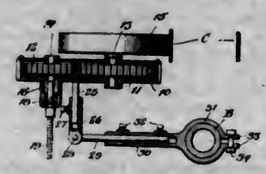
1,631,497. DENTAL X-RAY-FILM PACKAGE. HARRY I. MARLER, New York, N. Y., assignor to Eastman Kodak Company, Rochester, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Sept. 20, 1923. Serial No. 663,929. 2 Claims. (Cl. 250—34.)



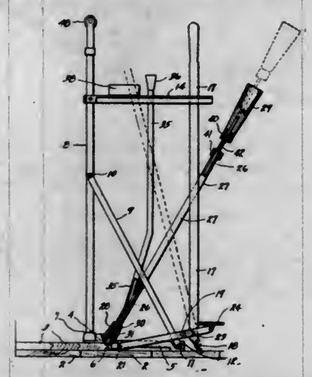
1. A dental X-ray package comprising a sheet of sensitive material, protective sheets on opposite sides thereof and an edge beading comprising a soft rubber band, said band being under tension and embracing and contacting the edges of the said sheets.

1,631,498. COLLAPSIBLE BABY CARRIAGE. ABRAHAM MELNIKER and SAUL CALMANSON, Brooklyn, N. Y. Filed Dec. 9, 1925. Serial No. 74,244. 4 Claims. (Cl. 280—41.)

1. A collapsible carriage comprising a flexible hammock portion connected to rail members, said rail members having their adjacent ends pivotally connected to intermediate members having a substantially U-shaped cross section, leg members pivotally connected to said rail members and to each other, and axles provided with wheels connected to said leg members, the rear legs having awning supporting means pivotally connected thereto, and releasable clamping means adapted to rigidly connect said awning supporting means to said rear legs.



1,631,499. CHUCK. JOHN F. MORGAL, Springfield, Ohio. Filed July 13, 1922. Serial No. 574,793. 5 Claims. (Cl. 279—114.)



1. In a device of the character described, a supporting structure, compression members carried by said structure and having relatively small contact surfaces to engage the periphery of a split ring and compress the same, said members having parts to engage one of the lateral faces of said ring, an annular member arranged to engage the other face of said ring and clamp the same against said parts of said members, and means to actuate said annular member.

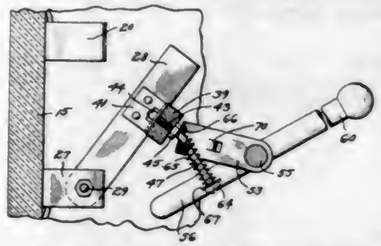
1,631,500. POWER-TRANSMISSION DEVICE. AARON S. NEWMARK, Brooklyn, N. Y. Filed Dec. 16, 1925. Serial No. 75,836. 5 Claims. (Cl. 74—21.)

1. A power transmission attachment of the class described, including a fan belt engaging pulley, a flexible shaft driven thereby, and means for supporting the pulley in operative relation to the fan belt, said means consisting of a member to which the pulley is journaled, an adjustable clamping bracket comprising hingedly connected arms each having telescopically associated sections, one of which sections is attached to said member and the other of which is designed to be clamped to a stationary element adjacent the fan belt.

1,631,501. FLOOR-LAYING MACHINE. HENRY HARRIS PAYZANT, Everett, Wash. Filed Oct. 5, 1925. Serial No. 60,445. 6 Claims. (Cl. 1—46.)

1. A device of the character described comprising a base plate provided with an abutment and having a nailing opening therethrough at the face of the abutment, a hand actuated jack lever provided at its lower end with means for holding contact with a floor or support, links pivotally connecting the jack lever at a point near its lower end with the base, a plunger tube mounted on the base coaxial with said nailing opening, a nail delivery tube opening into the first tube for the delivery of nails into the nailing opening, and a plunger reciprocally operable in the plunger tube for driving the nails.

1,631,502. SCREED SUPPORT. GEORGE F. PAWLING, Philadelphia, Pa. Filed Aug. 9, 1924. Serial No. 731,055. 4 Claims. (Cl. 72—101)



1. In a construction of the character stated suitably supported metal lath, a screed-support supported wholly by said lath which screed-support includes side members and a cross-piece to accommodate a screed, said side members each terminating in a tongue for interlocking connection with said metal lath, a screed supported upon said cross-piece and means for attaching said screed to said side pieces.

1,631,503. QUICK-BREAK SWITCH. JOSEPH H. PENGILLY, Los Angeles, Calif., assignor to Brown & Pengilly, Inc., Los Angeles, Calif., a Corporation of California. Filed June 29, 1925. Serial No. 40,230. 2 Claims. (Cl. 200—73.)

1. In a switch, the combination of: a base; jaws secured to said base; pivoted blades so placed as to close the circuits between said jaws; a cross bar secured to said blades; an operating member; a plunger rigidly secured to said cross bar and projecting outwardly therefrom; a stirrup hinged upon said operating means and having an opening through which said plunger projects; a compression coil spring surrounding said plunger and bearing at one end on said stirrup and at the other end on the outer end of said plunger; and means formed on said stirrup for limiting the compression of said spring.

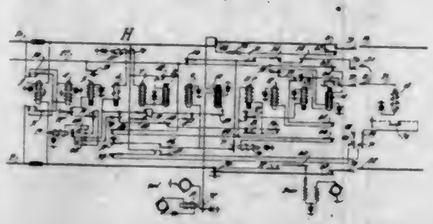
1,631,504. GOLF CLUB. CHARLES H. REDMAN, East Orange, N. J. Filed July 3, 1924. Serial No. 723,905. 3 Claims. (Cl. 273—77.)



1. A golf club embodying a head having substantially parallel upper and lower surfaces and a staff portion connected to said head at the end more remote from the handle portion at such an angle as to cause the staff to extend longitudinally over and completely across the said head when the same is in playing position, whereby the staff will intersect the line of vision of the player.

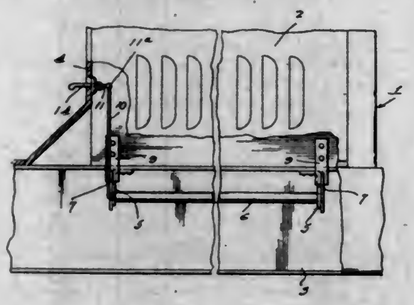
1,631,505. EDUCATIONAL GAME. IVALOU B. SAMIS, Los Angeles, Calif. Filed Oct. 20, 1926. Serial No. 142,861. 5 Claims. (Cl. 273—134.)

1. The combination with an educational game of the character described, a pair of dice, one of said dice having on its opposed surfaces numbers, the sum of which equals 7, the other of said dice having two of its surfaces colored, one of these surfaces being colored green and the other of said surfaces being colored red, said green surface having printed thereon in lieu of the number the word "Go," said red surface having printed thereon in lieu of the number the word "Stop," whereby a player may be instructed in the way of safety.

1,631,506. AUTOMATIC SWITCH. CLINTON R. SIPE, Chicago, Ill., assignor, by mesne assignments, to Automatic Electric Inc., Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Sept. 11, 1922, Serial No. 587,502. Renewed Oct. 30, 1926. 26 Claims. (Cl. 179—18.)

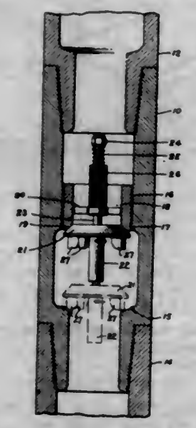
1. In a telephone system, a rotary connector, lines divided into groups and subgroups accessible to said connector, means for directively controlling the operation of said connector in a primary movement to select a group, means for continuing the primary movement to automatically select a sub-group in said group, directively controlled means for operating said connector in a secondary movement, means for preventing the operation of said last mentioned directively controlled means, means for automatically starting the secondary movement, and means for automatically continuing the secondary movement to select an idle line in said sub-group.

1,631,507. OUTLET RECEPTACLE. HAROLD E. SLADE, Newark, N. J., assignor to Beaver Machine & Tool Co., Inc., Newark, N. J. Filed Feb. 16, 1924. Serial No. 693,195. 1 Claim. (Cl. 173—330.)



A contact member for an outlet receptacle comprising a base member, a binding screw member formed at right angles to said base member, a contact member formed at right angles to said base member, a second contact member formed at right angles to said base member and at an obtuse angle to the first contact member; said first contact member being provided with a projecting member formed so as to be parallel to and coact with said second contact member; said second contact member being provided with a projecting member formed so as to be parallel to and coact with said first contact member; said coaction to produce a positive gripping action on both sides of an attachment plug cap blade when inserted between said contact members.

1,631,508. AUTOMOBILE HOOD LATCH. RICHARD WAGNER, Flint, Mich. Filed July 1, 1926. Serial No. 119,878. 2 Claims. (Cl. 292—214.)



1. A hood latch of the class described comprising a mounting bracket adapted to be mounted on the interior of one of the channel bars of an automobile chassis frame, said bracket including a bearing opening, a shaft mounted for oscillation in said bearing opening, a holding cam carried by said shaft, a keeper bracket adapted to be secured to the interior of one of the swingable sides of a hood, said bracket being provided with a slot for passage of a part of said cam, a rock shaft adapted to be mounted upon a part of the automobile, an operating connection between the rock shaft and the cam, and actuating means for the rock shaft.

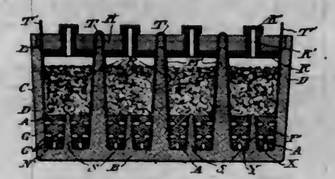
1,631,509. WELL-DRILL-PIPE FLOAT COUPLING. REUBEN C. BAKER, Coalinga, Calif., assignor to Baker Casing Shoe Company, a Corporation of California. Filed Dec. 1, 1926. Serial No. 151,862. 5 Claims. (Cl. 255—28.)

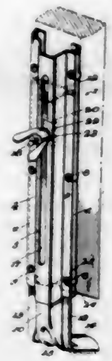


1. A drill pipe float coupling comprising a cylindrical coupling adapted to connect aligned sections of drill pipe, said coupling having a central chamber formed longitudinally therethrough, said chamber being reduced in diameter at one end of the coupling forming an annular shoulder within the coupling, a valve cage detachably secured within the chamber of the coupling, said valve cage having a valve seat, a valve guided by said cage for cooperation with the seat to control the passage of fluid through the coupling, said valve opening toward the reduced end of the chamber, and means on the valve adapted to engage with said shoulder to prevent the valve from interrupting the flow of liquid through the coupling in the event that the valve should become disengaged from the valve cage.

1,631,510. WIRE HOLDER. LEWIS B. BARRETT, Bangor, Me. Filed Dec. 4, 1925. Serial No. 73,191. 2 Claims. (Cl. 81—3.)

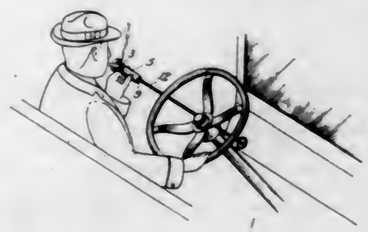
2. In a wire holder of the class described, an elongated member having a central bore, a rod slidable in said bore, and cooperating wire engaging and clamping means on corresponding ends of the member and rod respectively, said means embodying a cut away portion at the extreme end of the tubular member, cooperating wire receiving grooves communicating with said cut away portion and disposed in divergent relation with respect to each other, and a cut out portion in the corresponding end of the rod, the outer wall of which is constructed to provide a tooth to bite into the wire.

1,631,511. STORAGE BATTERY. RAYMOND C. BENNER, Bayside, N. Y., assignor to The Prest-O-Lite Company, Inc., a Corporation of New York. Filed Feb. 29, 1924. Serial No. 696,029. 16 Claims. (Cl. 136—15.)



1. In a storage battery, the combination of a container, a series of horizontally arranged cells in said container having walls separating them from one another, each cell having a partition therein dividing the lower portion thereof into electrode compartments communicating with one another through a space above such partition, electrodes substantially filling said compartments, conductors connecting the electrodes of opposite polarity in adjoining cells of the series and extending over the intervening walls, such conductors being at least partly imbedded in a substance resisting creepage of electrolyte, and electrolyte in said cells above the electrodes therein.

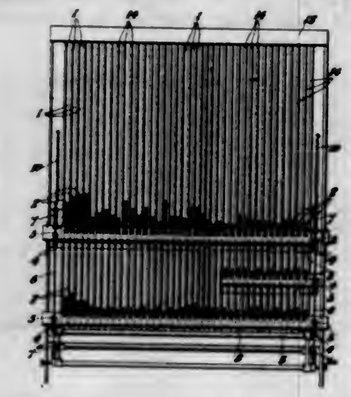
1,631,512. METHOD FOR PRODUCING RUSTLESS IRON AND STEEL. DAVID WERNER BERLIN, Rasunda, near Stockholm, Sweden, assignor to Aktiebolaget Ferrolegeringar, Stockholm, Sweden, a Joint Stock Company. Filed July 20, 1923, Serial No. 652,866, and in Sweden Aug. 28, 1922. 1 Claim. (Cl. 204—63.)



The method of producing rustless iron and steel, characterized by the feature that chromium or chromic alloy is formed into electrodes which are brought into an electrical furnace, against a bath of molten iron, whereby the electrodes melt after a time in the voltaic arc created in the passage between the electrodes and the bath or the resistance heat generated in the said passage.

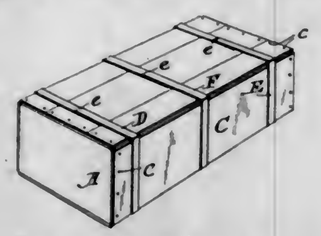
1,631,513. EXTENSION-LEG ATTACHMENT FOR LADDERS. FRED FORREST BERRY, Concord, N. H. Filed June 17, 1926. Serial No. 116,700. 5 Claims. (Cl. 228—63.)

1. An extension leg attachment for a ladder comprising a guide section attachable to the lower end portion of a leg of a ladder, an extension leg slidable in said guide section, and means for locking said extension leg to said guide section, said extension leg having an inclined foot portion, the inclination of said foot portion being in a downward and laterally outward direction and said foot portion being curved transversely substantially along the arc of a circle so that the lower surface thereof is concave.



1,631,514. CIGARETTE LIGHTER. DOROTHY SNOW BRUSH and ABBOTT P. BRUSH, Greenwich, Conn. Filed Nov. 26, 1926. Serial No. 150,674. 5 Claims. (Cl. 219—32.)

1. A cigarette lighter comprising an electric lighter head, a casing in which said head is freely movable, means for resiliently supporting said head in the casing with a sufficient range of movement and sufficiently yieldable within said range to prevent the breaking of a cigarette held against said head and means for completing the circuit to said head in all positions throughout its range of yieldability.



1,631,515. TYPESETTING APPARATUS. CHARLES ASHTON HENRY BULLOCK, London, England. Filed May 15, 1926, Serial No. 109,342, and in Great Britain June 25, 1925. 8 Claims. (Cl. 276—45.)

1. Typesetting apparatus comprising channels in each of which types of one designation are arranged one above the other, a sliding plate behind the lowest row of types and means for causing this plate to move forward at will and push the lowermost type in each channel to a position of accessibility for extraction, and including a frame subdivided laterally so as to provide tiers of channels one above the other.

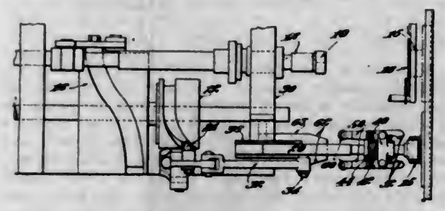
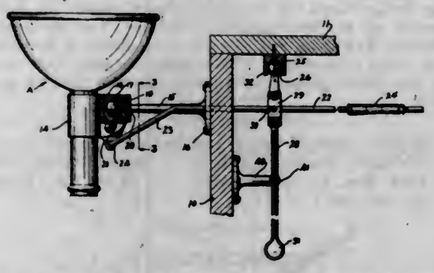
1,631,516. SHIPPING PACKAGE. SPENCER C. CARY, Brooklyn, N. Y., assignor to Cary Manufacturing Co., Brooklyn, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed May 6, 1919. Serial No. 295,245. 9 Claims. (Cl. 217—5.)



1. A shipping container comprising a pair of rectangular box ends, three box sides, secured to said ends, a fourth box side made of springy sheet material, applied upon said ends and cut away at its longitudinal edges, so as to be adapted to be forced inwardly intermediate said ends between the adjacent edges of the adjacent sides, and tensional binding means applied upon said box under heavy pressure and maintaining said fourth side in its distorted position.

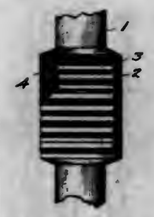
1,631,517. GRADER. WILLIAM F. CHRISTEL, Valders, Wis. Filed Jan. 10, 1925. Serial No. 1,676. 10 Claims. (Cl. 209—289.)



1. In grading apparatus for green peas and the like, the combination of a grading, screening reel, means for delivering peas thereto, and a reel arranged at right angles to the first-mentioned reel and disposed to receive the discharge through the reticulations of the first-mentioned reel for further grading.

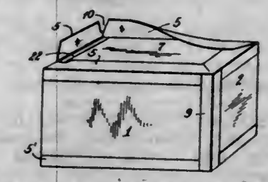
1,631,518. BOX-MAKING MACHINE. WILLIAM S. CLEAVES, Wollaston, Mass., assignor to Pneumatic Scale Corporation, Limited, Quincy, Mass., a Corporation of Massachusetts. Filed Sept. 29, 1925. Serial No. 59,359. 6 Claims. (Cl. 93—58.)

1. In a box making machine, in combination, a die for holding a box or cover, having an adhesive banding strip wrapped around the same and projecting beyond the edge of the cover, a plunger movable into the die to fold inwardly and adhesively affix the projecting portion of the banding strip to the interior of the cover, and upon which the box or cover is positioned when the same is withdrawn from the die, means for moving the plunger, and thumb hole cutting means cooperating with the box or cover while positioned on the plunger.



1,631,519. DIRIGIBLE LAMP FOR AUTOMOBILES. LUCIUS D. COPELAND, Los Angeles, Calif. Filed Jan. 22, 1925. Serial No. 4,010. 4 Claims. (Cl. 240—61.)

1. In combination with an automobile having a body and having a steering wheel, a spot light adjacent to one side of the body, means to mount said spot light for universal movement, means to control universal movement of said spot light, said means comprising a single rod extending across the body of the automobile, said rod having its axis coincident with one of the axes of the spot light, said rod being bent at each end, a wing on said spot light, said bent portion of the rod pivotally engaging said wing in an elongated bearing, the axis of said last mentioned engagement being at one side of the axis of said rod.



1,631,520. PACKING. JOHN L. CREEVY, New Orleans, La. Filed Mar. 29, 1923. Serial No. 628,610. 1 Claim. (Cl. 288—3.)

A packing of the character described, comprising a pair of spaced end rings surrounding a piston rod, a plurality of dished split rings arranged in spaced relation about said rod, each of said rings having a groove formed about the periphery thereof, resilient packing between the separate rings, and an annular binding element surrounding each of the rings and lying in the grooves thereof to hold the rings in position, the plane of compression of the binding element surrounding each of the dished rings, passing through the depressed face of the ring at the inner edge thereof, to cause the ring to be compressed against the resilient packing lying against the depressed face thereof.

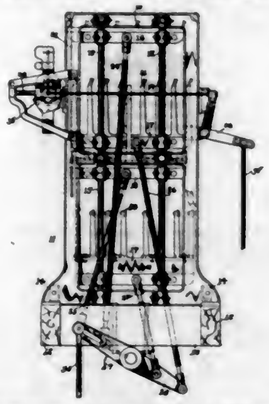
1,631,521. CORRUGATED-BOARD CONTAINER AND BLANK THEREFOR. CHARLES H. CROWELL, White Plains, N. Y. Filed Dec. 11, 1923. Serial No. 679,880. 5 Claims. (Cl. 229—23.)

5. A shipping container having a stepped edge with a projecting edge flange and a seam reinforcing tape secured to the inner face of the container and extending over the step and projecting flange into secured engagement with the outer face of the container.

1,631,522. CAP-FASTENING MEANS FOR PRESERVING JARS. LEWIS O. CULVER, West Pittston, Pa., assignor, by direct and mesne assignments, to Culver-Bevan Fruit Jar Company, Wilkes-Barre, Pa. Filed Aug. 25, 1925. Serial No. 52,283. 4 Claims. (Cl. 215—88.)



1. Cap fastening means for jars including lugs secured to the opposite sides of the jar having vertical grooves and inclined under faces; said lugs having front faces inclining toward the top of the jar; a yoke having T-shaped ends adapted to fit in the grooves and engage the inclined under faces; threaded means in the yoke, and means engaging therewith for holding the cap to the jar.

1,631,523. JACQUARD MECHANISM FOR LOOMS. EDWARD J. DACEY, Worcester, Mass., assignor to Crompton & Knowles Loom Works, Worcester, Mass., a Corporation of Massachusetts. Filed Sept. 2, 1924. Serial No. 735,258. 6 Claims. (Cl. 139—59.)

1. In a jacquard mechanism for a double fabric loom having duplicate sets of pile forming yarns, one set for each fabric, a pair of movable members for each set of yarns, means to move one pair of members in a direction opposite to that in which the other pair of members moves, each pair lifting all the yarns corresponding thereto on each movement of the jacquard whereby the weight of the yarns carried by the members moving in one direction is balanced by the weight of the yarns carried by the members moving in the opposite direction.

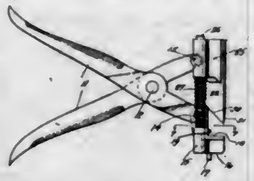
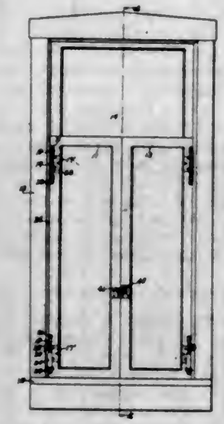
1,631,524. PROCESS FOR PHOTOGRAPHIC PRINTING IN COLORS. LOUIS DUFAY, Versailles, France. Filed Jan. 25, 1924. Serial No. 688,568. 1 Claim. (Cl. 101—211.)



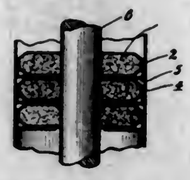
A process for color printing comprising the following steps, producing a plurality of color-separation negatives from a colored original, making a similar number of printing plates from these color-separation negatives, printing said printing plates with a fatty ink on a single support, powdering the printed impression after each impression with a water-soluble dye, said dye corresponding in color to the color filter used in making the printing plate, moistening a sheet of material adapted to receive a colored impression, pressing the material against the composite powdered impression whereby a transferred impression is obtained on the material reproducing the colored original.

1,631,525. CAP FOR PASTE TUBES. DELBERT L. GALLETT, Aberdeen, S. Dak. Filed June 3, 1926. Serial No. 113,536. 3 Claims. (Cl. 221—60.)



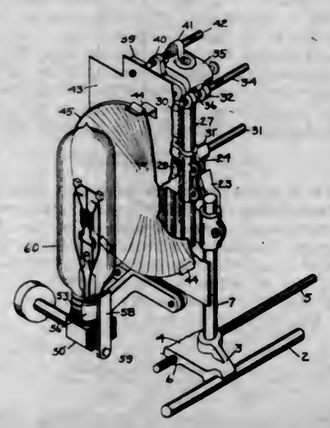
1. A cap for paste tubes comprising inner and outer sections assembled for rotative adjustment one with respect to the other and one being a fixed section, the sections having openings to be placed in and out of communication in the adjustment of the movable section, and an element passing through the sections and maintaining the sections adjustably assembled with each other and for connecting the assemblage to the neck of a paste tube.

1,631,526. MOLDING CUTTER. WILLIAM W. HARTMAN, Los Angeles, Calif. Filed Aug. 27, 1925. Serial No. 52,839. 1 Claim. (Cl. 144—117.)



A device of the character described comprising two relatively movable elements, the lower one of which carries upwardly extending guide posts and the upper one of which is slidable on said guide posts, means connected with the two elements for moving them toward each other, springs around the guide posts tending to move the elements away from each other, the lower element having a flat under face and having a downwardly projecting gauge shoulder thereon, and said lower element having an upwardly facing work supporting surface and a vertical work backing surface above the work supporting surface, a V-shaped notch cut into said lower element through its two last mentioned surfaces, said notch having cutter guiding faces that lie at predetermined angles to the work backing surface, an upward extension to said lower element carrying upward extensions of said cutter guiding faces and also upward extensions of said work backing surface, said cutter guiding faces meeting along a vertical line situated behind the work backing surfaces; a pair of shearing cutters carried by the upper element with their two outside faces directly in the planes of the two cutter guiding faces, the lower ends of said cutters being formed with diagonal cutting edges in their outer faces, said diagonal edges being arranged so that they tend to press the work back against the work backing surface when the cutters are urged toward the work carried by the first mentioned element; and the gauge shoulder having an end adapted to be placed in a corner and lying substantially in line with the line where one of said cutter guiding faces meets the work backing surface.

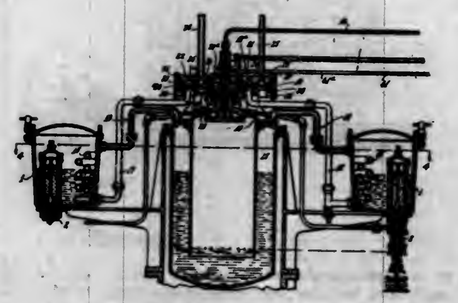
1,631,527. HINGE WITH AUTOMATIC LIFTING AND LOCKING MEANS. JOHN L. C. HEINZ, Chicago, Ill. Filed Mar. 17, 1926. Serial No. 95,183. 4 Claims. (Cl. 16—160.)



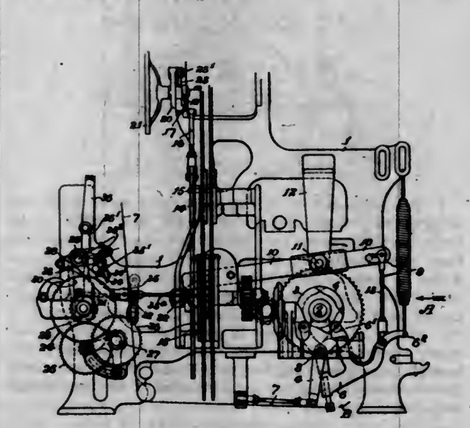
1. A hinge comprising a part with spaced pintle barrels and a casing thereon, having a pocket with a slot, a second part with a pintle barrel movable between the spaced barrels longitudinally on said pintle, a plunger provided with a spring in said pocket and with transverse means slidable in said slot to prevent rotation therein, said plunger having an integral finger to automatically move in the path of the pintle barrel on the movable hinge part for locking it in position, and a spring on said pintle to automatically move the movable pintle barrel out of such locked position when the locking finger is released.

1,631,528. DRY CELL. WILLIAM F. HENDRY, Ossining, N. Y., assignor, by mesne assignments, to National Carbon Company, Inc., New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Jan. 23, 1924. Serial No. 688,058. 6 Claims. (Cl. 136—123.)

1. A dry cell composed of a plurality of tablets compacted of depolarizing and bibulous materials, the latter forming an adhering coating on the former.



1,631,529. ILLUMINATING DEVICE FOR PROJECTION PURPOSES. ROGER M. HILL, Washington, D. C. Filed Mar. 1, 1923. Serial No. 622,219. 26 Claims. (Cl. 88—24.)

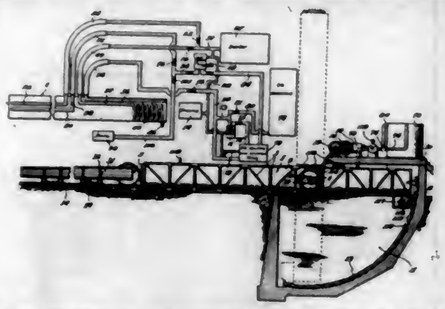


2. In a projection apparatus the combination of a supporting block, guides positioned in the block, one of said guides being fixed the other vertically movable, an adapter bracket secured at the lower end of the fixed guide, a lamp supported by said bracket, a turret swivelled at the upper end of said movable guide, remote control means connected with said turret to swivel the latter and a reflector carried by said turret.

1,631,530. BOTTLING MACHINE. ALBERT F. HOFFMAN, Newark, N. J. Filed Apr. 16, 1926. Serial No. 102,383. 5 Claims. (Cl. 226—70.)

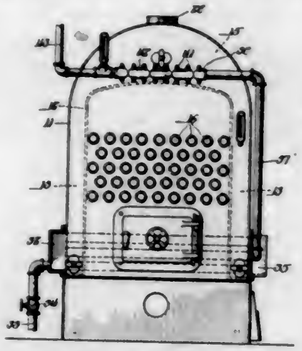
1. A bottling machine comprising a rotative chamber for beverages and the like, a cooling pipe associated with the chamber to rotate therewith, cooperative members having means in communication with said pipe and with supply and exhaust pipes to maintain circulation of cooling fluid through said pipe during rotation of the chamber, one of said members being rotative with the chamber, means retaining the other member from rotation, and spaced rings carried by the last named member and supporting the rotative member.

1,631,531. LOOM FOR WEAVING CHENILLE AXMINSTER AND LIKE CARPETS, BLANKETS, AND OTHER FABRICS. EDWARD HOLLINGWORTH, Dobcross, England, assignor to The Crompton and Knowles Loom Works, Worcester, Mass. Filed Aug. 14, 1925, Serial No. 50,324, and in Great Britain Aug. 15, 1924. 6 Claims. (Cl. 139—24.)



1. In a loom having two or more shifting shuttle boxes at each end of the lay, in combination, box shifting mechanism, means for rendering the box shifting mechanism inoperative, take-up mechanism and simultaneously operative means for varying the rate of speed of the take-up mechanism according as the box shifting mechanism is operative or inoperative.

1,631,532. APPARATUS FOR TREATING PILES. ANDREW G. HOWERTON, Memphis, Tenn. Filed June 25, 1926. Serial No. 118,543. 7 Claims. (Cl. 98—12.)



7. An apparatus for impregnating piles with a preservative, a cylinder, means for supporting the cylinder for adjustment to horizontal and upright position, rails extending longitudinally within the cylinder, and upon which are guided the wheels of a truck supporting piles to be impregnated, and cooperative means carried by the truck and cylinder for maintaining truck wheels upon the rails when the cylinder is upright.

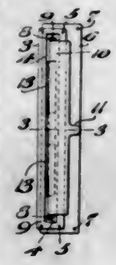
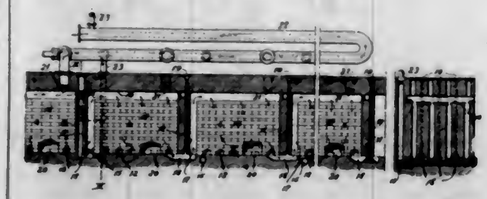
1,631,533. WATER HEATER. ADOLPH T. JOHANSON, Benton Harbor, Mich., assignor of one-half to Harry V. Tutton, Benton Harbor, Mich. Filed June 21, 1926. Serial No. 117,445. 2 Claims. (Cl. 122—20.)



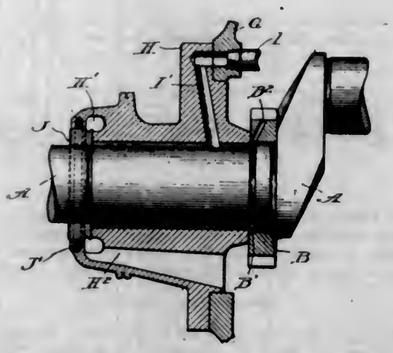
1. The combination of a boiler having outer walls and adapted to contain a body of water, said boiler in its lower portion having two combustion chambers separated from one another by a hollow wall adapted to contain water, a lower pipe extended through the water of said hollow wall, upper pipes extended through said first mentioned body of water and through the opposite walls of the boiler, means outside of said walls connecting said upper pipes together, means connecting said lower pipe to said upper pipes, and means to feed water to said lower pipe, whereby the water may be heated in flowing through said lower pipe and upper pipes.

1,631,534. SAW SET. AXEL JOHNSON, Oakland, Calif. Filed June 10, 1926. Serial No. 115,142. 3 Claims. (Cl. 76—72.)



1. A saw-setting tool comprising a body adapted to be held in the hand and struck with a hammer, said body having upon its lower edge a plurality of teeth with oppositely and alternately inclined operative faces adapted to contact with and set the teeth of a saw, and a gage movably associated with said body and adapted for contact with both the saw teeth and the hand of the user to indicate the amount of set produced.

1,631,535. CORSET CLASP. ALMA KAUTZSCH, Philadelphia, Pa. Filed Aug. 25, 1926. Serial No. 131,365. 1 Claim. (Cl. 24—69.)

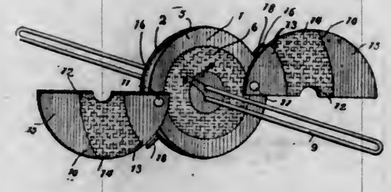


In a corset opening upon a front vertical medial line, the combination of a plurality of thin flat, elongated plates secured adjacent to one vertical edge of the corset each plate having a spring pressed, elongated clamp pivotally mounted thereon, provided with a finger piece, a leaf spring for each pivotal clamp arranged in alignment with the pivot points, said leaf spring being elongated and riveted intermediate of its ends to said plate in a plane below the said pivotal clamp and substantially in alignment with the axis of the latter, portions of said spring on each side of the riveted portion being bowed upwardly to contact with the inner pivotal edge of said clamp, and a plurality of other thin, flat and slotted plates secured to the opposite vertical edge of the corset, said pivotal clamps being co-extensive with the slotted plates throughout the major portion of their extent and each clamp being adapted to penetrate said slotted plates and to be moved about their pivot points for clamping upon said first mentioned plates to interlock said corset front.

1,631,536. APPARATUS AND PROCESS FOR BURNING CERAMICS AND THE LIKE. HEINRICH KOPPERS, Essen-Ruhr, Germany, assignor to The Koppers Development Corporation, Pittsburgh, Pa., a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Aug. 31, 1921, Serial No. 497,367, and in Germany Aug. 21, 1919. 11 Claims. (Cl. 25—137.) (Granted under the provisions of the act of Mar. 3, 1921, 41 Stat. L., 1313.)

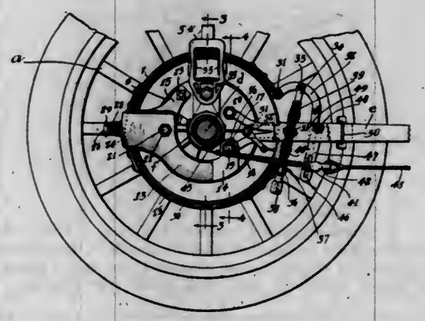
1. An annular oven for burning ceramic ware and the like, in combination: a series of connected oven chambers adapted to be operated successively as cooling, burning and preheating chambers; partitions separating said chambers; a plurality of passage openings in said partitions, one set in the upper portion of said partitions providing a communication from the upper part of one chamber to the lower part of the next adjacent chamber and the other set of passage openings located in the lower portion of the partitions and communicating with the lower part of the said next adjacent chamber, each of said passage openings adapted to be opened and closed; openings in the lower portions of said chambers for admission of cooling air; heat supply openings located in the lower part of the chambers adjacent said partitions; the passages in the upper part of said partition adapted to be opened and the passages in the lower part of said partitions adapted to be closed between the cooling and burning chambers; the upper passages adapted to be closed and the lower passages adapted to be opened between the burning and preheating chambers and between each preheating chamber.

1,631,537. LUBRICATION SYSTEM FOR TRAIN OF GEARS. JOHN GEORGE KRENZKE, La Porte, Ind., assignor to Advance-Rumely Company, La Porte, Ind., a Corporation of Indiana. Filed Apr. 17, 1922. Serial No. 553,726. 3 Claims. (Cl. 184—6.)



2. In combination with a crank shaft of an engine supported by a bearing means for lubricating said bearing and for lubricating from such bearing other parts, said means including a lubricant retaining groove formed on said shaft, a collar on said shaft adjacent said groove and a pinion fixed on said collar and overlying said groove, ducts through said pinion communicating with the groove whereby lubricant is fed from the groove to the periphery of said pinion after having passed from the bearing to such groove.

1,631,538. WINDING SHAFT. FRANK E. LANGDON, Vancouver, Wash. Filed Apr. 28, 1926. Serial No. 105,104. 2 Claims. (Cl. 242—72.)



1. A winding shaft having an inner tubular shaft member; a plurality of radially movable longitudinal curved sections forming an outer shaft around said inner shaft; wedges between each of said longitudinal sections and said inner shaft; means for sliding said inner shaft with relation to said outer sections; and a spring within said inner tubular shaft adapted to hold said sections in an expanded position.

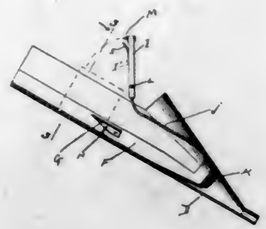
1,631,539. WHIRLIGIG. GEORGE M. LARRAIR, Indianapolis, Ind. Filed July 1, 1926. Serial No. 119,946. 4 Claims. (Cl. 46—14.)

2. A whirligig comprising a disk-like body, means to rotate said body, wings pivoted against one side face of said body at opposite sides of its center and adapted to be swung outwardly in opposite directions by centrifugal force when the body is rotating, lugs extending from said wings adjacent their pivoted ends and projecting across the peripheral edge of said body to limit outward pivotal movement of the wings, and means to yieldably retain said wings retracted.

1,631,540. BRAKE. ETHAN C. LE MUNYON and HENRY N. MOORE, Los Angeles, Calif., assignors, by mesne assignments, to Rocky Mountain Steel Products, Inc., Los Angeles, Calif., a Corporation of California. Filed Dec. 8, 1921, Serial No. 521,073. Renewed Nov. 5, 1926. 4 Claims. (Cl. 188—77.)

1. In a brake, the combination with a vehicle wheel and an axle housing having a flange, of a brake drum fitting loosely over the flange, a second brake drum of substantially greater diameter than the first drum open to the air at its face and riveted to the first drum independently of the wheel, bolts passing through both drums and through the wheel, a bracket mounted on the inner face of the flange and bridging across a portion of the space between the flange and the periphery of the second drum and provided with a flange extending parallel with said periphery, a brake shoe yieldingly mounted on the second flange and partly surrounding the second drum, and means to control the brake shoe.

1,631,541. LIQUID-MEASURING TANK. GEORGE W. MACKENZIE, Beaver, Pa., assignor to Correct Measure Company, Rochester, Pa., a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed May 24, 1926. Serial No. 111,270. 3 Claims. (Cl. 116—135.)



3. An indicator for a cylindrical glass-walled container consisting of a band of rigid material adapted to be coiled within the cylinder, said band being provided adjacent one end with a keeper, the band at its opposite end extending through said keeper and slidably engaged thereby, and at its tip secured to the web of the band adjacent the keeper-provided end, and means for reducing the divergence of the overlapped ends between the keeper and the point of securing.

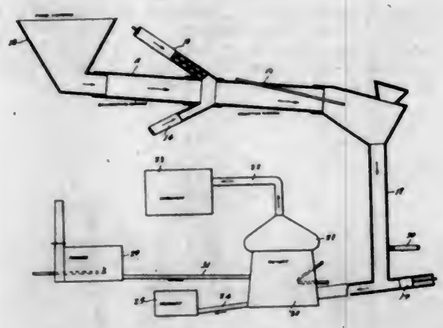
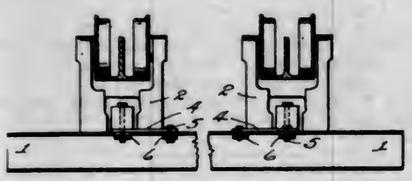
1,631,542. FUEL FILLER FOR TANKS. THOMAS DAVID MANUEL, Bellville, South Africa. Filed Mar. 26, 1926, Serial No. 97,722, and in the Union of South Africa Dec. 10, 1925. 2 Claims. (Cl. 226—29.)



1. A liquid dispensing device including a funnel supported in fixed inclination, and a removable strip therein, a strainer at the lower end of said strip, and a puncturing device carried by said strip above said strainer.

1,631,543. CLOTHING AND PACKAGE CARRIER. ORREN I. MASSEY, Elk City, Okla., assignor of one-half to Samuel Williams, Elk City, Okla. Filed Aug. 28, 1925. Serial No. 53,079. 3 Claims. (Cl. 224—29.)

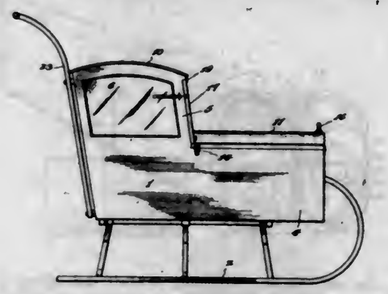


1. A clothing and package carrier comprising a frame and a sheet of supporting material attached to said frame, flexible side members attached to the lateral edges of said frame, means for hingedly connecting one edge of the carrier to a vehicle frame, and yielding means normally inclosed in said side members for holding the free edge of said carrier against the top of the vehicle.

1,631,544. PROCESS FOR THE PRODUCTION OF METALLIC MAGNESIUM AND FIXED NITROGEN. CLAUDE G. MINER, Berkeley, Calif., assignor, by mesne assignments, to Anglo-California Trust Company, trustee, San Francisco, Calif. Filed Nov. 6, 1922. Serial No. 599,289. 20 Claims. (Cl. 75—17.)

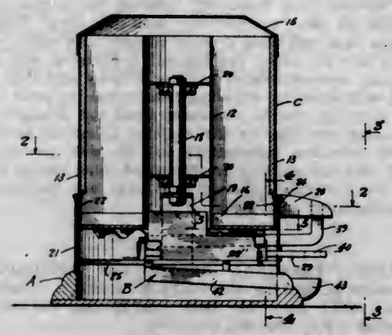
1. Process of preparing metallic magnesium which comprises reacting upon a compound of magnesium having a heat of formation less than that of magnesium oxid with an agent capable of liberating magnesium therefrom.

1,631,545. ADJUSTABLE END TRUCK. RUSSELL E. NELLES, Reading, Pa., assignor to Reading Chain & Block Corporation, Reading, Pa., a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Jan. 28, 1927. Serial No. 164,269. 1 Claim. (Cl. 105—163.)



In an adjustable end truck for overhead carriers, the combination of a truck member, a plate on which it is mounted, said plate having a series of bolt receiving perforations, an I-beam on which the truck is adapted to travel, and a set of clamping plates secured and carried by the plate and having bent extremities adapted to engage the flange of the I-beam and to hold the truck end in adjustable position thereon.

1,631,546. INFANT'S CONVEYANCE. SEBASTIAN NISTLER, Buffalo, N. Y. Filed July 31, 1924. Serial No. 729,369. 1 Claim. (Cl. 296—1.)



A child's vehicle comprising a body having a forward extension, a cover closing the forward extension and hinged thereto at its front end to swing upwardly at its rear end to an open position, a rail at the rear end of the cover having an upstanding flange along its rear edge, and a shield closing the front of the body above the forward extension thereof and hinged at its top and adapted to swing forwardly and upwardly at its bottom to an open position and when closed having its lower end portion fitted close against the top face of the rail and front face of the upstanding flange whereby the shield may securely hold the cover closed and the flange of the rail limit closing movement of the shield and form a tight joint between the shield and cover.

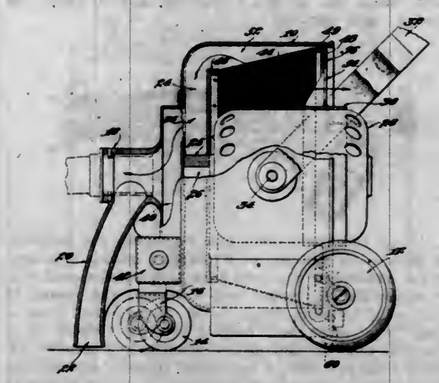
1,631,547. VENDING MACHINE. JAMES E. OLVIS, Los Angeles, Calif. Filed Sept. 9, 1925. Serial No. 55,828. 5 Claims. (Cl. 211—8.)

1. In a device of the class described, the combination of a base having a delivery passageway for articles to be vended, a stock container rotatably mounted on said base and having a plurality of compartments adapted to have the articles stacked therein, said compartments being peripherally arranged in said container, each of said compartments having a delivery outlet in the outer wall at the bottom thereof so that the container may be turned to register a selected outlet with said passageway, alignment means for finally locking a selected outlet in registration with said passageway, and operating means in said base for ejecting articles from a selected compartment into said passageway, said alignment and operating means being manually operable by a single movement.



1,631,548. DISPENSING FAUCET. WILLIAM E. PATNAUDE, Stoughton, Mass. Filed May 26, 1926. Serial No. 111,872. 5 Claims. (Cl. 251—156.)

1. In a liquid dispensing faucet, a depending tubular casing having a discharge port at its lower end, the walls of which terminate at a uniform level, said casing being internally constricted to form an upwardly facing valve seat and constructed to provide a relatively short annular lip depending from said seat and forming the lower end portion of the casing, and a valve vertically movable in said casing to engage said seat and having a flat, circular, horizontally disposed drop-sustaining face at its lower end arranged, when the valve is seated, to effect a sufficiently tight closure of the top portion of the space encircled by said lip, at a level slightly above the level of the edge of the lip, to form a shallow recess adapted to retain undischarged drops of liquid which have passed the valve seat.

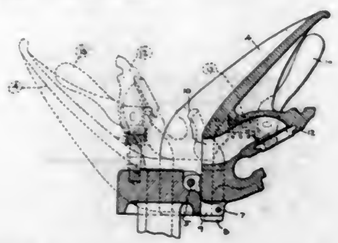
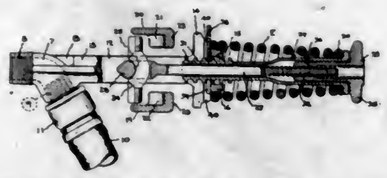
1,631,549. VACUUM CLEANER. FRED FORREST PEASE, East Braintree, Mass., assignor to F. F. Pease Inc., Boston, Mass., a Corporation of Massachusetts. Filed Apr. 9, 1923. Serial No. 630,707. 4 Claims. (Cl. 183—63.)



1. The combination in a vacuum cleaner of an electric motor, a fan connected to one end of the motor, a tubular screen beyond the fan and extending about the motor, and means for rotating the screen with the fan.

1,631,550. ELECTRICAL CONNECTION. PHILIP ROBERG, Elmhurst, N. Y., assignor, by mesne assignments, to National Carbon Company, Inc., New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Aug. 26, 1921. Serial No. 495,499. 12 Claims. (Cl. 171—326.)

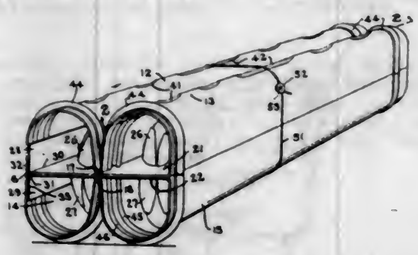


3. The combination of a carbon brush having a cavity therein, a carbon-containing metallic plug in said cavity and a conductor secured in good electrical connection with the brush by the metallic plug.

1,631,551. AUTOMATIC TRAIN-PIPE CONNECTER. JOSEPH ROBINSON, New York, N. Y. Filed Mar. 22, 1921. Serial No. 454,545. Renewed Nov. 3, 1925. 10 Claims. (Cl. 285—58.)

9. In an automatic train pipe connecter, a coupling head having a coupling face provided with a port, a guiding prong secured to said head and having a portion movable into position adjacent said face of the head, said portion of the prong having a port adapted to cooperate with the port in said head.

1,631,552. AUTOMATIC TRAIN-PIPE CONNECTER. JOSEPH ROBINSON, New York, N. Y. Filed Apr. 14, 1921. Serial No. 461,298. Renewed Nov. 3, 1925. 18 Claims. (Cl. 285—58.)



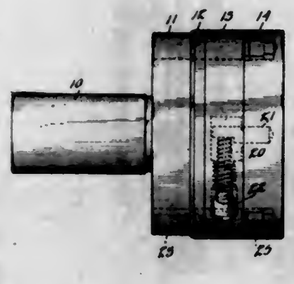
1. In an automatic train pipe connecter, the combination with a car coupler, of a coupling head and a support for suspending the head from said coupler, said support comprising a bracket and a spring, and means to permit said coupling head to be disconnected from a mating head while said coupler remains coupled to a companion coupler, said means comprising a member extending from the rear of said head through said bracket and carrying a perforated projection, a device extending into said perforation and having abutting relation to said spring, and means to anchor said device to said member to maintain said spring under compression while effecting such disconnection.

1,631,553. BLOOD-TESTING DEVICE. CHARLES E. RODERICK, Battle Creek, Mich. Filed Apr. 20, 1925. Serial No. 24,569. 5 Claims. (Cl. 88—14.)

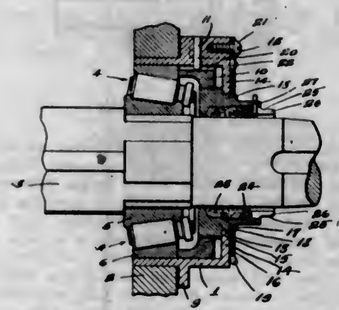
5. In a device of the class described, the combination of a cylindrical casing member having a peripheral sight opening therein and an end wall provided with a central hub, a drum rotatable within said casing provided with an end wall having a spindle disposed in said hub, a finger piece on said spindle for rotatably adjusting said drum, and a gauge strip mounted on the periphery of said drum whereby the indicia thereof may be brought into register with said opening.

1,631,554. EGG CARTON. ERICH SCHINSCHOLL, Cincinnati, Ohio. Filed Sept. 26, 1924. Serial No. 740,119. 4 Claims. (Cl. 229—29.)

1. An egg carton comprising a shell embodying a pair of substantially semi-cylindrical sections forming shell-halves hinged together by a score integral in said shell at one side of said substantially semi-cylindrical sections, egg-nest sections extending laterally from the opposite sides of said respective shell-sections toward said score and provided with mating egg-pockets, the bodies of said substantially semi-cylindrical sections provided with radially outwardly extending ribs forming grooves at the inner surfaces of said substantially semi-cylindrical sections, said ribs extending about said substantially semi-cylindrical sections adjacent to the ends thereof for strengthening the substantially semi-cylindrical forms of said sections and resiliently spacing the intermediate portions of said substantially semi-cylindrical sections between said ribs from a plane surface upon which said carton may be placed, and the wall portions of said substantially semi-cylindrical sections between said ribs provided with inwardly extending indentations in axial lines with said egg pockets, and constructed and arranged for cushioning the eggs by the conjoint action of said inwardly extending indentations and the wall portions in which said indentations are contained being spaced from said plane surface, whereby said eggs are individually and collectively cushioned.



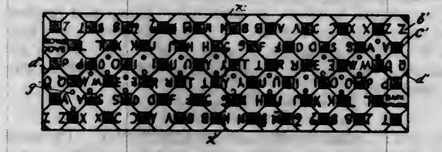
1,631,555. TERMINAL PROTECTIVE APPARATUS. EDWARD A. SEWARD and ELLIS B. RODGERS, Columbus, Ga. Filed Mar. 24, 1923. Serial No. 627,503. 5 Claims. (Cl. 136—163.)



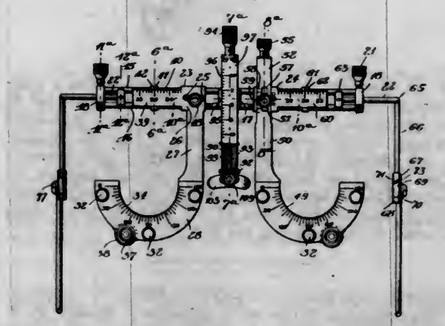
1. A protective apparatus for the terminal of a secondary battery comprising a base adapted to surround the terminal, a casing removably mounted thereon, a cover for the casing, means for locking the casing onto the base, and means for locking the cover onto the casing in position for preventing release of the locking means for the casing to the base.

1,631,556. DIE HEAD. HARRY T. SHEARER, Waynesboro, Pa., assignor to Landis Machine Company, Waynesboro, Pa., a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Nov. 11, 1924. Serial No. 749,222. 15 Claims. (Cl. 10—100.)

10. A die head comprising tangential thread-cutting chasers, means movable either clockwise or counter-clockwise for locking the head closed to cut right-hand and left-hand threads respectively, means for locking the ring in head-closing position including a pair of apertures in the ring adjacent each pin adapted to receive the pins to lock the head in right-hand or left-hand cutting position respectively, and means permitting overtravel of the ring about the head in its movement toward either closed position, substantially as set forth.



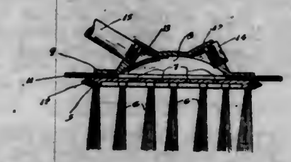
1,631,557. EXTERNAL BEARING-ADJUSTING MEANS. GEORGE W. SPONABLE, Syracuse, N. Y., assignor to Brown-Lipe Gear Company, Syracuse, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Apr. 30, 1924. Serial No. 710,099. 11 Claims. (Cl. 308—207.)



1. The combination of a support, a shaft and a bearing for the shaft carried by the support, the bearing including an axially adjustable part, an internally threaded nut thrusting against said part, means for holding the nut from relative turning movement and an adjusting member arranged concentric with the shaft and threading into the nut and operable upon turning to move the nut lengthwise of the shaft.

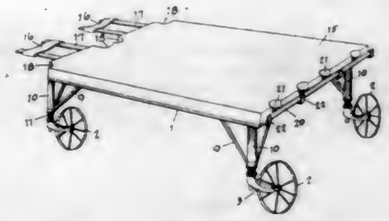
1,631,558. GAME APPARATUS. ALFRED JAMES STEVENS, London, Ontario, Canada. Filed Jan. 2, 1926. Serial No. 78,998. 2 Claims. (Cl. 273—131.)

1. A game device comprising a board, the face of which is divided into a series of play areas alternating with separating areas, the respective areas having distinguishing characteristics and being so placed as to present the same arrangement from either side of the board, and two sets of distinguishable markers adapted to be placed upon said play areas, said play areas having thereon two sets of characters which comprise the letters of the alphabet, the play areas on which the vowels are placed having characteristics to readily distinguish them from other play areas.



1,631,559. OPHTHALMIC TEST-LENS FRAME. CLARENCE M. STEVENSON, Los Angeles, Calif., assignor to Bausch & Lomb Optical Company, Rochester, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed July 11, 1922. Serial No. 574,207. 7 Claims. (Cl. 88—20.)

1. In an ophthalmic test lens frame, a bridge comprising a pair of parallel bars connected adjacent their centers and ends, inner and outer heads slidably supported for independent movement upon the bars on each side of their central portion, temple members carried by the outer heads, lens supporting elements depending from each of the inner heads, one of said elements being vertically adjustable upon its head, separate operating members engaging the last mentioned head one of which is adapted to move the head upon the guides and the other to move the adjustable lens supporting element upon said head and a nose piece carried by the bridge.



1,631,560. BRUSH. CLARENCE H. STRUBLE and SAMUEL W. HALL, Chicago, Ill. Filed Oct. 12, 1925. Serial No. 61,883. 1 Claim. (Cl. 15—128.)

A fountain brush comprising a body; bristles mounted in said body and projecting from one side thereof, there being perforations extending through said body interspersed between said bristles; a removable cover for said body forming therewith a distributing chamber over said perforations; a rubber gasket between said cover and body, said gasket being in the form of a flat annular ring extended radially beyond said body to form a guard, a rubber guard member on said body below said gasket, said body being formed with a peripheral groove and said guard member being set in said groove; and means for supplying washing fluid to said chamber, substantially as described.

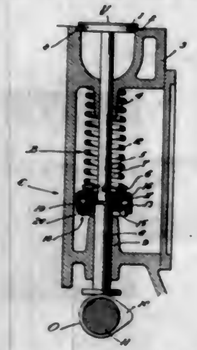
1,631,561. AGRICULTURAL INSTRUMENT. CHARLES D. SYMMES, Cygnet, Ohio. Filed Mar. 1, 1926. Serial No. 91,413. 2 Claims. (Cl. 280—29.)

1. In a vehicle, a platform part for supporting a vegetation operator face down, a pair of arms connected to one end of the platform and a flexible strap connecting the ends of the arms and forming a forehead support for the operator, the platform supporting part having a recess located on each side of the forehead support for receiving the arms of the operator, the platform operating to support the chest of the operator while using his arms in manipulating the soil.



1,631,562. PIPE-LINE-CLEANING DEVICE. JOHN M. THOMPSON and WILLIAM H. THOMPSON, Buffalo, N. Y. Filed Sept. 19, 1923. Serial No. 663,646. 26 Claims. (Cl. 15—104.06.)

4. In a pipe cleaning device, the combination of a supporting frame, curved plates rigidly mounted on said frame and having their front edges sharpened, a plurality of scrapers mounted on each of said plates and having cutting edges arranged in a circle of greater diameter than the cutting edges of said plates, and means for yieldingly holding said scrapers in their operative position on said plates.

1,631,563. AUTOMATIC ADJUSTER FOR PUSH RODS. JOHN E. TITUS, Chicago, Ill. Filed Feb. 5, 1924. Serial No. 690,878. 6 Claims. (Cl. 123—90.)

1. In combination with a poppet valve stem and a push rod in axial alignment and approximately abutting end to end, the push rod being slightly larger in diameter than the valve stem, a cone member seating on the extending edge of the push rod and receiving the end of the valve stem, a cup seated on and concentric with the valve stem and disposed above the cone with the outer walls overhanging and surrounding the cone forming an annular wedging space, clutch balls disposed in said space, and a spring acting between the cone and cup.

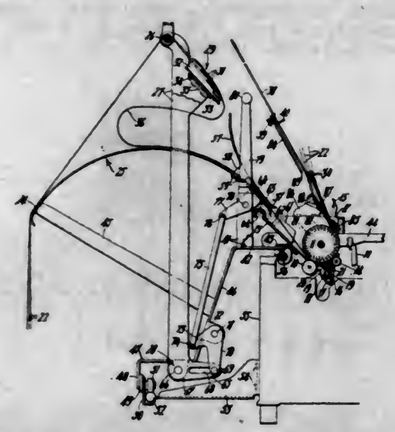
1,631,564. VALVE FOR MAKING CONNECTION BETWEEN UNDERGROUND MAIN PIPING AND UNDERGROUND BRANCH PIPING. DIEDERIK LODEWIJK HENDRIK VAN RAALTE, Vlissingen, Netherlands. Filed July 16, 1926, Serial No. 122,839½, and in Germany July 14, 1925. 2 Claims. (Cl. 137—73.)



2. A valve including a screw plug having an external shoulder affording a seat for a packing and being provided interiorly with a bore and a larger counter-bore, the wall of the latter being threaded, the junction of said bore and counter-bore forming a shoulder, said screw plug being formed with lateral ports in a zone intermediate the length of said counter-bore, a one piece casing screwing upon said screw plug having the lower end thereof adapted to form a fluid tight joint with the packing on said external shoulder, said casing being formed with a perforated cap, a packing within said cap, said casing having a lateral passage communicating with said ports, a stopper threaded within said counter-bore having valve seats at its opposite ends engageable alternatively with said internal shoulder and the packing within said cap, said casing being of such depth as to maintain a space between the packing in the cap and the end of the screw plug when the lower end of said casing is in fluid tight relation with the external shoulder, said stopper being of such length as to be entirely below the zone of said ports when seated upon said internal shoulder.

1,631,565. TYPEWRITING MACHINE. JOHN WALDHEIM, Elizabeth, N. J., assignor to Underwood Typewriter Company, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Aug. 25, 1923, Serial No. 659,273. Renewed Oct. 10, 1924. 12 Claims. (Cl. 197—126.)

1. In a continuous billing typewriting machine, the combination of a carriage, a revoluble platen on said carriage around which a work-web comprising continuous work-sheets may be fed with interleaved carbon-sheets, a pivoted carbon-carrier to travel with said carriage to retract the work-sheets with the carbon-sheets around the platen to free the carbon-sheet from the platen, a curved table over which the web is stretched when retracted, said table pocketed at its forward end to receive a loop of work-web, feed-rolls to advance the web while the carbon-sheets are held, a gage to determine the extent of advancement of said work sheets, said carbon-carrier movable forwardly from sheet-retracted position to gather the web into a loop upon said table, and means to detain said carbon-carrier in its forward position during the taking up of the loop by the platen.

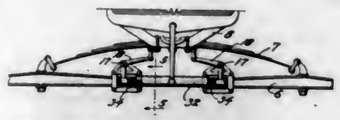
1,631,566. ROTATABLE FLAG SUPPORT. ROBERT T. WALTON, Philadelphia, Pa. Filed July 2, 1926. Serial No. 120,074. 1 Claim. (Cl. 116—173.)

In a device of the character stated, a flag staff, an elongated sleeve extending longitudinally of, and surrounding the upper end of said flag staff and freely rotatable thereon and provided with parallel vertical flanges, a flag having its inner edge clamped between said vertical flanges, and means comprising a pin in said sleeve engaging a groove in said flag staff for preventing longitudinal shifting of said sleeve and flag with respect to said flag staff.

1,631,567. FLAG SUPPORT AND ACTUATING DEVICE THEREFOR. ROBERT T. WALTON, Philadelphia, Pa. Filed Oct. 12, 1926. Serial No. 141,043. 4 Claims. (Cl. 116—173.)

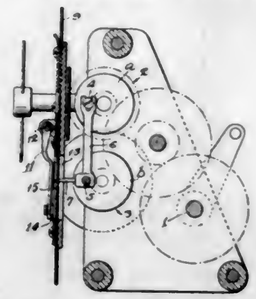
3. The combination of a flag staff, a sleeve rotatably mounted on the upper end thereof, an upper pulley carried by said sleeve, pendant rods secured to the bottom of said sleeve, a flag, a clamp in which the inner edge of said flag is secured, a cord having its ends secured to the upper and lower portions of said clamp, the upper portion of said cord passing over said pulley, and means on one of said rods for fastening said cord, in combination with integral guide rings formed on one of said rods, and adapted to engage said flag staff.

1,631,568. DRY BATTERY. VICTOR YNGVE, South Orange, N. J., assignor, by mesne assignments, to National Carbon Company, Inc., New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed May 3, 1924. Serial No. 710,790. 1 Claim. (Cl. 136—109.)



In a dry battery, a box of insulating material, separators of insulating material dividing said box into a plurality of watertight compartments, zinc electrodes shaped into two rectangular plates of unequal size joined by a narrow band mounted in said box with the two plates enclosing a separator and the narrow bands straddling the upper edge of the separator, said narrow bands being used as connection terminals, a coating of conducting paint covering the smaller one of the plates, a layer of porous absorbent material covering the free side of the other plate, and a rectangular tablet compacted of depolarizing mixture in each compartment.

1,631,569. SHOCK ABSORBER. LEONARD ALDRIN, Denver, Colo. Filed Oct. 9, 1925. Serial No. 61,465. 3 Claims. (Cl. 267—20.)



1. A shock absorber for a vehicle comprising a cylinder arranged for attachment to the axle of said vehicle; opposed pistons carried in said cylinder; piston rods arranged to project from opposite ends of said cylinder; bell crank levers arranged for attachment to the body of said vehicle at their one extremity and operatively connected to said piston rods at their other extremity so as to cause said pistons to approach each other as said body moves upward.

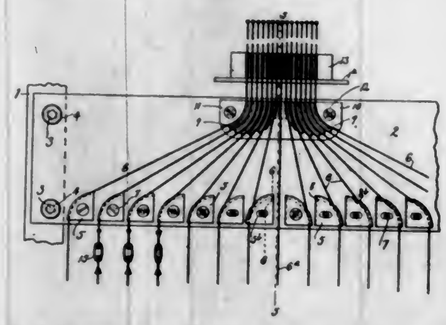
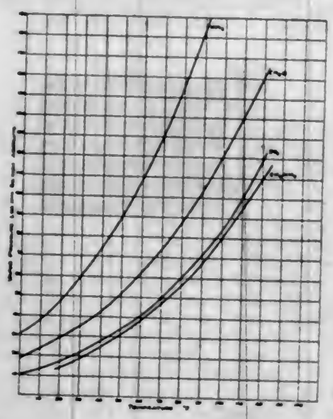
1,631,570. MOTION-PICTURE-FILM FEED. EDWARD H. AMET, Redondo Beach, Calif. Filed Sept. 15, 1926. Serial No. 135,540. 2 Claims. (Cl. 88—18.4.)



1. A motion picture film feed comprising a film guideway, a dog having an elongate arm and having a detent to enter a hole in the film to hold the film stationary; a reciprocating tooth adapted to pass through a hole in the film to engage said arm to lift the detent from the film and to move the film longitudinally; and means for moving the tooth to and from the arm and along the film-way while in contact with the arm, and for withdrawing the tooth from the film and returning the tooth to initial position to again lift the dog and its detent and to move the film as before.

1,631,571. HAIR-WAVING APPARATUS. HAZEN BOTSFORD BAIRD, New York, N. Y. Filed July 3, 1926. Serial No. 120,382. 13 Claims. (Cl. 132—36.)

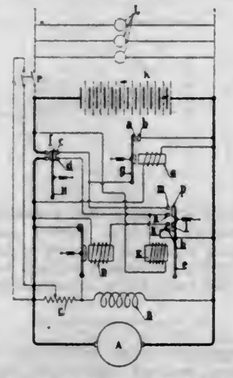


1. Apparatus for treating hair comprising the combination of a support, a casing carried thereby, a plurality of arms extending outwardly from the casing, a plurality of heaters arranged in an inner and an outer series, and individual devices for adjusting the positions of the heaters with reference to the casing, the devices for the heaters of the outer series being carried by the said arms and the devices for the heaters of the inner series being carried by the casing.

1,631,572. TRANSMITTING MECHANISM. CLYDE C. BALSTON, New York, N. Y. Filed Apr. 8, 1927. Serial No. 182,140. 16 Claims. (Cl. 197—1.)

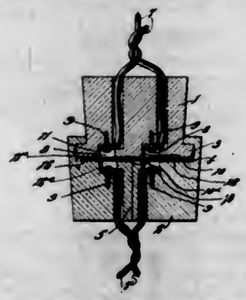
1. A transmitting mechanism comprising a plurality of spaced guides, a second plurality of guides spaced nearer together than the spacing between the first named guides, the second named guides having curves of varying diameters, and flexible connections passing along said guides.

1,631,573. REFREGERANT. GEORGE BARSKY, New York, N. Y., assignor to American Cyanamid Company, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of Maine. Filed Mar. 5, 1926. Serial No. 92,429. 5 Claims. (Cl. 252—5.)



1. A refrigerating composition comprising mono-methylamine and ammonia.

1,631,574. SYSTEM OF ELECTRICAL SUPPLY. HENRI BENIT, Paris, France, assignor to l'Eclairage des Vehicules sur Rail, Paris, France, a French Corporation. Filed Nov. 9, 1923, Serial No. 673,647, and in France Nov. 9, 1922. 6 Claims. (Cl. 171—314.)



1. In a system of electrical supply, a generator, an accumulator, a circuit connecting said generator and said accumulator in parallel, a current-limiting device controlling the output of said generator, an automatic switch in said circuit, a relay adapted to condition said current-limiting device for operation, and means associated with said automatic switch for preventing said relay from functioning when the resistance of the accumulator is high at the beginning of the charging operation.

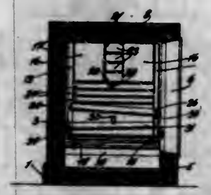
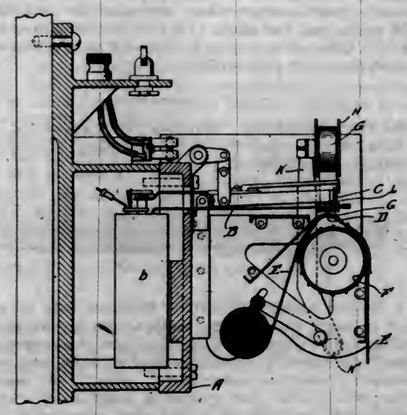
1,631,575. ELECTRICAL CONNECTION. CLARENCE C. BERRY, Valley Park, Mo. Filed Sept. 29, 1928. Serial No. 665,585. 2 Claims. (Cl. 173—324.)



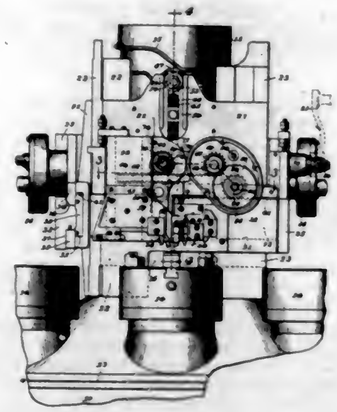
1. In an electrical connection, a cylindrical member having an external peripheral flange, a cylindrical member axially aligned with said first-mentioned member and having an internal peripheral recess adapted to rotatably receive said flange, said latter-mentioned member being divided longitudinally to permit assembly with and disassembly from said first-mentioned member, each of said members having longitudinal passageways for wires therethrough, the passageways in said divided member being spaced from the dividing surface, and individual terminal elements for said passageways providing cooperating contact surfaces on the opposing faces of said members.

1,631,576. DEVICE FOR CONNECTING THE ABUTTING ENDS OF CONCRETE SLABS. CLAUDE E. BOWERS, Los Angeles, Calif. Filed Oct. 11, 1926. Serial No. 140,739. 6 Claims. (Cl. 94—18.)



1. In a device for connecting the slab units of a concrete roadway, a plurality of rods adapted for embedment in an edge of one of the concrete slab units, a portion of the rods extending beyond the edge, and a contractible metal sleeve for each of said rods, said sleeves being embedded in the abutting edge of the adjacent concrete unit.

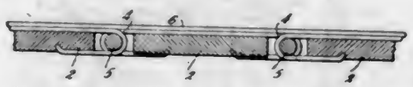
1,631,577. REFRIGERATOR. CLIFFORD F. BOYER, Webster Groves, Mo. Filed June 24, 1925. Serial No. 39,258. 8 Claims. (Cl. 62—37.)



3. A refrigerator comprising a case, a refrigerating compartment at one end of the case, a display compartment adjacent thereto, a refrigerant container within the refrigerating compartment, internal pockets formed in the upper part of the refrigerant container, said pockets adapted to receive and hold a quantity of refrigerant, an air chamber between said pockets, open troughs running transversely of the side of the refrigerant container adjacent to the display compartment of the refrigerator case adapted to receive liquid discharged from the refrigerant container through said air chamber, an open drip pan located in the bottom of the display compartment of the refrigerator case, and pipes communicating the troughs with the open drip pan.

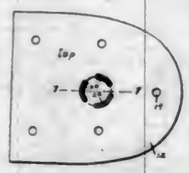
1,631,578. RECORDING INSTRUMENT. RICHARD P. BROWN, Philadelphia, Pa., assignor to The Brown Instrument Company, Philadelphia, Pa., a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed June 1, 1925. Serial No. 33,944. 3 Claims. (Cl. 234—1.)

1. In a recording instrument comprising a meter pointer, means for supporting and advancing a record sheet, a transfer medium interposed between the record sheet and the pointer, and means for intermittently depressing the latter to cause the transfer medium to make a mark on the record sheet, the improvement which consists in a flexible shield interposed between the needle and the transfer medium.



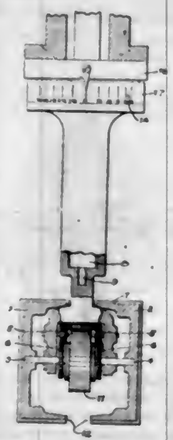
1,631,579. TOOL-SLIDE MECHANISM. EDWARD P. BULLARD, Jr., Stratford, Conn., assignor to The Bullard Machine Tool Company, Bridgeport, Conn., a Corporation of Connecticut. Filed Feb. 8, 1924. Serial No. 691,334. 18 Claims. (Cl. 29—38.)

1. In a tool slide mechanism, a support, a pair of tool slides mounted on said support and adapted to have angular movement with respect to each other, a common drive means, gear means between said common drive means and one of said slides, gear means between said first gear means and said other slide, and means for manually connecting and disconnecting said gear means, whereby said slides may be manually reciprocated independently of each other.



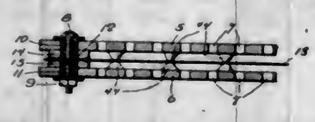
15. In a tool slide mechanism, a vertically movable saddle, a plurality of tool slides mounted to reciprocate thereon, a rack carried by said saddle, gearing carried by said saddle meshing with said rack and adapted to reciprocate said tool slides, means adapted to reciprocate said rack, and means adapted to lock said rack to said saddle and to release it at a predetermined point, and whereby initial reciprocatory movement is imparted to said saddle and tool slides as a unit and secondary movement in different directions is imparted to said tool slides independently of said saddle.

1,631,580. BELTING. WILLIAM M. CAVANAUGH, New York, N. Y. Filed Dec. 8, 1923. Serial No. 679,284. 2 Claims. (Cl. 74—64.)



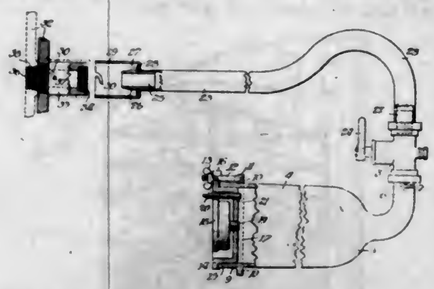
1. Belting comprising leather vertebræ each of which is of a length equal to the width of the belting and extending transversely of the belting, sets of non-extensible connecting members attached to said vertebræ, each set of connecting members comprising a plurality of members lying side by side and extending longitudinally of the belting and transversely of the said vertebræ the connecting members of one set overlapping the adjacent set of connecting members said overlapping ends being given a reverse bend to form loops the ends of which are embedded in the said leather vertebræ and means passing through the loop portions of the overlapping ends of the connecting members to attach the connecting members of one vertebra to the connecting members of the adjacent vertebra to provide a non-extensible articulated structure.

1,631,581. NAILING PLATE FOR LASTS. HENRY O. DAVIS, Plymouth, Mass. Filed Sept. 16, 1926. Serial No. 135,767. 6 Claims. (Cl. 12—140.)



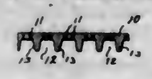
1. As an article of manufacture, a nailing-plate having a puncture-resisting clinching portion and a puncturable nail-engaging portion surrounded by and interlocked with the clinching portion, said portions being positively connected, so that the plate is attachable as a unit to a last.

1,631,582. DEVICE FOR MILLING POLYGONAL HOLES. PAUL DEMMEL, Frankfort-on-the-Main-Rodelheim, Germany. Filed Dec. 4, 1925, Serial No. 73,133, and in Germany Jan. 31, 1922. 10 Claims. (Cl. 90—11.)



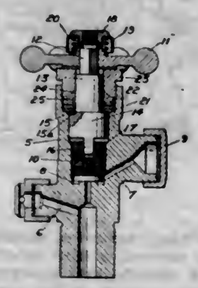
1. A device for milling polygonal holes comprising two spaced coaxial roller milling cutters and a plurality of roller milling cutters intermediate said two cutters with their axes parallel to that of the cutters first mentioned.

1,631,583. CAPACITATIVELY-ACTUATED LOUD SPEAKER. JOHN DEPEW, New York, N. Y., assignor to Ignatz Lauter, New York, N. Y. Filed Feb. 12, 1926. Serial No. 87,974. 6 Claims. (Cl. 179—106.)



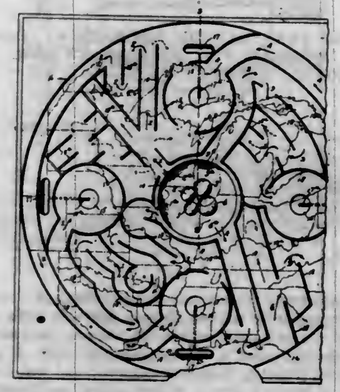
1. A device of the class described comprising two plates of conducting material spaced apart and insulated from each other, an acoustical diaphragm made of insulating material and located between said plates of conducting material, and means for subjecting said plates of conducting material to varying potentials in order to cause said plates to attract and repel said diaphragm and thus to actuate said diaphragm.

1,631,584. DIRECT MIXER. FRANK DIETRICH, JOHN DIETRICH, and WILLIAM E. MINER, Chicago, Ill. Filed June 1, 1926. Serial No. 112,801. 6 Claims. (Cl. 221—74.)



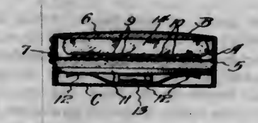
1. A mixer of the type described, comprising a container adapted to hold a leak-preventing fluid and having a relatively large filling opening in the top thereof, a detachable closure for said opening, said closure having means permitting air under pressure to be supplied to the container, said container being symmetrically tapered from top to bottom to facilitate the discharge of fluid therefrom, the bottom portion of said container converging to a funnel-shaped member, the discharge end of which extends laterally from said container and is provided with a valve to control the discharge of fluid from the container.

1,631,585. SCREEN PLATE. WILLIAM L. D'OLIER and THEODORE TOHLIN, Philadelphia, Pa.; said Tohlin assignor to said D'Olier. Filed Nov. 1, 1921. Serial No. 512,046. 1 Claim. (Cl. 210—169.)



A screen plate having a plurality of uniformly spaced parallel clearance spaces in the back thereof, said spaces being relatively long and narrow, and relatively long and narrow screening slits in the front of the plate and parallel to said spaces and arranged in groups, each group comprising a plurality of said slits side by side with the slits in each group communicating with one of said clearance spaces, the distance between the slits comprising each group being less than the distance between the groups.

1,631,586. VALVE. JOHN S. FORBES, Pittsburgh, Pa., assignor, by mesne assignments, to Kerotest Manufacturing Company, Pittsburgh, Pa., a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed May 9, 1923. Serial No. 637,653. 2 Claims. (Cl. 251—48.)

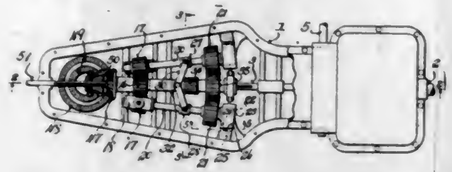


1. A valve including a body having a valve chamber therein, a plug screwed into the valve chamber, a valve stem having a hand wheel and a tang, said tang engaging the plug for turning it, a seating shoulder on the stem, a fibre washer in the valve body around the stem and above the seating shoulder, a mass of packing material above the fibre washer, a rigid member interposed between the fibre washer and the packing and vertically movable relatively to the stem, and a nut having a lower beveled portion to receive a portion of the mass of packing material, said nut acting to force the washer down into sealing relation with the seat and simultaneously compressing the mass of packing material about the stem.

1,631,587. PUZZLE OR GAME. ERNEST W. GATES, Needham, Mass. Filed Oct. 12, 1926. Serial No. 141,050. 5 Claims. (Cl. 273—116.)

1. A symbolic puzzle comprising a base on which balls may roll when the base is manipulated to incline it, a central depression in the base symbolizing a broadcasting station, a plurality of pockets in the base, grouped around the central depression, a continuous curb surrounding the portion of the base containing the depression and the pockets, a plurality of loose balls corresponding in number to the pockets and symbolizing radio signals, inscribed annunciator members associated with the pockets, each member being normally concealed and movable to a displayed position by a ball arrested by a pocket, each pocket and the accompanying annunciator member symbolizing a receiving station, and baffle members symbolizing static, projecting above the base and arranged to cause each ball to move in an irregular course from the central depression to a pocket, and to cause each ball to take a different course from that of any other ball, the relative arrangement of the central depression and the pockets being such that the manipulation of the base required to cause the movement of a ball to either pocket, differs from that required to cause the movement of a ball to any other pocket.

1,631,588. VANITY CASE. LESLIE J. GREENWALD, Chicago, Ill. Filed Dec. 13, 1926. Serial No. 154,331. 2 Claims. (Cl. 132—83.)



1. A vanity case in which is provided a loose material compartment having one side formed by a sifter plate wherein are parallel slits with intervening bars extending angularly in parallelism in a single direction whereby to present upper and lower edges sharply to the associated contents, and means whereby to press a body of loose material against one set of edges of such angular bars, substantially as described.

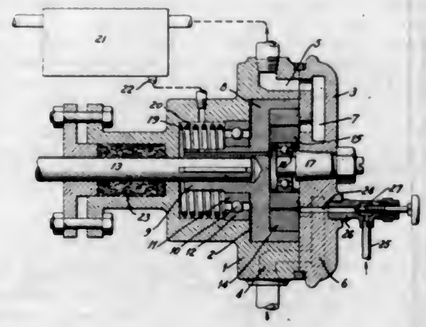
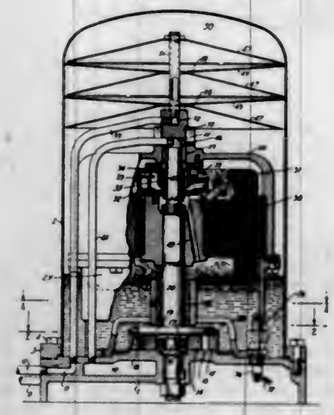
1,631,589. ANTHRAQUINONE PASTE AND METHOD OF MAKING THE SAME. WILLIAM M. GROSVENOR and VICTOR P. GERSHON, New York, N. Y.; said Gershon assignor to said Grosvenor. Filed Oct. 10, 1921. Serial No. 506,788. 9 Claims. (Cl. 260—57.)



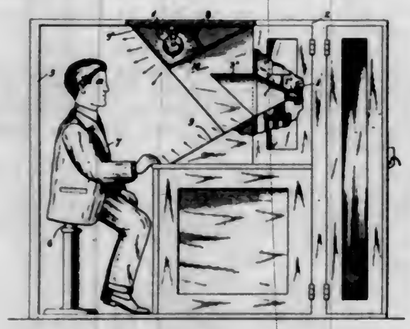
1. The improved anthraquinone paste, comprising a mixture of sublimed anthraquinone and water, and capable of holding about 80% of water without substantial separation thereof on standing.

1,631,590. TRANSMISSION MECHANISM. JAMES C. HEYDA, Pittsfield, Wis. Filed Oct. 11, 1926. Serial No. 140,860. 6 Claims. (Cl. 74—58.)



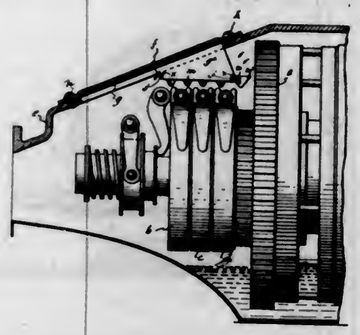
2. A transmission mechanism comprising a shaft having a sliding sleeve splined thereon provided with a large gear and a small gear, means for shifting said sleeve, a second shaft having a rigidly mounted gear, a pair of jack shafts pivotally mounted adjacent one end and provided with gears meshing with said last mentioned gear and having gears adapted to mesh with either the large gear or the small gear.

1,631,591. COMBINED LIQUID AND AIR PUMP. EBENEZER HILL, South Norwalk, Conn., assignor to The Hill Compressor & Pump Company, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed June 7, 1926. Serial No. 114,136. 5 Claims. (Cl. 103—6.)



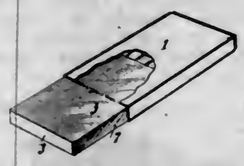
1. A rotary pump comprising a casing containing a pumping chamber, an annular toothed rotor and a pinion rotor rotatable in said chamber, said annular and pinion intermeshing and mounted in eccentric relation with the latter having fewer teeth than the former, whereby pockets that open and close are produced between the teeth as the rotors turn, a discharge port opening through the casing from the path of contracting pockets, and a plurality of intake ports opening through the casing to the path of the pockets, between the teeth as said pockets expand.

1,631,592. ROTARY PUMPING MACHINE. EBENEZER HILL, North Stamford, Conn., assignor to The Hill Compressor & Pump Company, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Sept. 1, 1926. Serial No. 132,941. 15 Claims. (Cl. 230—30.)



1. A pumping machine comprising intermeshing toothed pumping elements eccentric with relation to each other and mounted to rotate in a horizontal plane, a shaft extending vertically upward from the pump rotor, and an electric motor mounted above the pumping elements with its rotor fixed to said shaft and adapted to rotate in a horizontal plane with its weight transmitted by the shaft to the pump rotor.

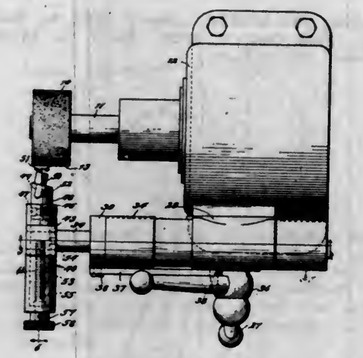
1,631,593. PHOTOGRAPHIC APPARATUS. ANATOL M. JOSEPHO, New York, N. Y., assignor to Photomaton Inc., New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Mar. 27, 1925. Serial No. 18,662. 4 Claims. (Cl. 95—82.)



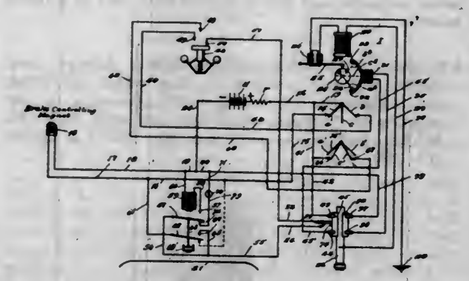
1. In photographic apparatus, lighting means comprising a lighting element, a light reflector disposed rearwardly of said lighting element and forwardly inclined relatively to the position of the subject to be photographed and a rearwardly inclined light reflector disposed below said first named mirror, as and for the purpose set forth.

1,631,594. OIL FILTER. EMIL KAEGI, Detroit, Mich., assignor to Dawson J. Burns, Bronxville, N. Y. Filed May 24, 1924. Serial No. 715,509. 4 Claims. (Cl. 184—11.)

2. In a vehicle power unit, the combination of a transmission case, a plurality of transmission elements including transmission bands and a fly wheel running in an oil well all contained within the transmission case, and a filtering unit removably supported in the transmission case, and comprising a plurality of filtering portions arranged each to drip the filtered oil over the transmission bands.



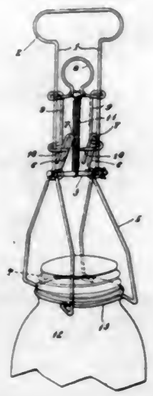
1,631,595. PAPER BOX. CARL H. KAPPES, New York, N. Y., assignor to Eberhard Faber Pencil Co., Brooklyn, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Jan. 22, 1923. Serial No. 614,062. 1 Claim. (Cl. 229—11.)



A packing and display box for pencils and the like, comprising a box member formed from a single blank, comprising a body portion having side flaps, a bottom covering flap integral with the body portion, and having side flaps, the corresponding side flaps of the body and covering flap overlapping for stiffening the box longitudinally, a top covering flap, hinged to the body portion at the other end of the blank, the total length of the two covering flaps being less than the length of the body portion, whereby a display opening it formed near the middle of the box, and a tubular cover slidable over the box member, the tubular cover being about half as long as the box member, whereby it will cover the display opening, or may be slid to the bottom end of the box member for uncovering the display opening and releasing the top covering flap for displaying the goods.

1,631,596. WHEEL-DRESSING MECHANISM. HERBERT E. KEMPTON, Fond du Lac, Wis., assignor to Giddings & Lewis Machine Tool Company, Fond du Lac, Wis., a Corporation of Wisconsin. Filed July 12, 1923. Serial No. 650,988. 10 Claims. (Cl. 125—11.)

1. A wheel dressing mechanism having, in combination, a pivotal body, lugs on said body, means for engaging said lugs to limit the pivotal movement of said body, means for locking said body in position, a reciprocable sleeve mounted in said body, means for reciprocating said sleeve, a rod adjustably mounted in said sleeve, a casing supported by said rod, a tool rod mounted in said casing, a cutting tool supported by said tool rod, and means for adjusting the position of said tool rod at right angles to the direction of reciprocation of said sleeve.



1,631,597. TRAIN-CONTROL SYSTEM. ALLEN B. KENDALL, Niagara Falls, and BENJAMIN W. MEISEL, Crestwood, N. Y., assignors to The Regan Safety Devices Company, Inc., New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Dec. 19, 1923. Serial No. 681,569. 18 Claims. (Cl. 246—182.)

1. In a manual-automatic speed control system for vehicles, a vehicle carried mechanism comprising a device for controlling the movement of the vehicle, an indicating means operable in response to roadside conditions for producing a "clear" or "non-clear" indication, means under the control of said indicating means in "clear" indicating position for producing a normal operation of the said device, additional means under the control of the speed of the train and of said indicating means in "non-clear" indicating position for controlling the operation of the said device so that when and only when the indicating means is changed from its "clear" to its "non-clear" position and the speed of the vehicle is at or below a permissive speed, the said device may be operated by intervention of the engineman to maintain its normal operation but without such intervention and with the change of the indicating means to the "non-clear" position the device will be automatically operated to reduce the speed of the vehicle, such automatic operation persisting regardless of the subsequent decrease of speed of the vehicle below the permissive speed, and manual means under the control of the engineman for operating the said additional means to restore the normal operation of the device when the speed of the vehicle has been reduced to or below the said permissive speed so as to permit vehicle movement at or below such speed.

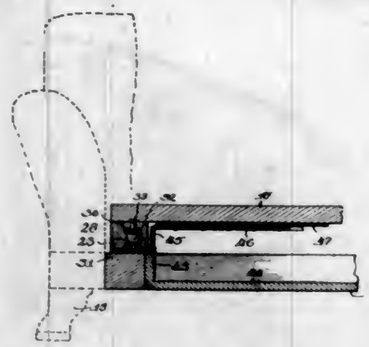
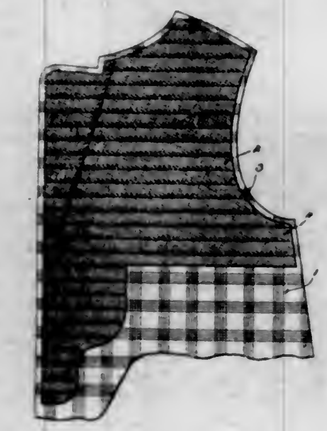
1,631,598. JAR LIFTER. JOHN F. LEHR, Sr., Baltimore, Md. Filed Nov. 10, 1926. Serial No. 147,406. 5 Claims. (Cl. 294—28.)

1. A jar lifter comprising a substantially vertical member, a depending bowed member rigid with respect to said vertical member, an oppositely bowed member pivoted to the lower part of said vertical member, opposite inwardly directed concaved jaws at the lower ends of said bowed members, and means to hold said jaws in gripping position.



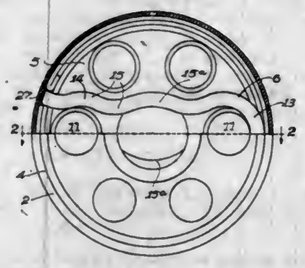
1,631,599. VARIABLE CONDENSER. AUGUST LEIB, Berlin, Germany, assignor to Gesellschaft für Drahtlose Telegraphie m. b. H., Berlin, Germany, a Corporation of Germany. Filed Sept. 14, 1923, Serial No. 662,612, and in Germany Aug. 17, 1922. 3 Claims. (Cl. 175—41.5.)

1. A variable condenser comprising a rotatable dielectric, a condenser plate fixed on one side of said dielectric, a stationary liquid condenser plate on the other side of said dielectric, and fluid means for preventing undesired motion of the liquid condenser plate, due to its sensitiveness to shock and vibration.



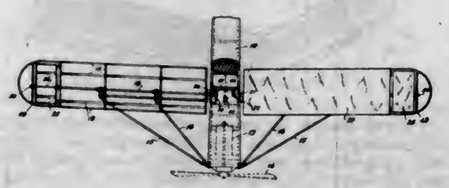
3. In combination, a panel having an opening therein and an annular bearing member fixed to said panel, a rotatable dial within said opening having an annular journal portion cooperating with said bearing member and also having a knob and an indicating portion extending from said knob to said journal portion, said dial containing means for varying a constant of an electric circuit.

1,631,600. DAVENPORT BED. THEODORE S. MORRISON, Chicago, Ill. Filed Aug. 14, 1924. Serial No. 731,977. 1 Claim. (Cl. 5—58.)



A davenport having a main frame and supporting legs adjacent the corners thereof, an upholstered seat portion, telescoping guide means at opposite ends of said seat portion permitting limited extension thereof substantially its own width forwardly of said main frame, a receptacle carried in fixed position on said main fr me between and below said guide means and beneath said seat portion, a removable cover for said receptacle hinged along the rear edge thereof, said frame having its sides formed of inverted L-shaped metal pieces extending vertically above said receptacle to a level with the top of said telescoping guide means, and being provided with resilient spring means substantially flush with the tops of said L-shaped pieces extending thereacross.

1,631,601. REENFORCED FABRIC FOR GARMENT CONSTRUCTION. ERNEST M. ORLOW, Milwaukee, Wis., assignor of one-half to Arthur J. Schmitt, Milwaukee, Wis. Filed Nov. 15, 1924. Serial No. 750,139. 1 Claim. (Cl. 2—97.)

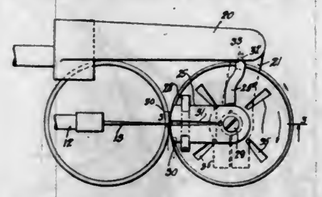


In a coat, the combination of a body portion formed of fabric with the threads running horizontally and vertically, a stiffener for the front thereof extending across the lapel to the arm pit and to the seam below the arm pit, said stiffener being formed of fabric with its threads running diagonally in all portions of the stiffener both in the lapel and in the body portion, and horizontal lines of stitching attaching said stiffener to said body portion.

1,631,602. SNAP FASTENER. JULIUS C. PETERSON, Elgin, Ill. Filed Apr. 10, 1922. Serial No. 551,167. 19 Claims. (Cl. 24—218.)

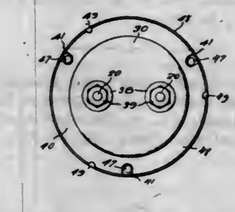
1. In a snap fastener socket, in combination, spaced discs, registering sewing holes in said discs, and lips bent down around the edges of said holes to define tubular passageways through both discs.

1,631,603. AEROPLANE. LAURENCE RAYNOLDS, New York, N. Y. Filed June 27, 1924. Serial No. 722,684. 4 Claims. (Cl. 244—12.)



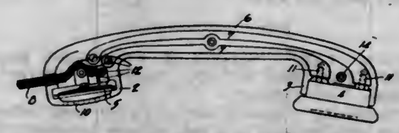
1. In an aeroplane, the combination of a fuselage, a plurality of main sustaining planes pivotally mounted thereon, mechanism whereby said main planes are capable of being swung as units on their pivots from normal sustaining positions through arcs of not less than 90° and locked in adjusted positions, ailerons combined with said planes and adjusting means independent of said mechanism for adjusting said ailerons independently of said main planes.

1,631,604. ROOFING ELEMENT. THOMAS ROBINSON, Babylon, N. Y., assignor to Anaconda Sales Company, a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Nov. 21, 1923. Serial No. 675,998. 3 Claims. (Cl. 91—68.)



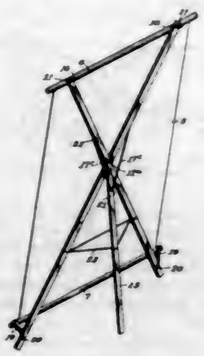
1. A roofing element which comprises a substantially rigid body of compressed cork particles bound together by the adhesive resinous constituents thereof, and a layer of finely divided metallic particles adhesively affixed to the surface of the body.

1,631,605. NEEDLE PLATE FOR FUR-SEWING MACHINES. HARRY ROSS, New York, N. Y., assignor to Fur Guide Machine Corporation, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Aug. 18, 1926. Serial No. 129,898. 4 Claims. (Cl. 112—16.)



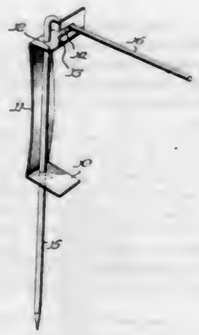
1. In a sewing machine, a bearing, a material feeding disk, rotatably mounted on the said bearing, a needle plate associated with the said feeding disk, a reciprocating needle associated with the disk, and a resilient member on the needle plate bearing against the disk to prevent the said disk from tipping upwardly into the path of the needle.

1,631,606. CASING FOR ELECTRICAL MEASURING INSTRUMENTS. WALTER M. SCOTT, Lakewood, and RALEIGH E. TRESISE, Cleveland, Ohio. Filed Jan. 7, 1922. Serial No. 527,552. 7 Claims. (Cl. 220—82.)



6. A casing for an instrument of the character set forth comprising two members, the abutting edges of each of said members being provided each with a flange and each of said flanges being provided with a plurality of apertures, the apertures in one of said flanges being adapted to align with the apertures in the other of said flanges, a plurality of projections formed on one of said flanges, the other of said flanges having a plurality of notches therein extending to and including the edge thereof, said projections being adapted to enter the last mentioned notches and engage the other flange through relative rotary movement of said members whereby to fasten said members together and bring the first mentioned notches in alignment whereby to receive means for preventing relative rotation of said members.

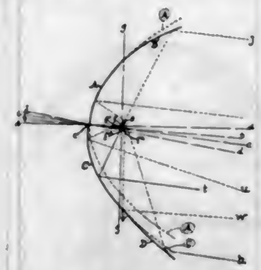
1,631,607. HAND TELEPHONE. OTTO SOLDAN, Berlin-Siemensstadt, Germany, assignor to Siemens & Halske Aktiengesellschaft Wernerwerk, Siemensstadt, near Berlin, Germany. Filed Sept. 11, 1925, Serial No. 55,641, and in Germany Dec. 5, 1924. 7 Claims. (Cl. 179—103.)



1. A hand telephone having a handle consisting of two detachably mutually connected halves, each half provided at its ends with hollow places for the reception of the microphone and receiver.

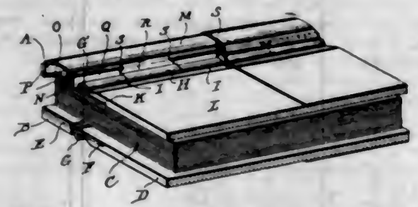
1,631,608. STAND FOR POSTERS. CHARLES F. WALLACE, Westfield, N. J., assignor to Wallace & Tiernan Products, Belleville, N. J., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed May 4, 1925. Serial No. 27,916. 18 Claims. (Cl. 40—125.)

17. In combination with a flexible poster, pivotally connected crossed braces for supporting the same in extended relation, a support for said braces and spring means for tensioning the braces and the support in the poster supporting position.



1,631,609. GAUGE AND SUPPORT FOR BARS. WILLIAM E. WHITE, Chicago, Ill., assignor to Kalman Steel Company, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Nov. 4, 1925. Serial No. 66,750. 9 Claims. (Cl. 91—8.)

1. In a device of the class described, the combination of a stake and a stop member, said stop member having a bowed body and laterally projecting apertured ends adapted to receive said stake, the bowed body being in contact with said stake.



1,631,610. LAMP. WILLIAM H. WOOD, South Euclid, Ohio. Filed June 20, 1924. Serial No. 721,148. 5 Claims. (Cl. 240—41.)

1. In a lamp, a concave one piece sheet metal reflector located with its main axis substantially horizontal, and a light source located therein and displaced above such axis, the upper heel portion of said reflector conforming substantially to a parabola whose axis coincides with the first named axis, the portions of said reflector adjacent its mouth and forward of said light source consisting of paraboloid segments leaned downwardly as regards the paraboloid surface defined by said heel portion, and the focal points of said sections all located in the region of the parameter of the paraboloid surface defined by said heel portion.

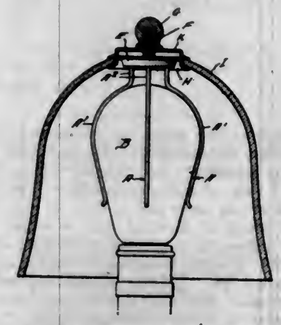
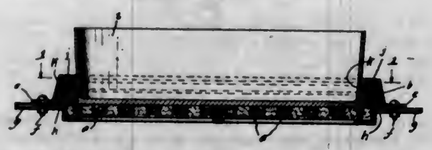
1,631,611. CASING AND METHOD OF MAKING THE SAME. CLINTON B. ALEXANDER, Washington, D. C. Filed Apr. 15, 1922. Serial No. 553,117. 17 Claims. (Cl. 129—23.)



13. The process of forming a binder casing comprising forming a channeled member with flat side walls in converging relation and a second channeled member with flat side walls in diverging relation, each of said channeled members being of uniform cross section from end to end, compressing together the end portions of the walls of said second channeled member and inserting them within an end of said first channeled member with said channeled members in inverted relation, and sliding said channeled members together longitudinally.

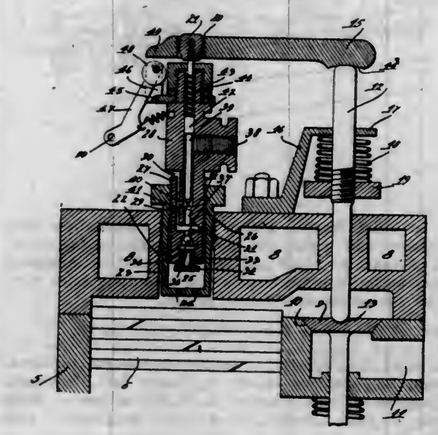
1,631,612. MACHINE FOR HARVESTING FLAX AND OTHER PLANTS. SIDNEY ALLINGHAM, London, England, assignor to Robert Boby Limited, Bury St. Edmunds, England, a British Company. Filed June 18, 1925. Serial No. 37,901, and in Great Britain Oct. 6, 1924. 3 Claims. (Cl. 55—66.)



1. In a travelling machine for uprooting flax and other fibre producing plants, means for erecting the stalks of said plants before their natural connection with the ground is disturbed, in combination with uprooting devices adapted to seize said stalks after erection, said erecting means comprising an endless flexible needle carrier adapted to move in a vertical plane, said carrier having an inclined operative portion travelling in a direction approximately opposite to that of the advance of the machine and a return portion vertically superposed over said inclined portion, said carrier being arranged obliquely in relation to the advance of the machine and provided with a series of substantially horizontal needles projecting transversely from the plane of the path of the carrier and pointing throughout their forward and return travel toward the ungathered crop, each of said needles being adapted to rise in free contact with any stalks of the crop it may encounter and to rub along said stalks lengthwise thereof to erect said stalks and then leave them free to be seized by said uprooting devices, the oblique arrangement of the carrier causing the needles thereon to be consecutively protruded beyond the side of the machine and retracted into the machine solely by the travel of said carrier.

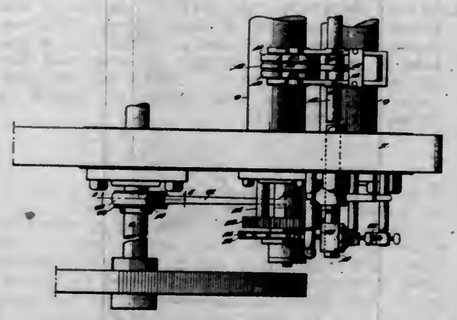
1,631,613. SHADE HOLDER. LAURITZ W. ANDERSEN, Waterbury, Conn. Filed July 18, 1925. Serial No. 44,432. 6 Claims. (Cl. 240—138.)

1. A shade holder comprising a plurality of bulb engaging wires having their upper ends bent at an angle, a center to which the upper ends of said wires are connected, said center comprising a pair of telescoping shells said wires being arranged between said shells with their angled ends effectng an interlocking engagement one with the other, a threaded stud connected to said center, and a detachable supporting member arranged upon said center and stud, and a knob screwed upon said stud and securing said member upon said center and stud.



1,631,614. HEATING DEVICE. HART W. ATWOOD, Portland, Oreg. Filed July 13, 1925. Serial No. 43,268. 6 Claims. (Cl. 219—43.)

1. An attachment for a heating element comprising a ring-like housing adapted to be mounted thereon, having substantial height, the interior diameter of said housing being of such size as to exactly accommodate the utensil to be heated, and heat resisting, resilient insulation included interiorly of said ring-like housing and adapted to form a heat seal with the exterior of said utensil.



1,631,615. INTERNAL-COMBUSTION ENGINE. JOSEPH EDW. BLANDINO, New London, Conn., assignor of one-half to Patrick B. McNamara, Groton, Conn. Filed Jan. 10, 1923. Serial No. 611,753. 3 Claims. (Cl. 123—33.)

1. An internal combustion engine including a cylinder, a hollow valve supporting member removably supported within the cylinder and having openings to establish communication between the cylinder and valve supporting member, a valve casing within the support, said valve casing having a longitudinal bore and having a lateral bore establishing communication between the first mentioned bore and atmosphere, a vertically movable valve in the bore for controlling the passage of fuel to the valve support, a rocker arm connected with the valve at a point intermediate the ends of the rocker arm, means at the outer end for moving the rocker arm to operate the valve, and adjustable means arranged adjacent to the valve casing for engagement with the rocker arm to throw the rocker arm into and out of operation.

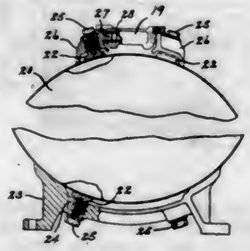
1,631,616. COUNTING AND INDICATING MECHANISM. ALBERT BROADMEYER, Harrisburg, Pa., assignor to W. O. Hickok Manufacturing Company, Harrisburg, Pa., a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Jan. 2, 1923. Serial No. 610,357. 7 Claims. (Cl. 93—93.)

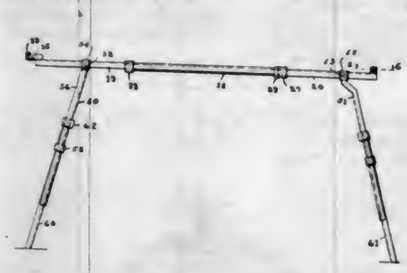
1. Article counting mechanism, comprising a movable indicting device, and means for operating it, including an endless flexible belt, means for giving a step-by-step movement to the belt, means for varying the amount of each step movement of the belt, an actuating element carried by the belt and an actuated element located in the path of the actuating element and connected to the indicating device.

1,631,617. SHEET-RETARDING MEANS FOR SHEET-FEEDING APPARATUS. ALBERT BROADMEYER, Harrisburg, Pa., assignor to The W. O. Hickok Mfg. Co., Harrisburg, Pa., a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Nov. 28, 1923. Serial No. 677,455. 12 Claims. (Cl. 271—18.)



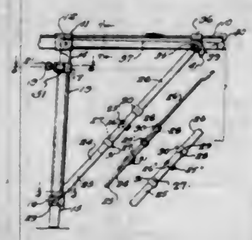
1. In sheet feeding apparatus, the combination with a support and means for delivering sheets therefrom, of a plurality of freely and relatively movable retarding fingers having a common mounting and by gravity resting on the sheets at different points.

1,631,618. UNDERLIFT. ALBERT BROADMEYER, Harrisburg, Pa., assignor to W. O. Hickok Mfg. Company, Harrisburg, Pa., a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed July 2, 1925. Serial No. 41,160. 11 Claims. (Cl. 33—39.)



1. The combination with a pen beam, of an underlift for a pen carried thereby, said underlift comprising a pen-engaging element and a flexible arm carrying the element, and means for flexing the arm to cause the element to engage and disengage the pen.

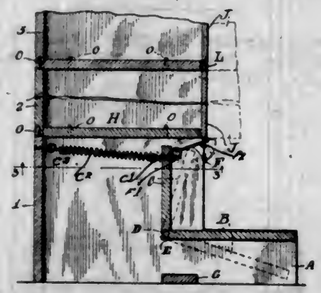
1,631,619. PUMPING APPARATUS. GEORGE A. BUSINGER and CLARENCE WARNER, Dayton, Ohio, assignors to Delco Light Company, Dayton, Ohio, a Corporation of Delaware. Original application filed Mar. 19, 1923, Serial No. 626,174. Divided and this application filed Aug. 25, 1924. Serial No. 733,875. 6 Claims. (Cl. 103—218.)



1. Pumping apparatus comprising in combination, a tank, a base structure, a pump support structure, and means for connecting one of said structures with the tank including a threaded member permanently attached to the tank and a threaded member co-operating therewith for securing the tank to one of said structures.

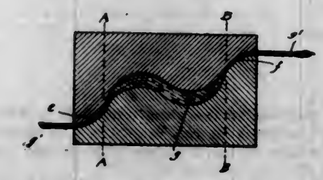
1,631,620. KNOCKDOWN BED FRAME FOR AUTOMOBILES. THOMAS E. CARRIGAN, Milwaukee, Wis. Filed Nov. 13, 1922. Serial No. 600,658. 5 Claims. (Cl. 5—114.)

1. A knock-down bed frame for automobiles comprising a pair of spaced longitudinally adjustable side members; a transversely adjustable end member vertically pivoted to one end of each of said side members; members vertically pivoted to the other end of each of said side members, one of which is provided with a recess; a second transversely adjustable end member pivotally carried by said vertically pivoted members for rotation about a horizontal axis; and slidable means carried by said second end member, adapted to enter said recesses and to prevent rotation of said end member.



1,631,621. KNOCKDOWN BED FRAME. THOMAS E. CARRIGAN, Milwaukee, Wis. Filed May 14, 1923. Serial No. 638,862. 6 Claims. (Cl. 5—316.)

3. In a bed frame of the class described, a substantially horizontal frame member; a leg pivotally connected to said frame member; a collar slidably mounted on said frame member; a collapsible brace having one of its ends pivotally secured to said leg and its other end pivotally secured to said collar; means for preventing the collapsing of said brace; and means for preventing said collar from sliding on said frame member relative to said leg pivot.



1,631,622. BOOKCASE. GEORGE BOWEN CLEVELAND, Mobile, Ala. Filed Oct. 22, 1925. Serial No. 64,265. 1 Claim. (Cl. 45—1.)

In a sectional book case, a base section open at the front, a pedal pivoted at its rear edge within the base section, a riser fixed to and extending upwardly from said rear edge, springs normally holding the pedal in substantially horizontal position and resisting depression of the pedal, book sections arranged one above the other with the lowermost book section resting on the base section, doors hinged to each of the book sections, the doors of each section being detachably connected to the doors of the adjacent section for simultaneous movement, and links connecting the doors of the lowermost book section with said riser.

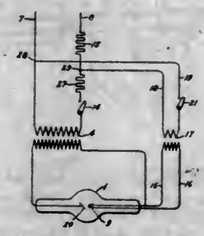
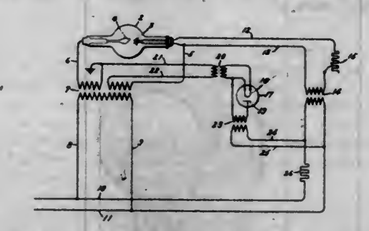
1,631,623. METHOD OF FORMING CUTTING TOOLS. ALBERT W. COCHRAN, Portland, Oreg. Filed July 13, 1925. Serial No. 43,285. 2 Claims. (Cl. 76—101.)



1. The improved method of producing a cutting tool consisting in placing a block of metal between companion dies whose working faces are shaped to form the tool to and including the cutting edge thereof and extended beyond said cutting edge to confine the flow of excess metal in substantial uniformity with the confinement at the cutting edge, whereby the grain of the metal is elongated through and beyond the cutting edge line to insure that said grain structure will be elongated transversely at the cutting edge line.

1,631,624. STAMPING AND REGISTERING APPARATUS. JAMES TIBURCE FELIX CONTI and PHILIPPE HENRI LOUIS TIRANTY, Paris, France. Filed Aug. 14, 1924, Serial No. 732,050, and in France Aug. 18, 1923. 8 Claims. (Cl. 101—328.)

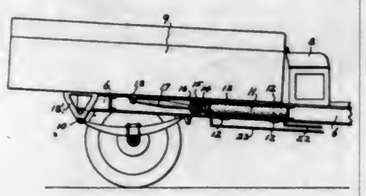


1. A stamping and registering apparatus comprising: a closed and sealed casing, an opening in said casing, a rotary printing cylinder mounted within said casing in such a manner as to project slightly from the outer plane of said opening, an inking roller, recesses and plain portions provided on the inking roller and the printing roller respectively, gearings provided between the inking roller and the printing cylinder in order to rotate both devices at the same rate, and means to prevent the printing roller turning backwards.

1,631,625. REGULATING METHOD AND APPARATUS. WILLIAM D. COOLIDGE, Schenectady, N. Y., assignor to General Electric Company, a Corporation of New York. Filed Jan. 30, 1923. Serial No. 615,952. 7 Claims. (Cl. 250—34.)

1. An apparatus for maintaining substantially constant voltage at chosen points in a circuit subject to voltage variations comprising a voltage-consuming device, an electron discharge device having substantially constant vacuum conditions, connections for supplying current from said circuit to said device in series with said voltage-consuming device, means for varying the current drawn by said discharge device in such measure when voltage variations occur in said circuit that the voltage drop in said voltage-consuming device will vary in magnified measure with said voltage variations and a second voltage-consuming device in said circuit between a point of connection of said voltage-consuming device and a point at which constant voltage is desired.

1,631,626. REGULATOR FOR ELECTRICAL DISCHARGES. WILLIAM D. COOLIDGE, Schenectady, N. Y., assignor to General Electric Company, a Corporation of New York. Filed Jan. 30, 1923. Serial No. 615,953. 10 Claims. (Cl. 250—34.)



1. The method of controlling the current value of an electron discharge which consists in producing an independent electron discharge, varying the current-carrying capacity of said second discharge in accordance with the variations of current to be regulated, producing a substantial drop of voltage by said second discharge proportional to the current value thereof, and varying the electron-generation at the cathode of said first discharge inversely with said voltage drop.

In a device of the class described a truck chassis frame including generally parallel, inwardly channelled frame members lying in a generally horizontal plane, a dumping body pivotally mounted at the rear of said truck chassis frame and arranged to rest upon the frame when in normal position, and means for raising and lowering said body about said pivot, including a plurality of hydraulic cylinders and pistons therein, said cylinders and pistons being located within the space bounded by the horizontal planes in which lie the upper and lower edges of the frame members, an actuating connection between the outer ends of said pistons and the dump body, and rollers connected with the free ends of the piston rods, riding in the chassis frame member channels, and adapted to guide the pistons in parallelism with said channels.

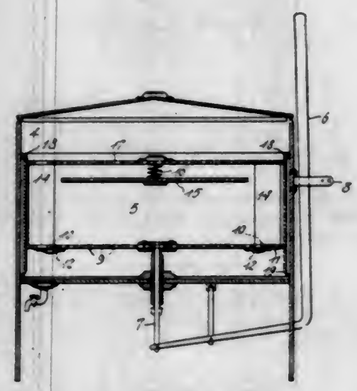
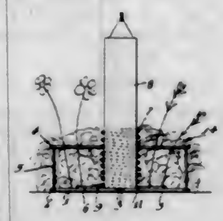
1,631,628. COLORING GRANULATED MINERAL, PARTICULARLY SLATE. HARRY C. FISHER, Cincinnati, Ohio, assignor to The Richardson Company, Lockland, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed July 21, 1925. Serial No. 45,133. 4 Claims. (Cl. 91—70.)



1. In a process of coloring mineral granules, those steps which consist in wetting mineral granules sufficiently to coat them with a water solution of silicate together with an insoluble pigment in minute division, and then roasting the mineral with agitation, to a heat which shows a reddish color.

1,631,629. WINDSHIELD CLEANER. FREDERICK G. FOLBERTH and WILLIAM M. FOLBERTH, Cleveland, Ohio, assignors to Trico Products Corporation, Buffalo, N. Y. Filed Mar. 21, 1923. Serial No. 626,654. 13 Claims. (Cl. 121—164.)



1. In a suction operated motor for windshield cleaners, a casing, a piston member arranged in said casing, said casing being provided with a slot, wiper actuating member extending through said slot and connected to said piston member, and means for normally closing said slot.

1,631,630. WASHING MACHINE. FRANK J. GENSLEY, Victor, Iowa. Filed July 2, 1923. Serial No. 649,076. 2 Claims. (Cl. 68—37.)

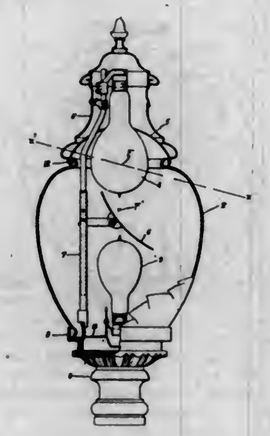
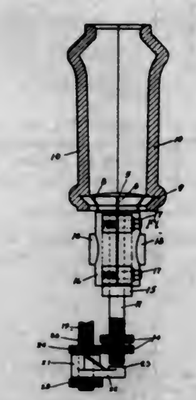
1,631,631. TABLE DECORATION. GERTRUDE GERLINGER, Montebello, Calif. Filed Feb. 16, 1926. Serial No. 88,532. 4 Claims. (Cl. 41—12.)



1. A table decoration consisting of a holder formed of wire and operating to hold moss or the like, and a candle-holder attached to the moss-holder and disposed within the same so that the candle-holder is surrounded by the moss held in the moss-holder.

1,631,632. LIGHTING UNIT. CROMWELL A. B. HALVORSON, Jr., Lynn, Mass., assignor to General Electric Company, a Corporation of New York. Filed Feb. 28, 1925. Serial No. 12,425. 1 Claim. (Cl. 240—25.)



In a lighting unit, an ellipsoidal reflector and a pair of light sources located along the axis of the reflector, an auxiliary concave reflector located across said axis, one of said light sources being located at one of the focal regions of the ellipsoidal reflector, said auxiliary reflector having a focal region coincident with another focal region of the ellipsoidal reflector, said ellipsoidal reflector serving to produce a beam along the axis of the unit and the auxiliary reflector serving to produce a beam diverging from the axis of the unit.

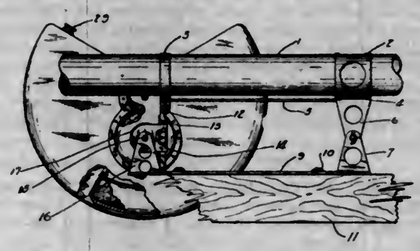
1,631,633. GLASS-FORMING APPARATUS. ORIN A. HANFORD, Columbus, Ohio, assignor to The Federal Glass Company, Columbus, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed July 9, 1923. Serial No. 650,337. 6 Claims. (Cl. 49—65.)

1. In a device for forming hollow glass articles the combination of a mold and a bottom plate, said bottom plate having a molding surface of plaster of Paris.



1,631,634. BRAIDING CARRIER. ARTHUR C. HOPKINS, Niles, Mich. Filed Sept. 10, 1925. Serial No. 55,467. 4 Claims. (Cl. 96—18.)

1. In a braiding carrier, a base, a standard rising therefrom, a laterally projecting arm adapted to receive a spool of wire, a sheave and a guide adjacent the spool, a lever arm adapted to swing about an axis substantially coincident with the axis of the spool, a sheave carried thereby, means for braking said spool including a member having an annular groove operably associated with said spool, a brake shoe operable in said groove, a plunger operable by said lever, a member operably connected to said brake shoe and operable by said plunger to release said braking means.

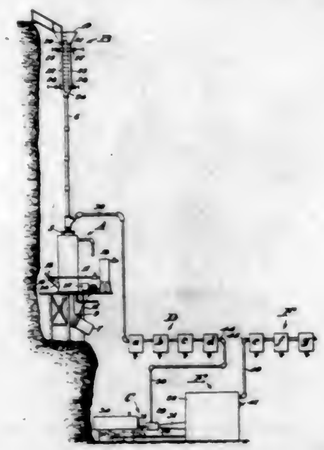
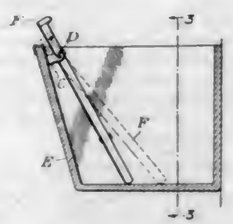
1,631,635. PENDULUM-CONTROLLED SIGHT. ROBERT KAUCH, Dayton, Ohio. Filed Feb. 13, 1923. Serial No. 618,822. 5 Claims. (Cl, 33—46.5.)



1. In a device of the character described, a mobile base, a sight member pivotally mounted on said base, a pendulum whose motion relative to said base is adapted to move said sight member to control the angular relation of said sight to said mobile base, and reduction gear means between said pendulum and said sight member controlling the degree of movement of the pendulum to be transmitted to said sight member.

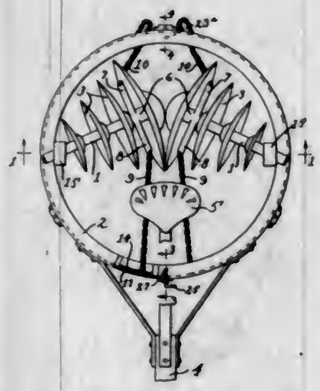
1,631,636. VARIABLE CONDENSER. EARLE BARNES LEWIS, Waterbury, Conn. Filed June 17, 1925. Serial No. 37,700. 8 Claims. (Cl. 250—41.)



8. In a variable condenser having alternately arranged movable and stationary contact plates, a supporting frame, a post for supporting said stationary plates, said post having a recess in its end, and an insulated ball seated in said recess, said supporting frame having a seat for the outer side of said ball, whereby electrical leakage will be reduced to the minimum.

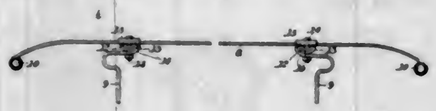
1,631,637. PROCESS OF DISTILLING OIL SHALE. CARL T. LOUGHREY, Los Angeles, Calif. Filed May 5, 1921. Serial No. 467,157. 1 Claim. (Cl. 202—16.)

The method of distilling oil shale consisting in moving a column of finely divided oil shale in a downward direction introducing a heating medium into the column of shale to distill the shale, withdrawing the distillation vapors by suction in a direction opposite to the direction of the moving column of shale, directing a liquid under pressure into the withdrawn distillation vapors so as to create said vacuum, collecting the liquid with the absorbed distillation vapors, recirculating said liquid to the point of injection of the liquid into the distillation vapors.



1,631,638. ADJUSTABLE WASHBOARD SUPPORT. EMMA A. MCCLAFERTY, Los Angeles, Calif. Filed Apr. 6, 1926. Serial No. 100,071. 1 Claim. (Cl. 68—29.)

In a wash board support, a body member provided with means for engaging the top edge of a tub, slotted ears projecting inwardly from said body member, a wash board having pins projecting outwardly from each side of said board and adapted to engage the slots in said ears to hold the board at various predetermined angles to suit the requirements of the user.



1,631,639. DITCHING MACHINE. WILLIAM H. MCDONALD, Overton, Nev. Filed June 21, 1926. Serial No. 117,304. 5 Claims. (Cl. 37—98.)

1. In a ditching machine, the combination of a frame adapted to be drawn over the ground, a pair of shafts supported on the frame and converging toward each other toward the rear of the frame, said shafts having a plurality of cutter discs of different diameters with the larger discs disposed toward the rear ends of the shafts, and means connecting the rear ends of the shafts with the frame for limiting their rearward movement.

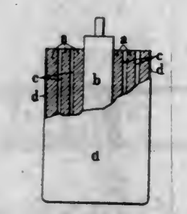
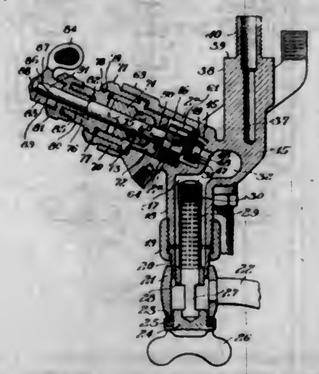
1,631,640. AUTOMOBILE BUMPER. WILLIAM R. MCGOWEN, McKees Rocks, Pa., assignor to United States Chain & Forging Company, Pittsburgh, Pa., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Oct. 8, 1926. Serial No. 140,303. 13 Claims. (Cl. 293—55.)



1. Bumper structure, comprising an impact-receiving bar having an offset portion intermediate its ends, a member formed to fit said offset portion, and means for securing said member to a supporting member.

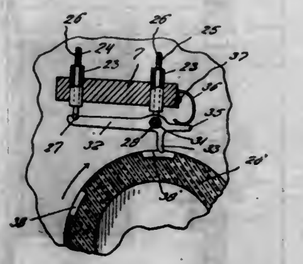
1,631,641. CUTTING TOOL. JOHN H. MONTGOMERY, Hartford, Conn. Filed Mar. 1, 1923. Serial No. 622,231. 8 Claims. (Cl. 29—95.)



1. A cutting tool comprising a body, a rib extending spirally about said body, and a cutting edge forming the cutting extremity of said rib and straight from its inner to its outer edge, said cutting edge being formed with an angle gradually varying in degree along said edge from one end to the other thereof.

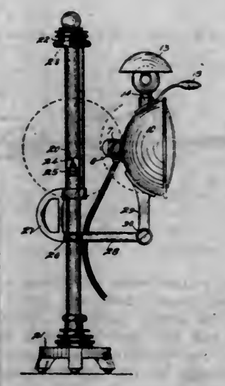
1,631,642. POSITIVE ELECTRODE FOR ELECTRIC BATTERIES. RENÉ OPPENHEIM, Levallois-Perret, France, assignor to Société Anonyme le Carbone, Levallois-Perret, France. Filed Jan. 3, 1925, Serial No. 428, and in France Nov. 19, 1924. 9 Claims. (Cl. 136—136.)

1. A process of manufacturing positive electrodes with an agglomerated depolarizer for electric batteries consisting in preparing a depolarizing composition by mixing manganese dioxide, plumbago and wood charcoal, moistening the said mixture with a concentrated solution of ammonium chloride, compressing this composition tightly around the carbon positive electrode, forming in this agglomerate channels designed to permit of the access of the outer air to the interior of the depolarizing composition, evaporating the liquid with which this latter is moistened, covering the external surface of the depolarizing agglomerate with a colloidal pectized coating.



1,631,643. VALVE. ALPHONSE F. PIEPER, Rochester, N. Y. Filed June 23, 1924. Serial No. 721,685. 7 Claims. (Cl. 277—7.)

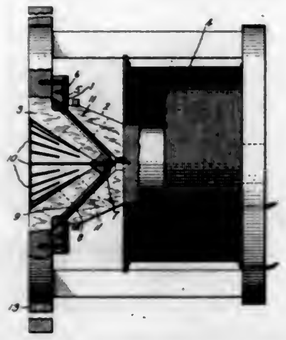
1. A multiple valve comprising a casing having a valve chamber therein provided with an inlet port and spaced outlet ports, a rotary spindle extending into said chamber, a valve body rotated by said spindle for cooperation with said outlet ports and movable toward and from the latter transversely of said spindle, said parts being arranged for connecting said outlet ports selectively with said inlet port and spring means connecting said spindle and valve body for maintaining the latter in contact with the chamber wall in which said outlet ports are formed.



7. In a multiple valve, a casing having a plurality of outlets and a supply passage, valve means controlling said outlets and passage, a supply line communicating with said passage and having an external opening in line with the latter, and a detachable screen unit comprising a sleeve threadedly engaged with the casing between said passage and supply line, a cylinder of foraminous material fixed on the sleeve and extending into said passage and having a detachable inner end closure, an externally accessible head for supporting said screen and closing said supply line opening through which said screen is inserted and removed, and means connecting said head and sleeve arranged to afford communication from said supply line to the interior of said screen cylinder.

1,631,644. TIME-OPERATED CIRCUIT CLOSER. GEORGE F. RAUCH, Pukwana, S. Dak. Filed May 19, 1925. Serial No. 31,827. 2 Claims. (Cl. 200—27.)

1. A circuit closing mechanism, comprising a supporting structure, a bar member mounted on said supporting structure, a plurality of circuit closing mechanisms mounted in spaced relation on said bar member, each of said mechanisms including a pair of insulating sleeves mounted in spaced relation in the bar member, rods mounted in said insulating sleeves, said rods having lateral projections from corresponding ends thereof, a switch member pivotally mounted on the lateral extension of one of said rods and formed for engagement with the lateral extension of the other rod, said switch member having a lateral extension therefrom, and resilient means mounted on the bar member normally engaging the switch member to operate said switch member to engage the lateral extension of the bar member.



1,631,645. ILLUMINATING AND HEATING DEVICE. JAY J. REKAR, Los Angeles, Calif. Filed Jan. 31, 1925. Serial No. 6,044. 12 Claims. (Cl. 219—34.)

1. In combination, in an electric, portable heater, a supporting column, a handled slide, having a bracket arm, on said column, and a heating structure adjustably supported on the slide to change the angle of direction of the heat beam, said slide being counterbalanced on the column.

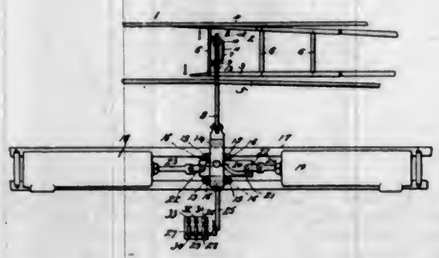
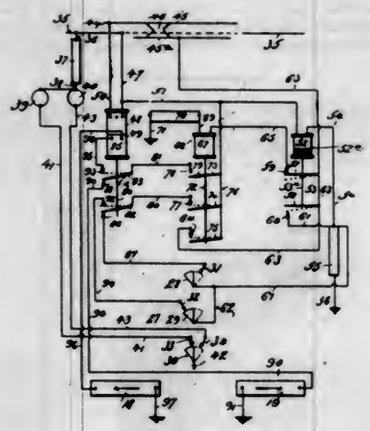
1,631,646. SOUND-REPRODUCING APPARATUS. CHESTER W. RICE, Schenectady, N. Y., assignor to General Electric Company, a Corporation of New York. Filed Mar. 27, 1924. Serial No. 702,452. 17 Claims. (Cl. 179—115.)

1. The combination in a sound reproducing apparatus of a diaphragm, actuating means for said diaphragm and a baffle surrounding said diaphragm, said baffle having such configuration as to materially decrease the solid angle into which energy will be radiated from said diaphragm without at the same time introducing resonant effects which would modify materially the sound reproduction.



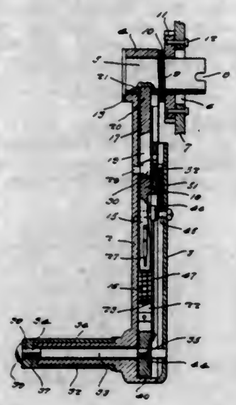
12. A diaphragm for sound reproduction comprising a sheet of rubber of conical form in which an actuating coil is embedded, said diaphragm having at its base a flange formed by an extension of the rubber sheet, said flange extending at a right angle to the axis of the diaphragm.



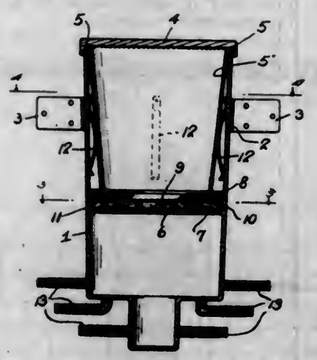
1,631,647. CURRENT MOTOR. HARVEY W. ROBINSON, New Orleans, La. Filed Sept. 29, 1925. Serial No. 59,425. 1 Claim. (Cl. 170—104.)

In a current motor device comprising a float, an undershot wheel, and current deflecting plates arranged to cooperate with the wheel, one plate extending rearwardly of the wheel and one plate extending forwardly of the wheel, means for pivotally connecting the plates in spaced relationship to the wheel, consisting of a supporting element secured in a suitable location to the float underneath the wheel, the inner edge of both the forward and rear plate being pivoted to the supporting element, and means for raising and lowering the plates.

1,631,648. SWITCH AND SIGNAL SYSTEM. ROBERT M. ROBINSON, Louisville, Ky., assignor to Cheatham Electric Switching Device Co. Inc., Louisville, Ky., a Corporation of Kentucky. Filed Mar. 29, 1923. Serial No. 628,573. 13 Claims. (Cl. 246—228.)



13. In an electric switch operating device a solenoid for operating a track switch, a source of power, a trolley pan; a normally energized slow release relay controlling the operation of said solenoid and means for shunting said slow release relay controlled by the position of the track switch.



1,631,649. ANTIKICK AUTO CRANK. NELS SALO, Watton, Mich. Filed July 30, 1926. Serial No. 125,989. 2 Claims. (Cl. 123—185.)

2. An anti-kick automobile crank comprising in combination, a rotatable crank bar, a hollow body member, a sleeve formed on the upper end of the hollow body member and rotatably mounted on the crank bar, a slidable plunger mounted in the upper portion of the hollow body member, said crank bar being provided with a notch for the reception of the upper end of said plunger member whereby the hollow body member will be locked to the crank bar for simultaneous actuation, means for normally urging the slidable plunger member upwardly into cooperative relation with said crank bar, a pawl and ratchet mechanism for releasing the plunger from said notch when a back fire occurs, means for retaining the slidable plunger in a retracted position, and additional means for actuating the last mentioned means to effect the return of the slidable plunger to its normal position.

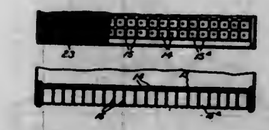
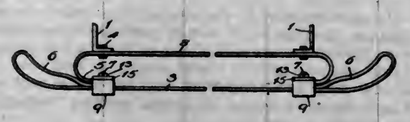
1,631,650. LUBRICATING MEANS FOR AUTOMOBILE CHASSIS. DALE M. SIX, Los Angeles, Calif. Filed Oct. 23, 1925. Serial No. 64,458. 1 Claim. (Cl. 184—7.)



A lubricating reservoir of the character set forth, comprising an outer casing having supports thereon, an annular flange internally secured to the sides of the casing above the lowermost wall thereof, an oil container supported by the annular flange, a filtering member seated on the flange beneath the container, an adhesive ring seated upon the filtering member and having an aperture therein registering with an outlet aperture in the container, resilient means retaining the oil container in spaced relation to the interior walls of the casing, and nipples on the lower part of the casing.

1,631,651. METHOD OF MAKING TUBING. CHARLES SKOGLUND, Lynn, Mass., assignor to General Electric Company, a Corporation of New York. Filed Jan. 31, 1922. Serial No. 533,072. 10 Claims. (Cl. 91—68.)

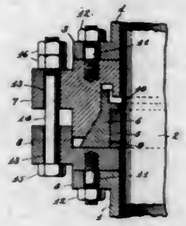


2. The method of giving tubular form to fabric tubing flattened into a ribbon which consists in inserting a ball in the tubing, and then passing the tubing through a die so as to force the ball therethrough.

1,631,652. SUCTION DEVICE FOR MICA COATING MACHINES. RICHARD SPRENGER and HERMANN CONRADT, Hennigsdorf, Germany, assignors to General Electric Company, a Corporation of New York. Filed Oct. 17, 1925, Serial No. 63,157, and in Germany Jan. 9, 1925. 4 Claims. (Cl. 154—25.)

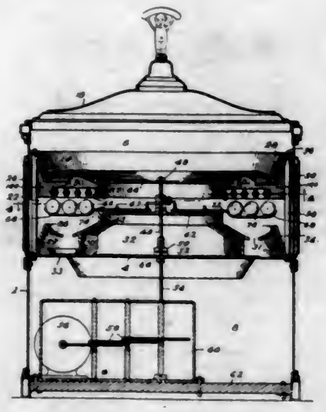
1. A suction device for mica coating machines and the like, comprising a member provided with a plurality of apertures arranged to present a high resistance to the entrance of air when uncovered, said apertures being enlarged at their outer ends to give high holding effect and being mechanically independent of each other so that one or more may be uncovered without opening the adjacent apertures.

1,631,653. BUMPER. OSCAR E. STOKES, Streator, Ill. Filed Nov. 19, 1923. Serial No. 675,579. 18 Claims. (Cl. 293—55.)



1. A bumper comprising a pair of bars, a tie member having its free ends turned back and slotted, a strip adapted to be arranged longitudinally of said tie member and having bolt holes therethrough, bolts extended through the ends of said bars and through said slots to interconnect said parts, and means on said tie member engageable to lock said bolt against rotation.

1,631,654. PACKING RING. OSKAR STOFFEL, Baden, Germany. Filed Feb. 3, 1922, Serial No. 533,837, and in Germany July 30, 1921. 1 Claim. (Cl. 286—39.)



The combination with a tubular member and perforated lugs projecting therefrom, of a packing including a packing ring, a contractile metal ring receiving the packing ring and holding the same against longitudinal expansion, a longitudinally movable outer ring, a second outer ring with which the first outer ring and said contractile ring telescopes, said last-mentioned ring being secured respectively to said lugs, means guiding the first outer ring and holding the same against possibility of radial expansion, said first outer ring and said contractile ring having longitudinally beveled or tapering engaging faces, and means for moving the outer ring longitudinally.

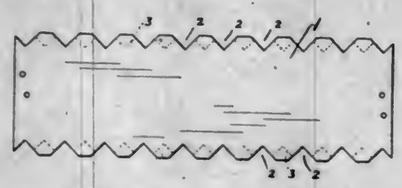
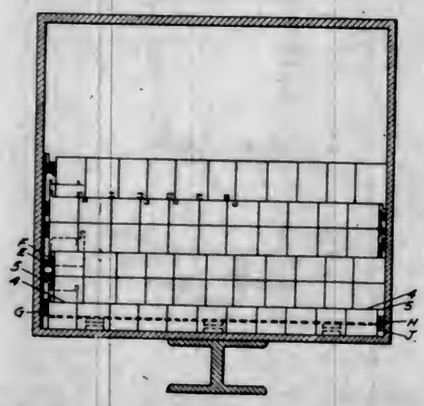
1,631,655. BROILING APPARATUS. JAMES C. SUNDERLAND and JOHN F. COSTELOW, Kansas City, Mo. Filed Apr. 19, 1926. Serial No. 102,950. 8 Claims. (Cl. 126—41.)



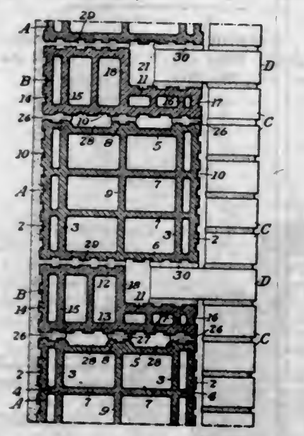
1. In an apparatus of the character described, an oven having an opening in its lower portion, an unbalanced carrier having horizontally disposed fingers for supporting food and arranged to travel around in said oven and dump the food at said opening, and means for restoring and retaining said carrier in normal position throughout the remainder of each revolution.

1,631,656. COMBINED MATTRESS AND BEDPAN. HELOISE SWEENEY, Richmond, Va. Filed July 24, 1926. Serial No. 124,733. 1 Claim. (Cl. 4—112.)



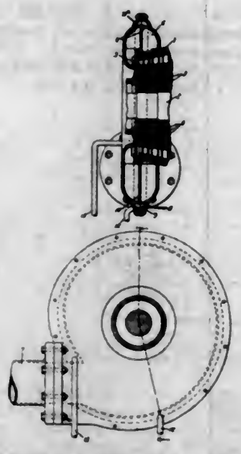
As a new article of manufacture, a bed pan especially adapted for use in association with a bed mattress, said pan comprising comparatively shallow receptacle of general rectangular configuration provided with an outstanding marginal supporting ledge provided at one end with a confining flange overhanging the bottom in spaced relation, said flange being shaped to conform to a part of the body adapted to contact it, a hingedly mounted plate at the opposite end of the receptacle adapted to be disposed in an upright position to function as an antisplash guard, said plate being provided with end stops to limit the downward swinging movement and to maintain it in flush relation with the top of the receptacle, and keeper pins carried by the side walls of the receptacle, together with pivotally mounted longitudinally bowed slotted retainers cooperable with said pins for maintaining said plate in operative position.

1,631,657. METHOD OF MAKING SAWS. LEWIS E. SWETT, York, Pa., assignor to Pennsylvania Stamping Corporation, York, Pa., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Oct. 23, 1925. Serial No. 64,394. 2 Claims. (Cl. 76—29.)



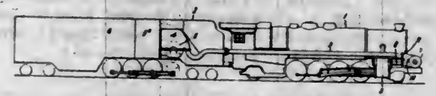
2. The method of making saws which consists in die cutting alternate tooth root spaces on both edges of a blank at a single operation, thereby providing burrs, inverting the blank, die cutting intermediate tooth root spaces on each edge of the blank at a single operation, thereby providing oppositely arranged burrs setting the teeth appropriately for presenting a burred portion of each tooth on the leading faces of the teeth, and separating the blank into two saws.

1,631,658. PROCESS OF LOADING BATTERY BOXES. HERBERT TREPZGER, Melrose Park, Ill., assignor to The Richardson Company, Lockland, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed July 16, 1925. Serial No. 43,986. 9 Claims. (Cl. 105—369.)



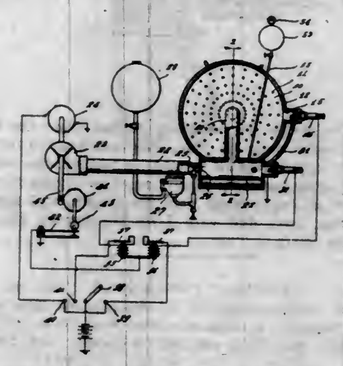
9. That process of packing battery boxes for shipment in a car which consists in disposing strips to hold rows of nested boxes in tiers of rows of alternately inverted and upright rows of boxes, with the handles of the boxes in the rows extended within boxes in adjacent rows and interspaced from end and compartment walls of the boxes in said adjacent rows, and providing blocks to support the strips to permit them to bear yieldingly against the rows of boxes.

1,631,659. WALL CONSTRUCTION. ROBERT G. WALLACE, Ben Avon, Pa., assignor to National Fire Proofing Company, Pittsburgh, Pa., a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Oct. 14, 1924. Serial No. 743,539. 3 Claims. (Cl. 72—41.)



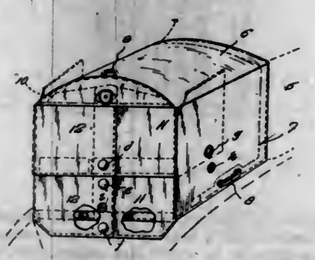
1. A composite wall comprising a brick facing on the outer face thereof, formed of a plurality of stretcher courses between spaced header courses, and a backing formed of alternate courses of hollow main and header tiles, the header tiles having recesses into which the inner portions of the header bricks of the facing extend, there being a web in each tile in close proximity to and parallel with the outer wall of each tile, at the inner face of the wall structure and sufficiently close to said outer walls of the tiles and the inner plane of the wall, that if the outer walls of some of the tiles spall off, the load bearing portions of the tiles from the webs of the said spalled tiles to the faces of the tiles adjacent to the brick facing will be of sufficient strength to support the load for which the wall was designed.

1,631,660. ELASTIC-FLUID TURBINE. GLENN B. WARREN, Schenectady, N. Y., assignor to General Electric Company, a Corporation of New York. Filed Nov. 5, 1925. Serial No. 67,134. 9 Claims. (Cl. 253—76.)



1. The combination with an elastic fluid turbine of an admission chamber from which elastic fluid is supplied to the turbine, said chamber having a curved wall, means for directing elastic fluid along said wall, means providing an annular liquid discharge chamber adjacent the first-named chamber and separated therefrom by said wall, and a slot in said wall connecting said chambers.

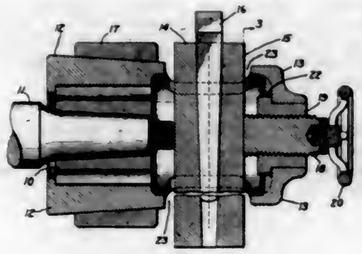
1,631,661. LOCOMOTIVE. GLENN B. WARREN, Schenectady, N. Y., assignor to General Electric Company, a Corporation of New York. Filed Dec. 30, 1925. Serial No. 78,430. 5 Claims. (Cl. 105—38.)



1. The combination with a locomotive comprising a high pressure engine, a low pressure condensing turbine, and auxiliaries, of a turbo-generator set for supplying power to drive the auxiliaries, said turbo-generator set and low pressure turbine being operated by exhaust elastic fluid from the high pressure engine.

1,631,662. OIL BURNER. JARL M. WEYDELL, Indianapolis, Ind., assignor of one-half to Edward E. Stout, Indianapolis, Ind. Filed Oct. 23, 1922. Serial No. 596,234. 19 Claims. (Cl. 158—28.)

1. In combination, a cup, a spark-plug having its electrodes within said cup, an air tube having its discharge end in position to blow air from a distance into the mouth of said cup, means for producing a blast of air through said air tube, and a fuel nozzle in position to discharge fuel into said air blast.



1,631,663. MOTOR-VEHICLE HOOD COVER. CHARLES WILHELM, Bayville, N. J. Filed Nov. 3, 1925. Serial No. 66,571. 3 Claims. (Cl. 257—132.)

1. An automobile hood cover comprising a body including an arched top shaped to conform to the top of the hood and radiator, a pair of depending side walls to cover the sides of said hood, a web depending from the forward end of said top, a pair of swingably mounted radiator flaps carried by the forward ends of the side walls, the adjacent edges of said flaps being disposed in overlapping relation with the upper ends located beneath said web when said flaps are in operative position, and means for detachably connecting the overlapping ends of said flaps together.

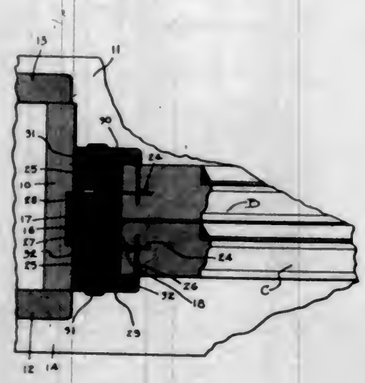
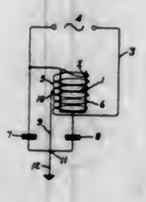
1,631,664. PINION PULLER. JAMES L. WILLIAMSON, Schenectady, N. Y., assignor to General Electric Company, a Corporation of New York. Filed July 17, 1924. Serial No. 726,620. 4 Claims. (Cl. 29—85.)



2. In a device for removing pinions from the ends of motor shafts and the like, the combination of longitudinally tapered jaws formed to engage the pinion, a ring engaging the tapered portion of said jaws for clamping them in engagement with the pinion, and means between the shaft and said jaws for forcing the pinion along the shaft.

1,631,665. ELECTRIC CONDENSER. WALTER R. G. BAKER, Schenectady, N. Y., assignor to General Electric Company, a Corporation of New York. Filed Feb. 7, 1921. Serial No. 442,942. 4 Claims. (Cl. 175—41.)



1. A device of the character described comprising condenser elements and a housing therefor containing fusible insulating material in which said elements are embedded, said housing comprising a metallic casing connected with one terminal of said condenser elements, a removable metallic cover plate for said casing having a central opening therein secured to said casing, a mica sheet secured to said plate to cover said opening, and a terminal member connected with the opposite terminal of said condenser elements and secured to said mica sheet centrally of said opening.

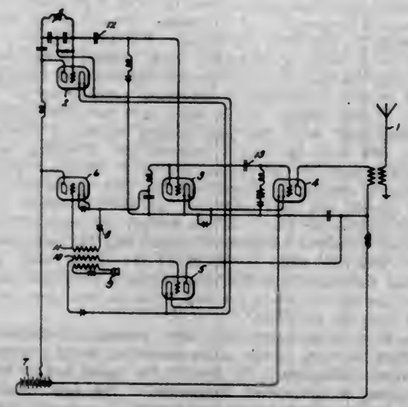
1,631,666. WINDOW. CHARLES E. BATEMAN, Minneapolis, Minn. Filed Oct. 5, 1926. Serial No. 139,630. 4 Claims. (Cl. 20—52.)

1. A window comprising a frame, a column positioned along said frame, a pair of sashes slidably mounted within said frame having the edges of the stiles thereof abutting against said column, one stile overreaching said column at one side thereof and the other stile overreaching the column at its other side, sliding friction strips attached to said sashes and adapted to co-act with said column, and guide strips attached to the sides of said column for bringing said sliding friction strips in frictional engagement therewith.

1,631,667. ELECTRIC-FURNACE SYSTEM. JOHANNES BECKMANN, Charlottenburg, Germany, assignor to General Electric Company, a Corporation of New York. Filed Mar. 3, 1927, Serial No. 172,446, and in Germany Aug. 19, 1926. 4 Claims. (Cl. 204—64.)

1. The combination with a high frequency electric furnace, of a high frequency coil therefor divided into sections, and condensers connected across said sections.

1,631,668. METHOD OF MAKING MOLDED ARTICLES. WILLIAM N. BAGGS, Pittsfield, Mass., assignor to General Electric Company, a Corporation of New York. Filed Jan. 2, 1926. Serial No. 78,780. 6 Claims. (Cl. 18—55.)

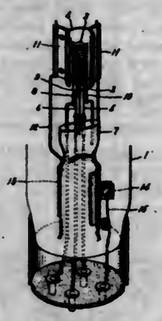


1. The method of forming a molded article which consists in loosely assembling a plurality of layers of sheet material, compressing said layers edgewise while cold into a solid mass having approximately the dimensions desired, and then further compressing said mass uniformly in all directions in a heated mold.

1,631,669. ELECTRIC FUSE. GEORGE R. BROWN, Bridgeport, Conn., assignor to General Electric Company, a Corporation of New York. Filed June 13, 1924. Serial No. 719,776. 2 Claims. (Cl. 200—135.)

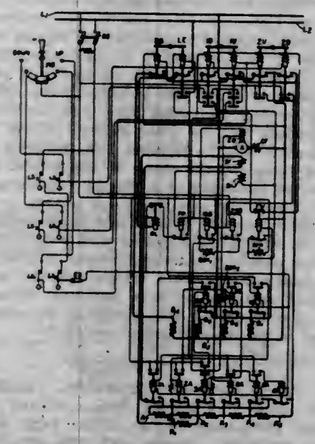
1. A unitary fuse link comprising a sheet of metal having longitudinal apertures of differing lengths in the body thereof to provide multiple bars of different conductive capacities.

1,631,670. HIGH-FREQUENCY SIGNALING SYSTEM. IRVING F. BYRNES, Schenectady, N. Y., assignor to General Electric Company, a Corporation of New York. Filed May 11, 1925. Serial No. 29,304. 5 Claims. (Cl. 179—171.)



1. A transmitting apparatus for a high frequency signaling system comprising a source of high frequency oscillations, an amplifying tube having a plate circuit which includes an impedance of such value that normally substantially no current will flow therein, means for supplying high frequency oscillations from said source to the grid of said amplifier tube, means for lowering said impedance in response to signaling potential sufficiently to permit current to flow in the plate circuit of the amplifier, and means acting independently of said impedance for modulating the amplified high frequency currents.

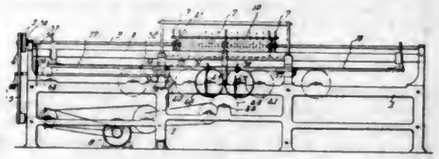
1,631,671. WATERPROOF CEMENTING COMPOSITION. GUSTAVE F. DREHER, Schenectady, N. Y., assignor to General Electric Company, a Corporation of New York. Filed Mar. 8, 1922. Serial No. 542,082. 2 Claims. (Cl. 87—17.)



1. A cement comprising blood albumen, gelatine and hexamethylene tetramine.

1,631,672. VACUUM DISCHARGE APPARATUS. SAUL DUSHMAN, Schenectady, N. Y., assignor to General Electric Company, a Corporation of New York. Filed Mar. 4, 1919, Serial No. 280,632. Renewed Sept. 29, 1923. 12 Claims. (Cl. 250—27.5.)

10. In a vacuum discharge device, an electrode having an opening therethrough and a plurality of heat radiating surfaces extending outwardly therefrom and in an axial direction along the entire length of the electrode.



1,631,673. MOTOR-CONTROL SYSTEM. JOHN EATON, Schenectady, N. Y., assignor to General Electric Company, a Corporation of New York. Filed Sept. 26, 1925. Serial No. 58,940. 9 Claims. (Cl. 172—152.)

1. In combination in a system of motor control, means including a plurality of electromagnetic switches for controlling the motor speed, and connections through which said switches control the motor to at times exert a direct effect on the control of the motor speed and at other times a portion thereof serves solely as time element controlling means for other of said switches.

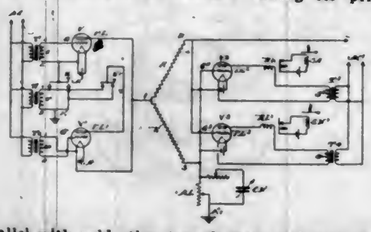
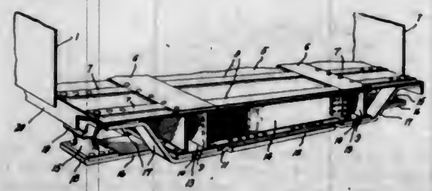
1,631,674. MACHINE FOR WORKING CYLINDRICAL MEMBERS OF FUSIBLE MATERIAL. PIERRE ANDRÉ FAVRE, Crosne, France. Filed Nov. 14, 1925, Serial No. 69,139, and in Belgium Dec. 19, 1924. 7 Claims. (Cl. 49—7.)

1. A machine of the class described comprising in combination gripping means for holding a rod of fusible material at a plurality of points, means for heating said rod intermediate said points, means for moving said gripping means so as to draw the fusible material and means for cutting the rod.



1,631,675. ALTERNATING-CURRENT TELEGRAPH REPEATER. JOHN P. FERRITER, Oceanport, and WESLEY T. GUEST, Eatontown, N. J. Filed Sept. 3, 1925. Serial No. 54,289. 1 Claim. (Cl. 178—56.)

A vacuum tube alternating current telegraph repeater comprising two alternating current quadruplex sets, each suitably arranged for the transmission and reception of four messages simultaneously, two in one direction and two in the other, means for repeating the signals received from the line of one set directly to the transmitting circuit of the other set, said means comprising in each set a pair of receiving and a pair of transmitting tubes, one of each pair of receiving tubes being adapted to receive negative impulses and the other of each pair to receive positive impulses from its adjacent line, the grids of said transmitting tubes and the plates of said receiving tubes being connected by means of a step-up transformer, the plate current from said receiving tubes causing, by means of said transformers, the grids of said transmitting tubes to take on an alternating potential with relation to their filaments and produce a pulsating current in their plates, a pair of equal-arm resistance bridges adapted to divide the pulsating currents in their adjacent transmitting tubes, half of said current being passed to the corresponding line and to the desired distant station.



1,631,676. ALTERNATING-CURRENT TELEGRAPH SYSTEM. JOHN P. FERRITER, Oceanport, and WESLEY T. GUEST, Eatontown, N. J. Filed Sept. 3, 1925. Serial No. 54,290. 3 Claims. (Cl. 178—55.)

1. A system of telegraphy comprising a source of alternating current, means for utilizing the positive half-cycles of said current to operate a telegraph circuit and the negative half-cycles to operate a second telegraph circuit, said means comprising a pair of transmitting tubes, a pair of transformers each of which have their secondary windings connected to the grid of the adjacent tube, an intermediate transformer having its primary in parallel with said other transformers and said current source, keying means associated with said intermediate transformer for producing, through said secondary, negative pulses to affect a plate current in one of said tubes and positive pulses to affect plate current in said other tube.

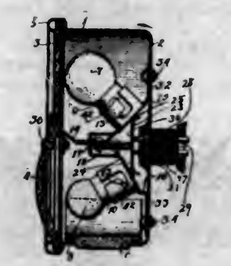
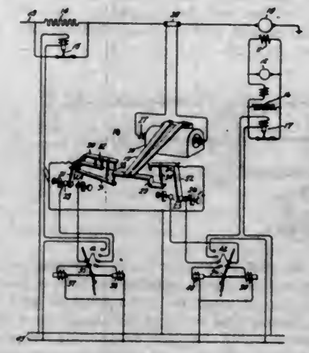
1,631,677. LOCOMOTIVE OR CAR BODY. BERTON A. GARRETT, Ballston Spa, N. Y., assignor to General Electric Company, a Corporation of New York. Filed Dec. 21, 1925. Serial No. 76,590. 7 Claims. (Cl. 105—226.)



1. In a locomotive or car, a body frame comprising a bolster having spaced upper and lower plates, and a lifting lug secured between said plates.

1,631,678. COMBINATION REAR LIGHT FOR VEHICLES. CHARLES E. GODLEY, Detroit, Mich., assignor, by mesne assignments, to C. M. Hall Lamp Company, a Corporation of Wisconsin. Filed July 25, 1924. Serial No. 728,085. 10 Claims. (Cl. 177—329.)

1. In a lamp, a forwardly open casing, a partition dividing the casing into two compartments and having a pair of webs extending in diverging relation up to the back of the casing, means upon each web for holding a lamp bulb with the base thereof extending through that web into the space between the diverging webs and the back of the casing, a pair of circuit terminal members, means for supporting the said members from the casing and for insulating the said members both from each other and from the casing, two resilient conducting elements respectively connecting the said members with the axial terminals of the lamp bulbs, and means for supporting the said elements from the partition and for insulating the said elements from each other and from the partition.



9. In a lamp, a forwardly open casing, a partitioning member mounted in the casing including means providing a chamber adjacent to the back of the casing and dividing the part of the casing forwardly of the said chamber into upper and lower compartments, a pair of circuit terminals extending through the back of the casing into the said chamber, means for supporting the said circuit terminals from the back of the casing and for insulating the circuit terminals both from each other and from the back of the casing, means upon the partitioning member for supporting two lamp bulbs with their bulbs respectively in the said upper and lower compartments and with the base terminals both disposed in the said chamber, two resilient conducting members both disposed in the said chamber and each connecting one of the circuit terminals with one of the said base terminals, and means carried by the partitioning member for supporting the said conducting members and for insulating the conducting members both from each other and from the partitioning member.

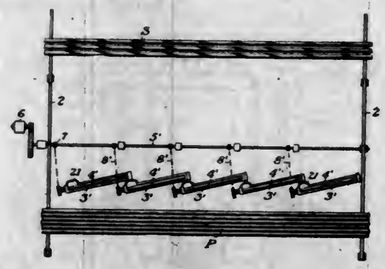
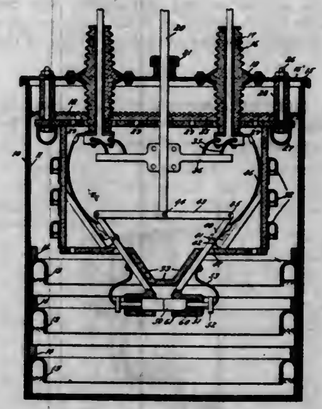
1,631,679. THERMAL RELAY. CHESTER I. HALL, Fort Wayne, Ind., assignor to General Electric Company, a Corporation of New York. Filed Dec. 16, 1924. Serial No. 756,343. 9 Claims. (Cl. 200—122.)



8. In a temperature protective relay for an electric translating device, the combination of a pair of pivotally mounted circuit controlling members, each having an "off" position between two circuit closing positions, an electrically heated heat storage mass having thermal characteristics substantially duplicating those of the mass of the electric translating device to be protected, a bimetallic thermal responsive movable element having one end secured in heat conducting relation with said mass, and means yieldingly connecting the other end of said element to each of said circuit controlling members to successively operate the same to each circuit closing position responsively to variations in the temperature of said storage mass from a predetermined value.

1,631,680. METHOD AND APPARATUS FOR MARKING ARTICLES. JOSEPH A. HALL, Jr., and OTTMAR M. TISHLARICH, Pittsburgh, Pa., assignors to A. M. Byers Company, Pittsburgh, Pa., a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Sept. 24, 1924. Serial No. 739,606. 16 Claims. (Cl. 91—12.)



1. In the method of marking articles, the steps of rotating an article in contact with a coated roll and causing the contacting portion of the roll to move along the article while in rolling contact with each other to produce a spiral stripe on the article.

15. In the method of marking articles, the steps consisting of causing relative movement between a cylindrical article and a series of elongated coating rolls each having a length materially greater than the width of the mark it is desired to produce, and maintaining the axes of the article and the rolls at angles to each other to cause the points of contact between the roll and article to travel along both the rolls and article to form spiral stripes on the article.

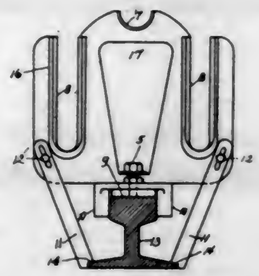
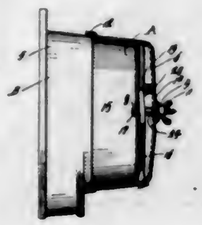
1,631,681. ELECTRIC SWITCH. JOHN D. HILLIARD, Schenectady, N. Y., assignor to General Electric Company, a Corporation of New York. Filed Nov. 20, 1922. Serial No. 601,955. 6 Claims. (Cl. 200—150.)



2. A fluid break switching apparatus comprising a tank, means forming a chamber within said tank, primary contacts separable within said chamber, secondary contacts separable beneath said chamber, and cushioning means in contact with the exterior surface of said chamber, the arrangement being such that pressure produced by an arc between said secondary contacts is absorbed by said cushioning means.

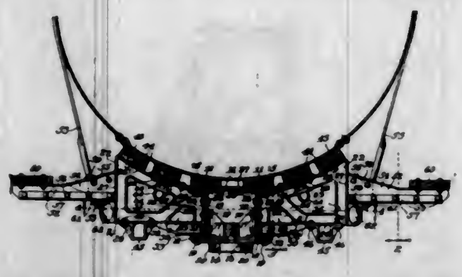
1,631,682. MEASURING DEVICE. GEORGE O. HOFFSTETTER, Fidelity, Ill. Filed Nov. 28, 1925. Serial No. 71,987. 1 Claim. (Cl. 33—137.)



As an article of manufacture, an attachment for the terminal ring of a tape measure comprising a plate having a substantially V-shaped recess in one end, laterally extending tubular portions at the sides of the plate, and a transversely extending and angularly disposed toothed portion on the other end of the plate.

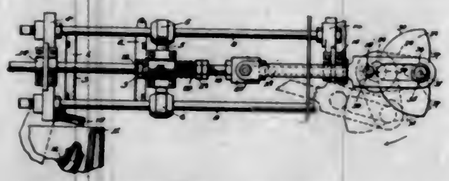
1,631,683. HOLDER FOR DRILLING MECHANISM. EDWARD C. HOLMES, Cincinnati, Ohio. Filed Sept. 8, 1925. Serial No. 54,884. 10 Claims. (Cl. 144—32.)

1. A holder for screw spike driving mechanism comprising in combination a base member adapted to support the holder, swivelling uprights with means for detachably securing the uprights in the base member and a pair of opposed elongated slots in the uprights adapted to guide spider arms of the driving mechanism, and means for aligning said base member on a rail, and means extended from the uprights adapted to prevent tilting of the holder.



1,631,684. ELECTRIC-METER COVER. JOHN L. HOYLE, New Orleans, La. Filed Nov. 2, 1925. Serial No. 66,429. 4 Claims. (Cl. 171—34.)

1. The combination with an electric meter including a base and a transparent cover therefor, including a flange arranged to engage said base, of a protecting cover for the operating parts of the meter comprising a sheet metal body having an outer side wall arranged to engage the base inwardly of the flange of the transparent cover and of a width to extend across the inner face of the side wall of said cover to a point adjacent the front of the same, and a convex front wall covering substantially three-quarters of the lower forward portion of said protecting cover for overlying the operating parts of the meter and having a sight opening formed therein.



1,631,685. CAR UNDERFRAME. PAUL KLEMOFF, Chicago, Ill., assignor to General American Tank Car Corporation, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of West Virginia. Filed Oct. 10, 1924. Serial No. 742,864. 8 Claims. (Cl. 105—362.)

1. A car underframe comprising a center-sill structure, bolster-members located at opposite sides of said center-sill and extending outwardly therefrom, said members being provided with webs and flanges extending crosswise thereof, each of said webs containing a plurality of openings therethrough so shaped as to cause each web to present a stress-resisting portion which inclines downwardly in a direction away from said center-sill, certain of said flanges being provided along the marginal edges of said apertures, and means connecting said members to said center-sill.

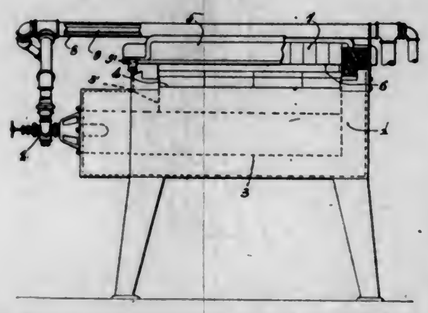
1,631,686. DIE-CASTING MACHINE. TORBJORN CONRAD KORSMO, Madison, Wis., assignor to Madison-Kipp Corporation, Madison, Wis., a Corporation of Wisconsin. Original application filed Mar. 6, 1925. Serial No. 13,543. Divided and this application filed Feb. 5, 1926, Serial No. 86,285, and in Great Britain Oct. 28, 1925. 5 Claims. (Cl. 22—92.)

1. In a die casting machine, the combination of a pair of co-operating die parts adapted to form a mold, means for moving one of said die parts towards and from the other for closing and opening the mold, and means for causing said movable die part to dwell in its closed position and to begin its opening movement and end its closing movement abruptly with sudden transition to or from approximately its maximum speed of motion.



1,631,687. DIAL. RALPH H. LANGLEY, Schenectady, N. Y., assignor to General Electric Company, a Corporation of New York. Filed May 17, 1924. Serial No. 714,185. 3 Claims. (Cl. 116—129.)

1. The combination in a wireless apparatus of a shaft adapted to carry a tuning element and adapted to rotate through an angle of one hundred and eighty degrees, a circular dial surrounding said shaft, a pointer on said shaft for indicating the angular position thereof, said pointer having four integral arms spaced ninety degrees apart, two of said arms which are spaced one hundred and eighty degrees apart being shorter than the other two arms and a pair of circles marked on said dial, one of said circles having a radius substantially equal to the length of the shorter arms and the other having a radius substantially equal to the length of the longer arms.

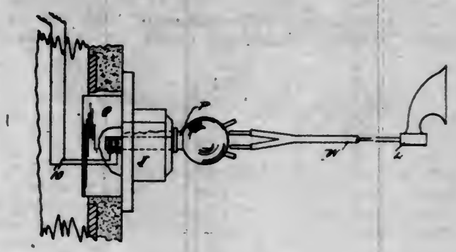
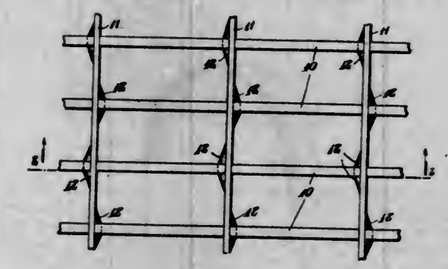
1,631,688. OIL-BURNING DEVICE. HENRY H. MERCER, Claremont, N. H., assignor to Sullivan Machinery Company, a Corporation of Massachusetts. Filed Dec. 23, 1920. Serial No. 432,858. 13 Claims. (Cl. 158—4.)



5. The combination with a furnace provided with a combustion chamber and an oil burner and a relatively long narrow flue for the escape of the waste products of combustion disposed over said combustion chamber, of means disposed over said flue for preheating the air and oil comprising independent supply pipes for each located directly over said flue, the pipe conveying oil being shielded by the other pipe from direct exposure to the waste products of combustion.

1,631,689. WRENCH FOR SCREW-TOP JARS. FELIX MOSER, Holland, Mich. Filed Apr. 7, 1926. Serial No. 100,337. 1 Claim. (Cl. 81—3.1.)

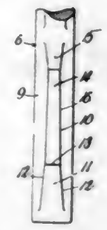


A jar-top wrench including a handle having opposite sides of different lengths and beveled or tapered at one end at an angle of about sixty degrees adjacent the longer side, and having a loop or strap of flexible material secured at both its ends to the said longer side of the handle, the said tapered end being adapted to press into the bight of the loop and draw it closely around the jar top thus enabling the strap to grip about nine-tenths of the object to be turned.

1,631,690. UNIVERSAL RADIO AND DIRECT-SERVICE SYSTEM. EDWARD MCLARTY, Sr., and STANLEY L. BLANKENSHIP, Los Angeles, Calif. Filed Sept. 2, 1925. Serial No. 54,059. 1 Claim. (Cl. 179—2.)

In a radio and telephone system, a line outlet device having line terminals, a key lock including contacts coordinate to the terminals, and a key-plug having conducting leads cooperating with the contacts to close a telephone receiver circuit.

1,631,691. CONNECTED BAR STRUCTURE. HARRY NAGIN, Brooklyn, N. Y., assignor to The Grating Company of America, Pittsburgh, Pa., a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Jan. 28, 1926. Serial No. 84,311. 3 Claims. (Cl. 189—82.)



1. A connected bar structure comprising a plurality of girder bars having slots formed in a side thereof, and cross bars lying in the slots, a slot in one girder bar being of a different cross sectional shape than a slot in an adjacent girder bar which is engaged by the same cross bar, the portions of the cross bar which are engaged by the slots being permanently deformed to fit the slots.

1,631,692. FELTED FABRIC AND PROCESS FOR THE MANUFACTURE THEREOF. ELIO ADOLFO PEROGIO, Montelupone, Italy. Filed Nov. 21, 1922, Serial No. 602,479, and in Italy Dec. 8, 1921. 2 Claims. (Cl. 28—5.)

1. A process for the manufacture of a fabric composed of non-feltable material such as human hair and animal hair consisting in intermingling the hairs thoroughly moistened with a frothy lubricating emulsifying liquid in their natural state so as to form a stratified mass of suitable thickness, rubbing the upper surface of the said stratified mass in all directions at first lightly, then turning the stratified mass upside down and repeating the rubbing action, then rubbing the entire outer surface of said stratified mass more energetically, pressing the edges of the mass so as to obtain the desired shape and finally allowing the mass to dry.

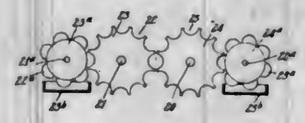
1,631,693. BROACHING TOOL. GEORGE H. RICHEY, Boston, Mass., assignor to Sullivan Machinery Company, a Corporation of Massachusetts. Filed Oct. 18, 1926. Serial No. 142,482. 4 Claims. (Cl. 255—36.)

1. A broaching tool of the impact type comprising a shank having a cylindrical body portion forming a guide, and a laterally projecting wing formed on said body portion, said wing having a percussive surface tapering outwardly and receding rearwardly, an upper surface likewise tapering outwardly but sloping forwardly, an outer surface joining said other surfaces, and lateral plane surfaces.

1,631,694. SHOULDER PAD. GEORGE A. RICK, Woodhaven, N. Y., assignor to A. G. Spalding & Bros., New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Sept. 3, 1925. Serial No. 54,308. 1 Claim. (Cl. 2—3.)

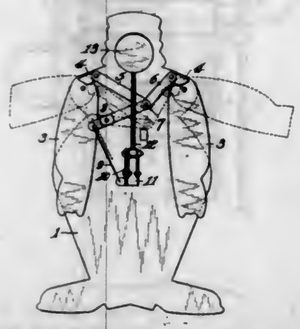
A shoulder pad comprising a fleece covered leather shield adapted to lie next to the wearer's shoulder, padding material lying on top of the leather shield, an upper leather overlying the padding and stitched around its periphery to the leather shield, said upper leather having a series of slots therein, through which a carrying strap may be threaded.

1,631,695. PORCELAIN. FRANK H. RIDDLE, Detroit, Mich., assignor to Champion Porcelain Company, Detroit, Mich., a Corporation of Michigan. Filed June 1, 1920. Serial No. 385,512. 75 Claims. (Cl. 106—11.)



50. The process of forming a ceramic material containing crystals that are not subject to volumetric changes, other than those that can be explained by thermal expansion, within the range of temperature used in forming said product, which consists in forming a mixture containing at least 20% of such crystals and other material from which additional crystals having said characteristics may be formed, and firing the mixture to produce such additional crystals.

1,631,696. DOMESTIC FIREPLACE STRUCTURE. NEIL ROBERTSON, Vancouver, British Columbia, Canada. Filed Mar. 14, 1927, Serial No. 175,356, and in Canada Feb. 2, 1927. 1 Claim. (Cl. 126—121.)

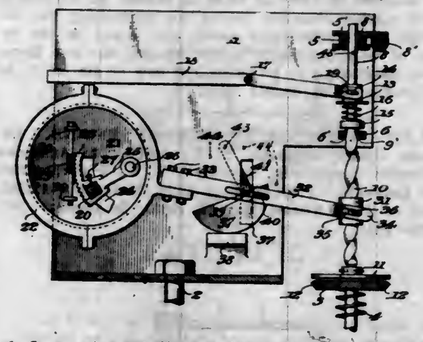


In a domestic fireplace structure the combination comprising, a vertical front plate having a grid-covered aperture in its upper portion, said aperture opening into the apartment, a vertical hearth boundary plate adapted to act as a rear and side fence to the hearth of the said fireplace, said boundary plate having vertical corrugations and being secured by its front vertical edges to the said front plate by a tight seam, the rear portion of said vertical boundary plate having a horizontally disposed angle iron along its top rear edge forming a joint at its intersection with the chimney brickwork, an air flue separate from the chimney at the rear and sides of said boundary plate, said air flue at the rear of the said hearth extending from a maximum width at the hearth level to a minimum width at the top of said boundary plate, an aperture in the hearth plate within said air flue, said aperture communicating with an air-flue below said hearth and with a fresh air supply, the said air-flue being adapted to form an independent conduit between the said fresh air supply and the said grid covered aperture in the upper portion of said front plate.

1,631,697. FRANKFURTER-ROLL-FORMING MACHINE. KARL SCHEERDEL, Fitchburg, Mass. Filed July 14, 1926. Serial No. 122,331. 2 Claims. (Cl. 107—10.)

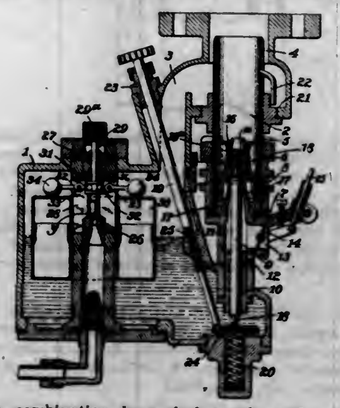
2. A roll forming machine comprising a frame, a trough supported above said frame, said trough being adapted to be filled with dough, means for forming said dough into cylindrical portions of predetermined length comprising cylinders rotatable in the bottom of said trough, semi-cylindrical grooves formed peripherally on said cylinders, means for coating said grooves successively with grease comprising cylinders complemental to the roll forming cylinders, means for rotating said second-named cylinders synchronously with the first-named cylinders, and pads on the complemental cylinders entering into the grooves of the first-named cylinders successively for lubricating the surfaces of said grooves.

1,631,698. VEHICLE SIGNALING APPARATUS. ADOLPH M. SCHICK, Wheeling, W. Va. Filed Sept. 9, 1926. Serial No. 134,388. 7 Claims. (Cl. 116—37.)



1. In a signaling device for vehicles, a body member adapted to be carried by a vehicle, a vertically movable semaphore arm pivotally mounted on said body, a weighted member pivoted on said body, and mechanism intermediate said weighted member and said arm whereby movement of the former actuates the latter to and from signaling position, said weighted member being adapted to be moved in one direction by momentum upon reduction in the velocity of movement of the vehicle.

1,631,699. SAND-HEATING APPARATUS FOR BUILDING PURPOSES. FREDRIK SELMER, Christiania, Norway. Filed Oct. 30, 1924, Serial No. 746,901, and in Norway Nov. 9, 1923. Serial No. 29,473. 1 Claim. (Cl. 122—247.)



A combined sand and water heating apparatus comprising a shell, a fireplace, a water tubing including arch forming portions arranged in direct supporting and heat interchanging relation with said shell, about said fireplace, and means for circulating water through said tubing.

1,631,700. MACHINE FOR GRINDING VALVES. FRANKLIN S. SIMPSON, Alton, Ill. Filed July 23, 1924. Serial No. 727,729. 7 Claims. (Cl. 51—29.)

1. In a valve grinding machine, the combination with a spindle, of means for reciprocating said spindle longitudinally and for rotating it, comprising an eccentric the throw of which both reciprocates and rotates said spindle.

1,631,701. CARBURETOR. WARD T. SIMPSON, Ann Arbor, Mich., assignor, by mesne assignments, to Albert G. Dickinson, Grand Rapids, Mich. Filed Oct. 21, 1920. Serial No. 418,418. 6 Claims. (Cl. 261—76.)
